AT CAPE HATTERAS, N.C. . . . a father leads his two children to safety.

NEW YORK (AP) — Hurricane Belle roared on to Long Island's Long Beach only five miles from the New York City limits Monday night with top winds of 90 miles per hour after sending giant waves crashing over Atlantic City's famed boardwalk.

The National Weather Service relayed a report from the Long Beach police that the eye of the hurricane made its landfall after an erratic final drift westward.

The weakening Belle lost some of her punch as she approached land.

In Boston, the weather service reported that Belle's top winds had dwindled from 110 miles per hour to 80 m.p.h. in less than four hours, and a forecaster there said, "It's gradually weakening. It is further west than we expected and it's two or three hours behind schedule."

Winds gusted to 80 miles per hour at Bridgeport, Conn., where some power outages were reported. Gale force winds were reported in southern New England.

The majority of the New York area's 18 million residents appeared to have escaped the earlier fury of the weakening hurricane, although beset by high winds and torrential rain.

Even as the storm bore down on the island's south shore beaches, swimmers were in the water shortly before midnight. At Freeport on the island, a man in an iron lung was evacuated in a portable respirator and brought to police headquarters where he was plugged into electric outlets there, where an emergency generator was available.

Vacationers and residents were taken to safe haven in the more than 200 shelters opened by the Red Cross in New Jersey, New York and New England states. Some 8,000 persons were housed in emergency shelters in Suffolk County, Long Island, many of them youngsters from summer camps.

"The good news for the Jersey coast," said Frank Neil, hurricane center director, "was that they are on the weak side of the hurricane. That's because the eye of the storm stayed off the Jersey coast."

Nevertheless, the storm knocked out power in dozens of Jersey shore communities, battered down trees and touched off a rash of some 75 fire alarms, at least one of them a serious blaze. A nursing home had to be evacuated by National Guard troops.

Heavy rains and gusty winds lashed New York City's deserted streets late Monday night and rainstorms extended 150 miles to the north.

No deaths were directly attributed to the hurricane. But three adults and two children died in a car-truck crash on a rain-slicked highway near the North Carolina-Virginia line. A mass exodus from coastal areas in the storm's path was all but complete before nightfall, as the tempo of the heavy rain increased with the hurricane's approach from the south. Tens of thousands fled to high ground.

However, some stayed put. "We've got to stay with it, so I might as well do it with a case of beer," said Pete Adis, owner of a houseboat tied up at a Hudson River marina in Manhattan. He was one of many partying boaters among about 100 who stayed behind. Fifty others headed for safer waters.

Among ships secured against the storm was one that has never put to sea. She was the $75,000 steamboat "Cotton Blossom," a prop in Guy Lombardo's Jones Beach presentation on Long Island of "Show Boat."

At least half the residents of Narragansett, R.I., refused to leave bayside homes and police withdrew emergency service from the area.

In South Jersey, 12,000 persons were evacuated from Long Beach Island and Barnegat Peninsula, leaving only police in the area. Said Civil Defense coordinator Bill Hays, "Don't try to go aboard (the islands), because you'll be staring down a double barrel shotgun. I'm not kidding."

Perhaps the best view of the storm's approach was afforded revelers in the 107th floor bar of the World Trade Center in downtown Manhattan. Said Dianne Legro, a 20-year-old singer-actress, sipping scotch on the rocks, "We came up here to see the hurricane. I really hate heights. I'm scared to death. But there was something about today, and I had to come here."

Belle lost none of its strength while skirting North Carolina's Outer Banks earlier in the day. The Red Cross said it housed 6,200 persons there Sunday night. But by mid-afternoon, the sun peeked out, winds subsided and Charles Martelle of the state office of Civil Preparedness was able to say "We haven't really had anything hurt us badly."

As Belle passed Virginia, its core was close enough to be felt on land, although most of its fury was spent at sea. The storm began hitting South Jersey with torrential rains at the evening rush hour.

Some 470,000 daily commuters to New York City surged out of offices and shops in mid-afternoon for an early start home. Despite the addition of extra cars, railroads were caught with a standing-room-only crush.

In mid-afternoon, airlines began canceling inbound and outbound New York flights during the expected crucial period before, during and after the time when Belle's projected path was expected to put the storm center over Long Island.

From Long Island, Belle was expected to head for the New England coast and Cape Cod, both popular during the vacation season. All along the coast, workmen were busy preparing the area for high winds and drenching rains.

Harris Guilty Of Kidnaping, Robbery, Innocent Of Assault

LOS ANGELES (AP) — William and Emily Harris, onetime fugitive traveling companions of Patricia Hearst, were convicted Monday of kidnaping and robbery. They were acquitted of six assault charges tied to Miss Hearst's machine-gun attack on a sporting goods store.

The two avowed members of the terrorist Symphonie Liberation Army were calm and impassive as their verdicts were read.

The jury of seven women and five men, who had struggled with 11 charges against the couple, reduced the most serious of those charges from kidnaping for the purpose of robbery to simple kidnaping, thus giving the Harris a reprieve from mandatory life sentences.

The Harris still face a possible life sentence on the first-degree robbery conviction, which carries a five-year to life term.

The penalty for simple kidnaping is a maximum of 25 years.

The jury also reduced two charges of robbery to simple car theft.

The status of the Harris verdict remained uncertain. The judge questioned a juror accused of prejudice, and the juror steadfastly denied having made a prejudicial remark. However, the judge ordered a hearing for Tuesday to probe further whether any of the jurors were tainted by prejudice.

In an unusual move, the jurors themselves sent word they wanted to remain sequestered at a hotel overnight and the judge granted the request. They made the unique suggestion after the judge ordered them not to discuss any aspect of the case with anyone — even relatives — until Tuesday's hearing is over.

Except for juror Ronald Pruyn, the jury is unaware of its honesty and therefore its verdict was being questioned. The judge also told jurors not to read newspapers, listen to radio or television accounts of the verdict.

Sentencing for the Harris was tentatively set for Aug. 30.

We're very gratified that they were acquitted on all charges involving the shooting at Mel's Sporting Goods," said chief defense attorney Leonard Weinglass. He added he was "surprised and distressed" about the kidnaping convictions.

The verdicts came amid a raging dispute over defense contentions that a mistrial is required

Weinglass had said moments before the verdicts came in that "there could not possibly be any public confidence in this verdict."

The prosecutor said that if there is any sign the jury was tainted with bias, "we will join in any motion for a new trial by the defendants."

The acquittals on the six assault charges — the first verdicts read in the hushed courtroom — vindicated the Harris, who had contended that the 22-year-old Miss Hearst was a self-willed gunwoman when she whipped out a machine gun and fired wildly to free the couple from a possible shoplifting arrest.

The newspaper heiress, now a convicted bank robber, admitted the assault during her San Francisco bank robbery trial. But she claimed that she fired out of "a reflex action," in fear of the Harris and other members of the terrorist group which had kidnaped her on Feb. 4, 1974.

The machine-gun assault at an Ingleside sporting goods store came on May 16, 1974, just a month after the Hibernia Bank robbery in San Francisco of which Miss Hearst stands convicted.

The Harris' convictions of two kidnapings and a robbery also involve Miss Hearst. She is to be tried on the same 11 charges of the indictment next Jan. 10.

She has said she was with the Harris when they commandeered the cars of young college student Tom Matthews and middle-aged contractor Frank R. Sutter. Matthews described Miss Hearst as a kindly captor who patted his head and asked after his comfort.

But Sutter portrayed her as a gun-toting member of the gang, pointing a gun at him as he was abducted.

Some of the verdicts were dated Aug. 5, but among the last to be returned were the charges which had brought the jurors back to the courtroom to rehear testimony — those involving the absent codefendant, Miss Hearst.

Those were the six assault charges and the kidnaping of Matthews, who said he didn't believe he was a kidnap victim. The jurors found the Harris guilty of the Matthews kidnaping.

The jurors found that the Harris did rob Sutter of $250 but rejected the claim that the trio had robbed in mind when they commandeered Sutter's car in Griffith Park.

In addition, the jurors found the Harris each guilty of five charges of firearms violations.

The jurors were solemn as Court Clerk Steven Brown asked them after each of the 22 verdicts — "Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, is this your verdict? So say you one so say you all."

The jurors, who had deliberated 8½ days for a total of 51 hours, nodded in unison and answered, "Yes."

But their verdict did not end a raging controversy which was fired earlier in the day by testimony and led to last-minute motions for mistrial and dismissal.

Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler, who has refused many similar motions, turned down the defense again.

Weinglass said that irregularities and misconduct during the trial had made the reading of the verdict "a farce."

He asked the judge to "cleanse this system of this case."

There could not possibly be any public confidence in this verdict," Weinglass said. "This proceeding is so infected with so many errors, with errors of judgment and misconduct, as not to be able to survive any test of due process."

Watershed 'Urbanization' Blasted

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Councilman Bob Jeamby Monday verbally boxed the ears of the City-County Planning Commission for being "lax" in blocking urbanization of the Stevens Creek Watershed.

Jeamby sought to have plans for a proposed East Lincoln development, dubbed the Hallcrest Addition, sent back to the commission to delete 22 lots he said were in the watershed.

The ban on eastward expansion into the watershed has been approved by citizens who participated in the Goals and Policies Committee and is supported by a variety of local leaders.

Supporters of the ban contend that further growth to the east constitutes urban sprawl and entails costly sewer line development, since sewage will flow, with gravity, away from the city's existing sewage treatment plants.

Jeamby failed in his attempt to have plans for the development sent back to the Planning Commission, but a motion to approve the plans also failed, with only Max Denney and Bob Sikyta voting in favor. Council members Steve Cook and Dick Baker were absent.

The city's efforts to limit eastward growth also came under criticism from Councilman John Robinson, who argued that recent developments in East Lincoln have a "cumulative effect."

"Ultimately we'll find gross urbanization of Stevens Creek," Robinson said, listing the Golf Park Addition, the Rosemont Addition and the proposed Southeast Technical Community College campus as examples of erosion of the ban on growth to the east.

I hope in the future the Planning Commission would be more careful."

In approving developments in Stevens Creek, Jeamby said

Defense of the approval of the Hallcrest Addition by the Planning Commission came from Planning Director Doug Brogren.

Brogren said he recommended the development be approved because the houses in the 22 lots in the watershed could be connected with an existing sewer line.

In addition, he said, the land was already within the city limits and had been zoned for single-family homes since the early 1950s.

Public Works Director Bob Obergren told the council in some places of East Lincoln it is hard to find the "magic line" that sets apart the Stevens Creek watershed.

Since the council failed to reach a majority vote in approving the Hallcrest plans, the issue will be on the council's agenda again next week.

Longsdorf Told He Must Give Up Outside Work

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln Railroad Transportation Safety District director John Longsdorf must give up either his full-time salaried position with the RTSD or his outside consulting work.

The Lincoln RTSD board voted unanimously Monday morning that any full-time executive director, including Longsdorf, cannot be involved in work for outside businesses or agencies. Board member Steve Cook was absent from the meeting.

After the meeting Longsdorf said he wasn't sure what his decision would be on continuing employment with the Lincoln RTSD.

"I have done nothing unethical, nothing illegal and nothing immoral," Longsdorf said. "I was given permission to help these two districts," he said about a June 2, 1975, board motion that he could "help" the Norfolk and Hastings RTSDs.

"Now that permission has apparently been withdrawn," he said, adding he would be contacting those two communities "to see what they want to do."

When asked specifically if he would step down from his Lincoln job if the other two communities continue their annual contracts with his private firm, Longsdorf said, "Is the (Lincoln) board willing to pay me $40,000? I didn't hear them say that, did you?"

Longsdorf, on leave from his job with the Union Pacific Railroad, said he was eligible for retirement and a railroad pension on Feb. 1, 1976. "Perhaps that will be the answer," he added.

The board's decision on Longsdorf's outside work came after board members learned that Longsdorf and local attorney Dick Hartsock jointly own a corporation, CRRC Inc., that had $50,000 in contracts with the Hastings and Norfolk RTSDs last fiscal year.

The two contracts, each for $25,000 annually, have not been signed for this fiscal year which began July 1. But local officials in the two communities who talked with Star reporters last week said that the new contracts would probably be signed.

Lincoln board members questioned Longsdorf about the splitting of costs between the local RTSD and Hartsock for joint office space, joint telephone and secretarial service.

Longsdorf said any businesses relating to CRRC Inc. that went through the joint office was paid by Hartsock's share of the office expenses.

Though board members could find no actual "conflict of interest" in the joint arrangement of the outside consulting work, all spoke against even the "appearance of a conflict."

County Commissioner and board member Bruce Hamilton, who gave up a law partnership and criminal law practice in county court because of a possible conflict of interest with his commissioner post, made a plea for immediate firing of Longsdorf during the meeting.

"It smells, it looks like, in every sense of the word like a conflict of interest," the entire relationship of shared offices, of shared phones, of shared secretary should cease immediately," said Hamilton. "This deserves immediate condemnation and needs immediate action."

Hamilton's statements brought Hartsock to his feet in defense of himself and CRRC Inc. Hartsock, who is listed as secretary-treasurer of the private firm, said that company records would clearly show the breakdown of costs the CRRC has paid.

"We have separated everything. We can show every bit of this. It doesn't smell. If anyone says that the CRRC is making a profit of this, I can prove it's not true," he said.

Lawmen Will Be Ready By Sept. 7

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Omaha Police Chief Richard Andersen Monday assured Sen. Ernest Chambers that coordinated planning among law enforcement officials will be completed before Omaha schools open in September.

Court-ordered busing will formally desegregate the Omaha school system when classes resume Sept. 7.

Chambers has been concerned that state, county and city law enforcement agencies plan in advance for the possibility of civil disturbances or the need for crowd control at the schools.

Everything will be accomplished before Sept. 7," Andersen told Chambers at a legislative study committee hearing at the Statehouse.

Andersen said he has consulted with officials of the State Patrol and the Douglas County sheriff's office.

The plan is together," the chief said.

You'll have to trust me, Senator.

Questioned by Chambers, Andersen said the first goal of law enforcement officials in the event of any disturbance would be to get the children in the school without harm.

Omaha police are "reasonably trained to handle any crowd control needs," the chief said.

Some crowd actions, such as peaceful demonstrations or parades, could be legal, Andersen noted. But police would be on hand to help keep them peaceful.

Preparations for any law enforcement needs with respect to the school desegregation should be completed within two weeks, Andersen told Chambers.

Chambers questioned Andersen about a number of Omaha police matters during a hearing on proposed improvements for the law enforcement training center at Grand Island.

Andersen defended Omaha police policy on high speed chases, noting that the final decision depends on a police officer's judgment.

The policy (allowing such chases) has to be broad," he said. "We need to rely on the judgment of officers and they do make errors."

One high speed pursuit in 1972 led to the death of a Council Bluffs police officer and a court award last week of $242,677 in damages paid to his mother.

The man pursued by an Omaha police cruiser across the border into Council Bluffs was fined $25 for careless driving.

Omaha police chases have resulted in death injury and destruction of property, and none of them involved a felony violation, Chambers declared.

Later, answering questions from Chambers, Lincoln Police Chief George Hansen said his department has a policy authorizing high speed chase only as the "very last resort."

Police officers are discouraged from employing such pursuit in misdemeanor cases, Hansen said.

Chambers said he will review the Lincoln police policy as a possible guide to state legislation.

Lawmen Will Be Ready By Sept. 7

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Omaha Police Chief Richard Andersen Monday assured Sen. Ernest Chambers that coordinated planning among law enforcement officials will be completed before Omaha schools open in September.

Court-ordered busing will formally desegregate the Omaha school system when classes resume Sept. 7.

Chambers has been concerned that state, county and city law enforcement agencies plan in advance for the possibility of civil disturbances or the need for crowd control at the schools.

"Everything will be accomplished before Sept. 7," Andersen told Chambers at a legislative study committee hearing at the Statehouse.

Andersen said he has consulted with officials of the State Patrol and the Douglas County sheriff's office.

"The plan is together," the chief said. "You'll have to trust me, Senator."

Questioned by Chambers, Andersen said the first goal of law enforcement officials in the event of any disturbance would be to "get the children in the school without harm."

Omaha police are "reasonably trained" to handle any crowd control needs, the chief said.

Some crowd actions, such as peaceful demonstrations or parades, could be legal, Andersen noted. But police would be on hand to help keep them peaceful.

Preparations for any law enforcement needs with respect to the school desegregation should be completed within two weeks, Andersen told Chambers.

Chambers questioned Andersen about a number of Omaha police matters during a hearing on proposed improvements for the law enforcement training center at Grand Island.

Andersen defended Omaha police policy on high-speed chases, noting that the final decision depends on a police officer's judgment.

"The policy (allowing such chases) has to be broad," he said. "We need to rely on the judgment of officers, and they do make errors."

One high-speed pursuit in 1972 led to the death of a Council Bluffs police officer and a court award last week of $242,677 in damages paid to his mother.

The man pursued by an Omaha police cruiser across the border into Council Bluffs was fined $25 for careless driving.

"Omaha police chases have resulted in death, injury and destruction of property . . . and none of them involved a felony violation," Chambers declared.

Later, answering questions from Chambers, Lincoln Police Chief George Hansen said his department has a policy authorizing high-speed chase only as "the very last resort."

Police officers are "discouraged" from employing such pursuit in misdemeanor cases, Hansen said.

Chambers said he will review the Lincoln police policy as a possible guide to state legislation.

Ford, Reagan Forces Skirmish

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Anxious to test their strength, supporters of Ronald Reagan skirmished repeatedly Monday with backers of President Ford and set the stage for clashes that appeared certain to upset the hopes of party elders for a harmonious Republican National Convention.

With the first session of the convention still a week away, it was a time of intense maneuvering, of shifting and feinting by backers of Reagan and Ford.

The Reagan forces ousted a Ford delegate from the chairmanship of a key platform subcommittee that will deal with such issues as school busing and abortion.

In a separate move, Reagan campaign director John Sears surprised a meeting of the party rules committee by urging it to force Ford to name his choice for a running mate before the balloting begins for the presidential nomination.

The panel rejected Sears' proposal by a voice vote. But the Reagan aide is expected to bring it up before the convention rules committee, where the former California governor has more support.

Sears also threatened to carry the fight to the convention floor.

Two weeks ago, Reagan announced that, if nominated, he would choose Sen. Richard S. Schweiker of Pennsylvania, a liberal, as his running mate. Ford has said he doesn't intend to announce his choice until after he is nominated.

Reagan forces moved quickly to break what they regarded as the President's hold on key convention posts.

While Reagan's managers disclaimed any part in the move, his supporters on the platform committee succeeded at an organizational meeting Sunday in stripping Gov. Robert D. Ray of Iowa, of his power to appoint subcommittee chairmen. The committee's vote was 42 to 39.

Six of the seven subcommittee chairmen who had been designated by Ray, a Ford supporter, were elected when the panels met. But the seventh, Rep. Silvio O. Conte of Massachusetts, lost the chairmanship of the Human Rights and Responsibilities Subcommittee to Charles Pickering of Mississippi, who had been a Reagan supporter but switched to uncommitted after Reagan designated Schweiker as his running mate.

Ray is one those sounded out by White House aides to determine if they would accept the vice presidential nomination.

Still another potential for a divisive clash could be challenges to the seating of delegates from North Carolina, Arkansas and New Jersey.

SUNBATHERS ... wave to one of many boats that came in close.

'Nude Beach Day' Succeeds

Malibu, Calif. (UPI) — Sheriff's deputies on horseback, patrolling from the cliff's above, trained binoculars on a section of beach where hundreds of sunbathers were only green-felt fig leaves.

Authorities were ready to move in if the sunbathers removed the 3-inch-wide fig leaves, but they didn't, and "National Nude Beach Day" at the extreme west end of Zuma Beach was proclaimed a success.

Sponsored by a group called Beachfront U.S.A., the event was part of a nationwide demonstration Sunday to drum up support for more "clothing optional" areas on public beaches.

"We showed there is a need for an area those who wish can enjoy nude sunbathing in a supervised area with all the facilities — trash barrels and toilets — enjoyed on public beaches," said Maureen Eckle, treasurer of the group.

Similar "Nude Beach Day" activities were held at Black's Beach in San Diego, Truro, Mass., on Cape Cod and in Florida.

American Indian Group's Request Made By Arbuckle

Kansas City, Mo. (AP) — A group of American Indians asked Republicans Monday to seat a nonvoting delegation of their people on the floor of the GOP National Convention opening in a week.

The request was presented to the human rights subcommittee of the Platform Committee, which began hearings Monday, by John Twobirds Arbuckle of Lincoln. He is chairman of the

Feds Recommend Rubber Settlement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government proposed settlement recommendations Monday to end a 112-day strike by rubber workers against the nation's four major tire and rubber manufacturers.

Labor Secretary W.J. Usery Jr. and James Secore, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, made the recommendations after 7½ hours of talks Monday between the United Rubber Workers union and Firestone Tire Co., the "target firm" in the negotiations.

Usery recessed the talks until Tuesday morning to give the parties time to consider the recommendations, a department spokesman said.

Terms of the proposed settlement were not disclosed.

The strike by 60,000 rubber workers began April 21, and has idled 47 plants owned by Firestone, Goodyear, Uniroyal and B.F. Goodrich. The plants account for 60 per cent of the nation's tire production.

The talks broke off last Thursday but, under Usery's orders, were renewed Saturday.

Usery cited "widespread economic hardship and human suffering" in ordering marathon talks until an agreement is reached.

The negotiations have bogged down over salaries. The union has been demanding a $1.65-an-hour raise over three years and an unlimited cost-of-living escalator. The industry's last offer was $1.30-an-hour hike over three years and a limited cost-of-living rider.

Yippies Just Smile, Smoke

Kansas City (UPI) — A dozen Yippies, smoking marijuana and waving flags, opened their Republican National Convention demonstration Monday saying they would avoid clashes with police by smiling and smoking.

"Right now we're getting loaded, smoking, you know, setting up our security system and getting everything arranged," said Dave, a Youth International Party member who refused to give his full name.

Four years ago at the GOP convention in Miami Beach, Fla., 1,000 Yippies were arrested. This year seems destined to be tame by comparison.

Her Life Is Full Of Tragedy

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa (AP) — Jeanette James lay in a hospital bed Monday trying to recall events preceding the crash of a school bus she was driving Friday. Her daughter and two other children died in the crash.

For Mrs. James, 39, of Neola, the death of her daughter was another chapter in a life punctuated by tragedy.

About 12 years ago, a train collided with the small foreign car she was driving near Tucson, Ariz. Her twin children were killed.

A year and a half ago, her husband, Willard, was badly hurt when his vehicle was forced into a bridge guardrail near Underwood.

And last Friday, Mrs. James was at the wheel of the school bus when it careened over a bridge and slid down an embankment.

Her daughter, Lucretia Page James, 8, was one of the three children killed. Twenty-nine other persons were injured.

Mrs. James has three other children: Marti, 6, who was injured in the crash; and two children of a previous marriage, Roy Wachner, 18, who is in the Air Force, and Regan Wachner, 13, who also was injured.

The busload of children and supervisors was bound for a swimming pool at Avoca about 22 miles away.

State troopers have tried to help her recall events leading up to the accident, but she said she remains mystified.

"I just don't remember anything prior to coming to when we were upside down (in the bus)," she said.

"I just don't know. It (the road) was clear ahead of me. There were no cars.

"I just can't put it together."

Mrs. James normally would not have been driving last Friday. Her regular day to drive the children to the pool was Tuesday, but she took over for another driver who was on vacation.

Attendants at Mercy Hospital in Council Bluffs list Mrs. James as being in fairly good condition. She has head, jaw and rib injuries.

"Physically, I'm just sore," she said Monday, "but mentally, I'm depleted."

Bulldozers Begin Canyon Cleanup

Loveland, Colo. (UPI) — Bulldozer operators, inoculated against typhoid and tetanus and warned to watch for buried flood victims, Monday were clearing debris from the flood-ravaged Big Thompson Canyon.

Only 87 bodies have been found since a flash flood roared through the narrow Rocky Mountain canyon July 31, twisting homes, smashing cars and killing an estimated 200 persons. The Red Cross lists 800 as missing.

"Many of the bodies may be buried 10 feet down in the mud," said Larimer County Sheriff Bob Watson. "Some may have been carried to Nebraska and there may be some we will never find."

On Aug. 1, the day after the flood, helicopters began evacuating almost 900 persons from the canyon who had escaped the rushing water by running to high ground and clinging to the rocky walls.

As the Colorado Highway Department began cutting a new road through the canyon, several more bodies were found.

The Army Corps of Engineers, which began debris removal operations near Loveland where the flood had left splintered homes and piles of autos, said it would take an estimated 15 days to clear the 46,000 cubic yards of riverbed below the canyon mouth.

"We are separating the salvageable stuff and will leave the rest in piles where dump trucks will pick it up to take to the county dump," said Mike Baugher, a corps spokesman. "Autos and auto parts will be taken to another location for identification."

Ford, Reagan Forces Skirmish

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Anxious to test their strength, supporters of Ronald Reagan skirmished repeatedly Monday with backers of President Ford and set the stage for clashes that appeared certain to upset the hopes of party elders for a harmonious Republican National Convention.

With the first session of the convention still a week away, it was a time of intense maneuvering, of shifting and feinting by backers of Reagan and Ford.

The Reagan forces ousted a Ford delegate from the chairmanship of a key platform subcommittee that will deal with such issues as school busing and abortion.

In a separate move, Reagan campaign director John Sears surprised a meeting of the party rules committee by urging it to force Ford to name his choice for a running mate before the balloting begins for the presidential nomination.

The panel rejected Sears' proposal by a voice vote. But the Reagan aide is expected to bring it up before the convention rules committee, where the former California governor has more support.

Sears also threatened to carry the fight to the convention floor. Two weeks ago, Reagan announced that, if nominated, he would choose Sen. Richard S. Schweiker of Pennsylvania, a liberal, as his running mate. Ford has said he doesn't intend to announce his choice until after he is nominated.

Reagan forces moved quickly to break what they regarded as the President's hold on key convention posts.

While Reagan's managers disclaimed any part in the move, his supporters on the platform committee succeeded at an organizational meeting Sunday in stripping Gov. Robert D. Ray of Iowa, of his power to appoint subcommittee chairmen. The committee's vote was 42 to 39.

Six of the seven subcommittee chairmen who had been designated by Ray, a Ford supporter, were elected when the panels met. But the seventh, Rep. Silvio O. Conte of Massachusetts, lost the chairmanship of the Human Rights and Responsibilities Subcommittee to Charles Pickering of Mississippi, who had been a Reagan supporter but switched to uncommitted after Reagan designated Schweiker as his running mate.

Ray is one those sounded out by White House aides to determine if they would accept the vice presidential nomination.

Still another potential for a divisive clash could be challenges to the seating of delegates from North Carolina, Arkansas and New Jersey.

SUNBATHERS ... wave to one of many boats that came in close.

'Nude Beach Day' Succeeds

Malibu, Calif. (UPI) — Sheriff's deputies on horseback, patrolling from the cliff's above, trained binoculars on a section of beach where hundreds of sunbathers wore only green-felt fig leaves.

Authorities were ready to move in if the sunbathers removed the 3-inch-wide fig leaves, but they didn't, and "National Nude Beach Day" at the extreme west end of Zuma Beach was proclaimed a success.

Sponsored by a group called Beachfront U.S.A., the event was part of a nationwide demonstration Sunday to drum up support for more "clothing optional" areas on public beaches.

"We showed there is a need for an area those who wish can enjoy nude sunbathing in a supervised area with all the facilities — trash barrels and toilets — enjoyed on public beaches," said Maureen Eckle, treasurer of the group.

Similar "Nude Beach Day" activities were held at Black's Beach in San Diego, Truro, Mass., on Cape Cod and in Florida.

Feds Recommend Rubber Settlement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government proposed settlement recommendations Monday to end a 112-day strike by rubber workers against the nation's four major tire and rubber manufacturers.

Labor Secretary W.J. Usery Jr. and James Searce, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, made the recommendations after 7½ hours of talks Monday between the United Rubber Workers union and Firestone Tire Co., the "target firm" in the negotiations. Usery recessed the talks until Tuesday morning to give the parties time to consider the recommendations, a department spokesman said.

Terms of the proposed settlement were not disclosed. The strike by 60,000 rubber workers began April 21, and has idled 47 plants owned by Firestone, Goodyear, Uniroyal and B.F. Goodrich. The plants account for 60 per cent of the nation's tire production. The talks broke off last Thursday but, under Usery's orders, were renewed Saturday.

Usery cited "widespread economic hardship and human suffering" in ordering marathon talks until an agreement is reached.

The negotiations have bogged down over salaries. The union has been demanding a $1.65-an-hour raise over three years and an unlimited cost-of-living escalator. The industry's last offer was $1.30-an-hour hike over three years and a limited cost-of-living rider.

American Indian Group's Request Made By Arbuckle

Kansas City, Mo. (AP) — A group of American Indians asked Republicans Monday to seat a nonvoting delegation of their people on the floor of the GOP National Convention opening in a week.

The request was presented to the human rights subcommittee of the Platform Committee, which began hearings Monday, by John Twobirds Arbuckle of Lincoln. He is chairman of the American Indian Inter-Tribal Pow-Wow Committee.

The subcommittee told him the request would have to go both to its parent committee and to the Rules Committee. Arbuckle told reporters afterward he intends to follow through.

The group also plans a powwow next week in a Kansas City park, hoping to attract 500 to 1,000 Indians.

Yippies Just Smile, Smoke

Kansas City (UPI) — A dozen Yippies, smoking marijuana and waving flags, opened their Republican National Convention demonstration Monday saying they would avoid clashes with police by smiling and smoking.

"Right now we're getting loaded, smoking, you know, setting up our security system and getting everything arranged," said Dave, a Youth International Party member who refused to give his full name.

Four years ago at the GOP convention in Miami Beach, Fla., 1,000 Yippies were arrested. This year seems destined to be tame by comparison.

Her Life Is Full Of Tragedy

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa (AP) — Jeanette James lay in a hospital bed Monday trying to recall events preceding the crash of a school bus she was driving Friday. Her daughter and two other children died in the crash.

For Mrs. James, 39, of Neola, the death of her daughter was another chapter in a life punctuated by tragedy.

About 12 years ago, a train collided with the small foreign car she was driving near Tucson, Ariz. Her twin children were killed.

A year and a half ago, her husband, Willard, was badly hurt when his vehicle was forced into a bridge guardrail near Underwood.

And last Friday, Mrs. James was at the wheel of the school bus when it careened over a bridge and slid down an embankment.

Her daughter, Lucretia Page James, 8, was one of the three children killed. Twenty-nine other persons were injured.

Mrs. James has three other children: Marti, 6, who was injured in the crash; and two children of a previous marriage, Roy Wachner, 18, who is in the Air Force, and Regan Wachner, 13, who also was injured.

The busload of children and supervisors was bound for a swimming pool at Avoca about 22 miles away.

State troopers have tried to help her recall events leading up to the accident, but she said she remains mystified.

"I just don't remember anything prior to coming to when we were upside down (in the bus)," she said.

"I just don't know. It (the road) was clear ahead of me. There were no cars.

"I just can't put it together." Mrs. James normally would not have been driving last Friday. Her regular day to drive the children to the pool was Tuesday, but she took over for another driver who was on vacation.

Attendants at Mercy Hospital in Council Bluffs list Mrs. James as being in fairly good condition. She has head, jaw and rib injuries.

Bulldozers Begin Canyon Cleanup

Loveland, Colo. (UPI) — Bulldozer operators, inoculated against typhoid and tetanus and warned to watch for buried flood victims, Monday were clearing debris from the flood-ravaged Big Thompson Canyon.

Only 87 bodies have been found since a flash flood roared through the narrow Rocky Mountain canyon July 31, twisting homes, smashing cars and killing an estimated 200 persons. The Red Cross lists 800 as missing.

"Many of the bodies may be buried 10 feet down in the mud," said Larimer County Sheriff Bob Watson. "Some may have been carried to Nebraska and there may be some we will never find."

On Aug. 1, the day after the flood, helicopters began evacuating almost 900 persons from the canyon who had escaped the rushing water by running to high ground and clinging to the rocky walls.

As the Colorado Highway Department began cutting a new road through the canyon, several more bodies were found.

The Army Corps of Engineers, which began debris removal operations near Loveland where the flood had left splintered homes and piles of autos, said it would take an estimated 15 days to clear the 46,000 cubic yards of riverbed below the canyon mouth.

"We are separating the salvageable stuff and will leave the rest in piles where dump trucks will pick it up to take to the county dump," said Mike Baugher, a corps spokesman. "Autos and auto parts will be taken to another location for identification."

U.S., Pakistan Seek Pact

Teheran, Iran — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said Monday the United States and Pakistan had agreed to seek a compromise that would prevent a confrontation over Pakistan's plans to build a French-designed nuclear fuel-making plant. Kissinger said after several hours of talks, Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto had consented to work out a formula that would insure that Pakistan would not be able to divert nuclear material into nuclear explosives.

UMW Orders Return

Washington — The executive board of the United Mine Workers, in a move implicitly critical of Arnold A. Miller, the union's president, voted Monday to give a tough back-to-work order to 100,000 coal miners who for three weeks have not heeded Miller's pleas that they end a costly wildcat strike.

Kearns Profiteering Charged

Washington — The Justice Department filed suit Monday against Henry Kearns, former head of the government's Export-Import Bank, asserting that he had made a $325,000 profit from a stock sale made possible by his government position. The civil complaint in Federal District Court here also charged Don P. Bostwick, former executive vice president of the bank, with the same offense, involving a profit of about $26,000.

Connally May Head Team

Washington — President Ford may appoint John B. Connally chairman of his election campaign if he chooses someone other than the former Texas governor as his running mate, well-placed officials said Monday. The proposal has the support of Rogers C.B. Morton, the current chairman of the President Ford Committee, and it has been proposed to the President by several allies who are concerned that a Ford-Connally ticket would give the Democratic Party an easy target for Watergate rhetoric in the November election campaign.

House Passes Postcard Bill But Deletes Mail-To-All Part

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House rushed through a postcard voter registration bill at Jimmy Carter's request Monday but knocked out a provision for mailing the postcards to every American household.

The bill was passed 239-147. Nebraska's Republican Reps. John McCollister, Virginia Smith and Charles Thone voted on the losing side.

The bill's floor manager, House Administration Chairman Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J., said deletion of the provision for mailing postcards to some 150 million voting-age Americans would "destroy the legislation."

But backers of the move said it would save $25 million in mailing costs. Distribution of the postcards for registering will be left up to the states. The plan to mail them to everyone was defeated 255 to 130.

Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter asked the House two weeks ago to act quickly so people could register to vote by postcard for the November election.

House Speaker Carl Albert estimated Democrats would get 75 per cent of the new voters signing up.

Republicans and some Democrats denounced the bill as an election-year dirty trick and said it would open the way to vast voter fraud through filing of postcards for non-existent voters.

Thompson told newsmen the bill will help people in states that already have postcard registration by automatically registering them for November's election.

He said the postcards also will be available for distribution by voting organizations for registering voters for this election.

Thompson said this includes organized labor, which is more likely to use the postcards to sign up Democrats — which some Republicans had charged was the primary purpose of the bill in the first place.

Thompson said the provision for mailing the postcards to every American household, which the House knocked out, had been essential to the bill to prevent the charge that it was aimed at such special interest groups.

Smith Says Bill 'Fraud Invitation'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Virginia Smith told her colleagues on the House floor Monday that postcard voter registration is nothing more than "an open invitation to fraud."

"The shortcomings of this bill are many," Mrs. Smith said. "It has far too great a cost, it duplicates existing registration efforts and it's an open invitation to fraud."

"All of us have heard of past voter registration abuses which have included many long-buried individuals along with assorted vacant lots regularly voting for candidates of their choice," she said.

Davidson Foresees Problems, Expenses

Universal postcard voter registration would mean many problems and more expense, according to Lancaster County Election Commissioner Bill Davidson.

That method of registration would cause problems in verification of oaths and duplicate bookkeeping, and would open the possibility of fraud, Davidson said.

The government also would have to absorb the additional cost of postcards in and out for each vote, he said.

Transport Plane Crashes, 10 Die

$104 Billion For Defense OK'd By Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed a $104-billion defense appropriation bill Monday, deferring $1 billion for purchase of the first three B1 bombers until after next Feb. 1.

The 82-6 vote sent the bill to a conference with the House to resolve differences. One issue to be settled is the timing of the B1 bomber purchases. The House voted $1 billion for initial orders for a planned $22 billion fleet of 244 planes without restriction as to timing.

The Senate went along with the recommendation of its appropriations committee that commitment of any procurement money be postponed until after the next presidential inauguration. This would give the new President a chance to review latest prototype test data and decide whether the new supersonic plane is worth the cost.

The Senate-passed bill is $3.9 billion less than President Ford's budget proposal and $1.4 billion under the total approved by the House.

The Senate total, however, is $11.6 billion more than was appropriated for the 1976 fiscal year ended June 30.

Before final action, the Senate turned down amendments to delete $350 million for advance procurement items for a fourth Nimtz class nuclear powered aircraft carrier and $75 million for procurement of 360 non-nuclear Lance surface-to-surface missiles.

Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., who proposed to delete the nuclear carrier money, urged that it be delayed at least one year pending completion of a National Security Council study of the future role of aircraft carriers in naval warfare. The amendment was defeated 50 to 35.

Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said the new carrier is designed to replace the Midway in 1984 to maintain a 12-carrier force.

The Senate bill includes $6.2 billion for Navy shipbuilding, including funds for one new Trident submarine, three nuclear-powered attack submarines and eight guided-missile frigates.

Other procurement items in the bill include $1.4 billion for 108 F15A fighter aircraft.

Gas Hike OK If Refund Allowed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A three-judge federal appeals court ruled Monday that natural gas producers could raise interstate gas prices immediately if they agreed to refund any money later found to have been unlawfully collected.

Producers who refuse to include the refund provision in tariffs filed with the Federal Power Commission were barred from raising the price of interstate-shipped gas.

The unanimous ruling by the U.S. Circuit Court for the District of Columbia was hailed by consumer groups as a victory. Those groups had asked the federal court to bar the price hike from going into effect until the Federal Power Commission, which had set the new rates on July 27, finalized its order.

Thompson told newsmen the bill will help people in states that already have postcard registration by automatically registering them for November's election.

He said the postcards also will be available for distribution by voting organizations for registering voters for this election.

Thompson said this includes organized labor, which is more likely to use the postcards to sign up Democrats — which some Republicans had charged was the primary purpose of the bill in the first place.

Thompson said the provision for mailing the postcards to every American household, which the House knocked out, had been essential to the bill to prevent the charge that it was aimed at such special interest groups.

Smith Says Bill 'Fraud Invitation'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Virginia Smith told her colleagues on the House floor Monday that postcard voter registration is nothing more than "an open invitation to fraud."

"The shortcomings of this bill are many," Mrs. Smith said. "It has far too great a cost, it duplicates existing registration efforts and it's an open invitation to fraud."

"All of us have heard of past voter registration abuses which have included many long-buried individuals along with assorted vacant lots regularly voting for candidates of their choice," she said.

Davidson Foresees Problems, Expenses

Universal postcard voter registration would mean many problems and more expense, according to Lancaster County Election Commissioner Bill Davidson.

That method of registration would cause problems in verification of oaths and duplicate bookkeeping, and would open the possibility of fraud, Davidson said.

The government also would have to absorb the additional cost of postcards in and out for each vote, he said.

$104 Billion For Defense OK'd By Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed a $104-billion defense appropriation bill Monday, deferring $1 billion for purchase of the first three B1 bombers until after next Feb. 1.

The 82-6 vote sent the bill to a conference with the House to resolve differences. One issue to be settled is the timing of the B1 bomber purchases. The House voted $1 billion for initial orders for a planned $22 billion fleet of 244 planes without restriction as to timing.

The Senate went along with the recommendation of its appropriations committee that commitment of any procurement money be postponed until after the next presidential inauguration. This would give the new President a chance to review latest prototype test data and decide whether the new supersonic plane is worth the cost.

The Senate-passed bill is $3.9 billion less than President Ford's budget proposal and $1.4 billion under the total approved by the House.

The Senate total, however, is $11.6 billion more than was appropriated for the 1976 fiscal year ended June 30.

Before final action, the Senate turned down amendments to delete $350 million for advance procurement items for a fourth Nimitz class nuclear powered aircraft carrier and $75 million for procurement of 360 non-nuclear Lance surface-to-surface missiles.

Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., who proposed to delete the nuclear carrier money, urged that it be delayed at least one year pending completion of a National Security Council study of the future role of aircraft carriers in naval warfare. The amendment was defeated 50 to 35.

Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said the new carrier is designed to replace the Midway in 1984 to maintain a 12-carrier force.

The Senate bill includes $6.2 billion for Navy shipbuilding, including funds for one new Trident submarine, three nuclear-powered attack submarines and eight guided-missile frigates.

Other procurement items in the bill include $1.4 billion for 108 F15A fighter aircraft.

Gas Hike OK If Refund Allowed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A three-judge federal appeals court ruled Monday that natural gas producers could raise interstate gas prices immediately if they agreed to refund any money later found to have been unlawfully collected.

Producers who refuse to include the refund provision in tariffs filed with the Federal Power Commission were barred from raising the price of interstate-shipped gas.

The unanimous ruling by the U.S. Circuit Court for the District of Columbia was hailed by consumer groups as a victory. Those groups had asked the federal court to bar the price hike from going into effect until the Federal Power Commission, which had set the new rates on July 27, finalized its order.

Will They Fight Or Switch?

By KINGSBURY SMITH
WASHINGTON — Concerned that the Reagan forces may attempt by tactical maneuvers at the Republican National Convention to prevent the first-ballot nomination of President Ford, House Minority Leader John J. Rhodes is taking steps to try to thwart such a move.

Rhodes, who will serve as permanent chairman of the convention and who is a close friend of President Ford, wants the Rules Committee to declare that those delegates who are bound by state laws to support a particular candidate cannot switch or abstain from voting on the first ballot.

He also wants the Rules Committee to advise him what action he can take against delegates who fail to vote as committed.

He has further requested the Library of Congress to prepare for him a report on state primary laws and on what power he will possess by precedent or otherwise to rule against delegates who switch or abstain on the first ballot.

Rhodes is particularly concerned about delegates who are committed but are not prohibited by their state laws from switching even on the first ballot, and the uncommitted delegates, presently estimated to number 124.

With the latest news media survey counts indicating that President Ford is only 22 votes short of the 1,130 required for the nomination, it is thought in Ford circles that Reagan realizes he has no chance of getting the nomination on the first ballot if all the delegates vote.

Therefore, the Ford people suspect the Reagan forces will try to persuade delegates committed to the President by the primary votes but who would prefer Reagan, and uncommitted delegates who lean towards the latter, to abstain from voting on the first ballot.

The Reagan forces are known to feel that if the President doesn't get the nomination on the first ballot, a substantial number of those committed to him would switch to his California rival on the second vote.

The Ford camp's suspicion that the Reaganites will try to promote abstentions at the convention was strengthened by a statement John P. Sears, Reagan's campaign manager, made earlier this week in an interview with the Washington Post.

While disclaiming any intention of opposing a so-called "justice" resolution (adopted by the Republican National Committee) requiring that delegation votes be cast in accordance with state laws, Sears said he did not rule out the possibility of abstentions by uncommitted delegates and committed delegates not prohibited by state laws from switching.

The argument the Reagan forces are apparently using with these delegates is that they should abstain from voting in order to force President Ford to disclose before his nomination who would be his running mate.

This argument would, of course, collapse if the President makes the announcement before the first ballot.

Even so, Rep. Rhodes foresees the possibility that the Reagan forces will still try to persuade committed delegates to switch or abstain on the first ballot.

If the Rules Committee submits a report to the convention recommending that bound delegates must abide by their state laws and that abstentions will not be allowed, Rhodes wants to know what he can do as the permanent chairman if the report is challenged on the convention floor.

"I want the Rules Committee to tell me what to do," Rhodes said at a luncheon meeting with the writer and several other Washington correspondents.

"If a state delegation abstains, I want to know whether I can declare the balloting for that delegation closed for the duration of the voting on the presidential nomination," he added. "I also want to know what to do if a state unity voting rule is broken."

Rhodes is confident, however, that President Ford will win the nomination on the first ballot.

Seventeen states plus the District of Columbia have laws binding the delegates to vote for the candidate they have been committed to support. A total of 918 Republican delegates are so bound. Some state laws permit committed delegates to break away on the second or later ballots. California, with 167 delegates, is committed for two ballots. Texas, with 100, is committed for four ballots.

In most states with binding primary laws there is no penalty for disregarding them. However, a North Carolina delegate can be sent to jail for two years for violating the commitment. In Arkansas, the delegate can be prohibited from holding state office for five years.

Safety Takes A Back Seat

The church school bus was traveling at a slow rate of speed on a dry blacktop highway. The weather was clear and there was good visibility in all directions. The engineer said the train's whistle was blowing and the flashing lights and bell at the crossing were operating.

"When I saw him head onto the tracks, I gave a hard, long blast and put on the emergency brake," the engineer said. "But there was no way we could stop. When you're going 60 miles an hour, there's not much you can do."

The bus continued to move slowly forward and was squarely on the tracks when the train's engine hit it. The bus was torn apart and nine people, including seven children, died.

That capsule description of the accident at Stratton in southwest Nebraska suggests strongly that the bus driver was completely oblivious of the approaching train. Human error again turned into a tragedy of awful proportions.

Apparently weather and road conditions were perfect, there were no mechanical failures and safety equipment was in working order. But in an instant, nine lives were lost.

The Stratton accident, because of the extent of the carnage, serves to emphasize what is happening on Nebraska highways these days.

After two or so years of a reduction in the highway kill rate — due to a lowered speed limit, a temporary reduction in miles driven and safety awareness which can be traced in part to an aggressive state program — highway fatalities are again on the upswing.

Encouraged by the actions of the Legislature, Nebraskans are scoffing at the 55 m.p.h. speed limit. But we are no different than most other Americans; the lowered speed limit has become a national joke to be ignored at will.

So as motorists resume speed, ignore the law, fail to take elementary safety precautions such as wearing a helmet while motorcycling and in general concentrate on just about everything except the road ahead, the fatality figures mount up, as does the grief.

Some lives were saved over the past two years but it would appear that conservation effort was temporary only, unless motorists are jarred back to reality.

The Two-Front War

This week's preliminary sparring in Kansas City over rules, credentials and a platform may offer some indication of the intensity of the struggle which will result in the nomination of a GOP standard-bearer next week.

Advance parties for both the Ford camp and the Reagan camp have arrived at the battlefield. As Hubert Humphrey would say, "hold on to your hats and here we go."

One does not envy those who must put on the appearance, at least, of evenhandedness in refereeing the disputes which are bound to come up. The Republicans during the next few days may be acting like Democrats used to act and it may take heroic efforts to keep the party's house in order.

And while operatives from each camp are scrambling for strategic advantage during the pre-convention meetings this week, President Ford is keeping his own counsel as to his choice of a running mate should he prevail, while challenger Ronald Reagan and some of his supporters have opened up a two-front war in the battle for the nomination, with the second spot on the ballot figuring prominently.

Reagan, of course, announced his "unity" team two weeks ago. Ever since, he has been trying to use his choice of Richard Schweiker to persuade uncommitted delegates and those whose support of Ford is soft to shift to the Reagan column. The liberal Schweiker should help to deliver some liberal and moderate GOP delegate support to him, Reagan figured.

Meanwhile, back at the ranch, some of Reagan's hard-core conservative supporters are trying to shore up sagging conservative backing by suggesting that a move will be made to dump Schweiker once Reagan's nomination is secured. So Schweiker is pressed into service on both fronts — on one as a drawing card and on the other as intended victim.

There is no mistaking that Reagan could gain the nomination, although Ford is still the favorite.

The various elements supporting Reagan are playing both ends against the middle. It is desperate, confusing and must have Schweiker wondering why and how he ever got into such a mess, but it could work — for Reagan, for Schweiker, who knows?

TOM WICKER

NEW YORK — Stonewalling is still with us, Watergate fans. In the latest example President Ford, with important help from a federal court, has managed to stop in its tracks a House subcommittee's investigation into so-called national security wiretapping.

What's more, if Ford's position prevails in further court challenges, any president would be able to nullify congressional subpoena by claiming that congressional access to the materials sought would be too dangerous to the national security.

The House subcommittee, chaired by Rep. John Moss of California, issued a subpoena in July to American Telephone and Telegraph Co., demanding its "national security request letters." These are letters sent by the Federal Bureau of Investigation to the telephone company, asking it to install a wiretap on a person or phone for which the attorney general has approved a warrantless national-security wiretap.

Such warrantless taps for domestic purposes have been outlawed by the courts since 1972, but are still permitted for purposes of gathering foreign intelligence. The Moss subcommittee wanted to assure itself and Congress that warrantless taps were, in fact, being so restricted and to take further legislative steps if they were not.

RON HENDREN

WASHINGTON — Partly because very little meaningful work is left to them to do, freshman members of Congress are constantly thinking up novel ways to attract the attention of their elders, to get into the papers, and generally to be thought of as more than just one of the pack.

These antics are sometimes amusing, usually harmless enough, and generally received on Capitol Hill with patience and good humor. Then, once in a while, somebody goes overboard, like young Rep. Larry Pressler (R-S.D.).

Pressler is suing his colleagues. All of them. He wants the courts to force Congress to exempt itself from statutes permitting government workers to receive more or less automatic cost of living salary increases. The Constitution, he says, requires that members of Congress take a vote before their pay can go up.

His is not the way to win friends and influence party leaders on the Hill, but never mind, it is getting him attention, and as some politician once said, "The

MARQUIS CHILDS

SAN FRANCISCO — Here in Reagan land it is widely conceded that the Reagan-for-President boom has gone out.

The Richard Schweiker play that Reagan's too, too clever strategists calculated to fool not only the Republicans but wavering moderates looked so much like crude expediency that it has blown up in the candidate's face.

I have talked to once-faithful Republicans out here who are fearful that Reagan's month-after-month attack on the Ford administration has made it difficult if not impossible for President Ford, as the nominee, to pull out of the Republican ditch and overcome the present Carter lead.

Reagan has not only pushed Ford to the right but he has blurred the image of an incumbent president in such a way that Ford has been unable to take advantage of the economic recovery and other favorable portents.

As for Schweiker, aside from his liberal voting record, he was a curious choice. A pleasant, agreeable man, he has never exerted any real influence either in the Senate or in the administration. In any event, as the so-clever strategists must

Ford And The Art Of Stonewall

But there were obvious security problems in the AT&T subpoena, and committee lawyers entered into three weeks of negotiations with the FBI and Justice Department lawyers to surmount them. They obtained the following agreement:

Committee staff men would be allowed to examine in the FBI offices the memoranda on which the attorney general had based a decision to approve warrantless taps in 1972 and 1975. These memoranda would be unexpurgated in the cases of some domestic tape in place in 1972, but in the cases of foreign intelligence taps would be limited to a statistically balanced sample from the two specified years. The committee reserved the right to inspect similar documents from other years if necessary, and the FBI insisted on withholding the names of "sources and targets."

As a further method of "verification," three committee staff members with top security clearances were to inspect on FBI premises another "reasonable sample" of memoranda on foreign intelligence taps, this sample to be unexpurgated. The committee reasoned that this procedure might give it sufficient information for its purposes, and should at least be tried before the subpoena was pressed.

But when Moss sent a written version of the agreement to the Justice Department, Director George Bush of the Central Intelligence Agency objected immediately. Ford then rejected the agreement, and proposed major changes. He would have eliminated the committee's right to examine documents other than those of 1972 and 1975, ordered further expurgations in those it would see, and made even that much access subject to the committee's agreement to withdraw its subpoena against AT&T.

The committee considered the letter demand, if accepted, tantamount to giving the executive branch the right to determine what information it could have. When Moss refused, Ford went into federal court, claiming that the subpoena posed "an unacceptable risk" to national security. In July 30, Judge Oliver Gasch issued a permanent restraining order against enforcement of the subpoena, the Moss committee is appealing.

What is Ford stonewalling? The "unacceptable risk" he claimed in court was not apparent to the FBI and Justice Department officials who made the original agreement with Moss. The only bad thing you people in the press can do to me is to ignore me." Pressler — his pomp sheet says he was a Rhodes Scholar and that he read law at Harvard — somehow persuaded U.S. District Court Judge Gerhart Gesell to name a three-judge panel to hear the case, and that opens the door for a direct appeal to the Supreme Court. Pressler is in the big time.

Freshman Sues Colleagues

The problem is, his case is virtually devoid of merit, at least from a legal standpoint. Oh, it's a popular enough cause, a bandwagon calculated to hold a lot of eager climbers on who think, heck, yes, if the rascals are gonna raise their pay, make em vote on it. And probably they should. Each time. Even for small increments to adjust for cost of living increases.

But there's nothing in the Constitution that says they must, and try as he might in 31 legal-sized pages, Larry Pressler comes up with not a shred of good evidence to support his case. The Constitution says quite simply that senators and congressmen "... shall receive a Compensation for their Services, to be ascertained by Law, and paid out of the Treasury of the United States."

That's all it says about congressional salaries. In arguing that "ascertained by Law" really means a separate vote on every increase, Pressler doesn't just strain legal logic, he destroys it.

What is surprising is that Judge Gesell, a hard-nosed jurist highly respected for his good sense and command of the law, ever agreed to set up a panel to hear the case. Actions similar to Pressler's have been brought over the past two years, and all have failed. This one, too, should have been dismissed.

Perhaps the Judiciary thinks it will have a little fun at Congress' expense. Judges have been complaining for years about the need to have their own salaries increased, and Congress hasn't come through. Merely by agreeing to hear the case, the court draws attention to Congress' own pay raises. That creates a little excitement in a dull Washington summer, raises people's ire, and gets Larry Pressler's name in The Washington Post.

But it makes dreadful law.

Ruminating In Reagan-Land

convictions he will build around a Carter administration.

It may not be so easy to coast. Already troubling questions are arising that cannot be readily ignored. One concerns his 26-year-old pollster and a principal advisor, Patrick H. Caddell.

Some thorough reporting by The New York Times has shown the part that Caddell played in setting the pattern for one of his private clients, Westinghouse, in fighting the environmentalists' drive to curb the spread of nuclear power plants as unsafe.

This is a hot issue in California where an initiative proposal to limit nuclear power was on the June 8 primary ballot. It was defeated by a considerable majority.

In a memorandum prepared for Westinghouse, a member of the Atomic Industry Forum, Caddell proposed a national unified campaign conducted by professional political campaign technicians.

He argued the need for an emotional approach stressing the unemployment and higher living costs that would result if the nuclear power development is checked.

Besides Westinghouse, Caddell has 30 clients including Exxon, Sears, Aetna Life, the Federated Department Stores and Saudi Arabia. Paid $1,500 a month by the Carter campaign and $20,000 a year by the Democratic National Committee, Caddell has said his gross income is more than $1 million a year. There appears to be no question about the continuing loyalty to the pollster-adviser and the candidate.

But the environmentalists are among the most issue-oriented who would normally be expected to vote Democratic. It is in this category that Carter's support is most lukewarm.

They will take a dim view of a close adviser who counsels one of the most powerful corporations in the nuclear field on how to defeat their aim of curbing the proliferation of nuclear power plants.

It will be tempting to coast. There is a model here in this state in Gov. Edmund G. (Jerry) Brown who coasted into the governorship and used the same kind of guide in the presidential primaries he entered. Whether it will work on a national scale is the tough question Carter confronts.

Reagan, of course, announced his "unity" team two weeks ago. Ever since, he has been trying to use his choice of Richard Schweiker to persuade uncommitted delegates and those whose support of Ford is soft to shift to the Reagan column. The liberal Schweiker should help to deliver some liberal and moderate GOP delegate support to him, Reagan figured.

Meanwhile, back at the ranch, some of Reagan's hard-core conservative supporters are trying to shore up sagging conservative backing by suggesting that a move will be made to dump Schweiker once Reagan's nomination is secured. So Schweiker is pressed into service on both fronts — on one as a drawing card and on the other as intended victim.

There is no mistaking that Reagan could gain the nomination, although Ford is still the favorite.

The various elements supporting Reagan are playing both ends against the middle. It is desperate, confusing and must have Schweiker wondering why and how he ever got into such a mess, but it could work — for Reagan; for Schweiker, who knows?

TOM WICKER

NEW YORK — Stonewalling is still with us. Watergate fans. In the latest example President Ford, with important help from a federal court, has managed to stop in its tracks a House subcommittee's investigation into so-called national security wiretapping.

What's more, if Ford's position prevails in further court challenges, any president would be able to nullify congressional subpoena by claiming that congressional access to the materials sought would be too dangerous to the national security.

The House subcommittee, chaired by Rep. John Moss of California, issued a subpoena in July to American Telephone and Telegraph Co., demanding its "national security request letters." These are letters sent by the Federal Bureau of Investigation to the telephone company, asking it to install a wiretap on a person or phone for which the attorney general has approved a warrantless national security wiretap.

Such warrantless taps for domestic purposes have been outlawed by the courts since 1972, but are still permitted for purposes of gathering foreign intelligence. The Moss subcommittee wanted to assure itself and Congress that warrantless taps were, in fact, being so restricted and to take further legislative steps if they were not.

RON HENDREN

WASHINGTON — Partly because very little meaningful work is left to them to do, freshman members of Congress are constantly thinking up novel ways to attract the attention of their elders, to get into the papers, and generally to be thought of as more than just one of the pack.

These antics are sometimes amusing, usually harmless enough, and generally received on Capitol Hill with patience and good humor. Then, once in a while, somebody goes overboard, like young Rep. Larry Pressler (R-S.D.).

Pressler is suing his colleagues. All of them. He wants the courts to force Congress to exempt itself from statutes permitting government workers to receive more or less automatic cost of living salary increases. The Constitution, he says, requires that members of Congress take a vote before their pay can go up.

His is not the way to win friends and influence party leaders on the Hill, but never mind, it is getting him attention, and as some politician once said, "The

MARQUIS CHILDS

SAN FRANCISCO — Here in Reagan land it is widely conceded that the Reagan-for-President boom has gone bust.

The Richard Schweiker play that Reagan's too, too clever strategists calculated to fool not only the Republicans but wavering moderates looked so much like crude expediency that it has blown up in the candidate's face.

I have talked to once-faithful Republicans out here who are fearful that Reagan's month-after-month attack on the Ford administration has made it difficult if not impossible for President Ford, as the nominee, to pull out of the Republican ditch and overcome the present Carter lead.

Reagan has not only pushed Ford to the right but he has blurred the image of an incumbent president in such a way that Ford has been unable to take advantage of the economic recovery and other favorable portents.

As for Schweiker, aside from his liberal voting record, he was a curious choice. A pleasant, agreeable man, he has never exerted any real influence either in the Senate or in the administration. In any event, as the so-clever strategists must

Ford And The Art Of Stonewall

But there were obvious security problems in the AT&T subpoena, and committee lawyers entered into three weeks of negotiations with the FBI and Justice Department lawyers to surmount them. They obtained the following agreement:

Committee staff men would be allowed to examine in the FBI offices the memoranda on which the attorney general had based a decision to approve warrantless taps in 1972 and 1975. These memoranda would be unexpurgated in the cases of some domestic tape in place in 1972, but in the cases of foreign intelligence taps would be limited to a statistically balanced sample from the two specified years. The committee reserved the right to inspect similar documents from other years if necessary, and the FBI insisted on withholding the names of "sources and targets."

As a further method of "verification," three committee staff members with top security clearances were to inspect on FBI premises another "reasonable sample" of memoranda on foreign intelligence taps, this sample to be unexpurgated. The committee reasoned that this procedure might give it sufficient information for its purposes, and should at least be tried before the subpoena was pressed.

But when Moss sent a written version of the agreement to the Justice Department, Director George Bush of the Central Intelligence Agency objected immediately. Ford then rejected the agreement, and proposed major changes. He would have eliminated the committee's right to examine documents other than those of 1972 and 1975, ordered further expurgations in those it would see, and made even that much access subject to the committee's agreement to withdraw its subpoena against AT&T.

The committee considered the letter demand, if accepted, tantamount to giving the executive branch the right to determine what information it could have. When Moss refused, Ford went into federal court, claiming that the subpoena posed "an unacceptable risk" to national security. In July 30, Judge Oliver Gasch issued a permanent restraining order against enforcement of the subpoena, the Moss committee is appealing.

What is Ford stonewalling? The "unacceptable risk" he claimed in court was not apparent to the FBI and Justice Department officials who made the original agreement with Moss. The only bad thing you people in the press can do to me is to ignore me." Pressler — his poop sheet says he was a Rhodes Scholar and that he read law at Harvard — somehow persuaded U.S. District Court Judge Gerhart Gesell to name a three-judge panel to hear the case, and that opens the door for a direct appeal to the Supreme Court. Pressler is in the big time.

Freshman Sues Colleagues

The problem is, his case is virtually devoid of merit, at least from a legal standpoint. Oh, it's a popular enough cause, a bandwagon calculated to hold a lot of eager climbers-on who think, heck, yes, if the rascals are gonna raise their pay, make em vote on it. And probably they should. Each time. Even for small increments to adjust for cost of living increases.

But there's nothing in the Constitution that says they must, and try as he might in 31 legal-sized pages, Larry Pressler comes up with not a shred of good evidence to support his case. The Constitution says quite simply that senators and congressmen "... shall receive a Compensation for Their Services, to be ascertained by Law, and paid out of the Treasury of the United States."

That's all it says about congressional salaries. In arguing that "ascertained by Law" really means a separate vote on every increase, Pressler doesn't just strain legal logic, he destroys it.

What is surprising is that Judge Gesell, a hard-nosed jurist highly respected for his good sense and command of the law, ever agreed to set up a panel to hear the case. Actions similar to Pressler's have been brought over the past two years, and all have failed. This one, too, should have been dismissed.

Perhaps the Judiciary thinks it will have a little fun at Congress' expense. Judges have been complaining for years about the need to have their own salaries increased, and Congress hasn't come through. Merely by agreeing to hear the case, the court draws attention to Congress' own pay raises. That creates a little excitement in a dull Washington summer, raises people's ire, and gets Larry Pressler's name in The Washington Post.

But it makes dreadful law.

Ruminating In Reagan-Land

convictions he will build around a Carter administration.

It may not be so easy to coast. Already troubling questions are arising that cannot be readily ignored. One concerns his 26-year-old pollster and a principal advisor, Patrick H. Caddell.

Some thorough reporting by The New York Times has shown the part that Caddell played in setting the pattern for one of his private clients, Westinghouse, in fighting the environmentalists' drive to curb the spread of nuclear power plants as unsafe.

This is a hot issue in California where an initiative proposal to limit nuclear power was on the June 8 primary ballot. It was defeated by a considerable majority.

In a memorandum prepared for Westinghouse, a member of the Atomic Industry Forum, Caddell proposed a national unified campaign conducted by professional political campaign technicians.

He argued the need for an emotional approach stressing the unemployment and higher living costs that would result if the nuclear power development is checked.

Besides Westinghouse, Caddell has 30 clients including Exxon, Sears, Aetna Life, the Federated Department Stores and Saudi Arabia. Paid $1,500 a month by the Carter campaign and $20,000 a year by the Democratic National Committee, Caddell has said his gross income is more than $1 million a year. There appears to be no question about the continuing loyalty between the pollster-adviser and the candidate.

But the environmentalists are among the most issue-oriented who would normally be expected to vote Democratic. It is in this category that Carter's support is most lukewarm.

They will take a dim view of a close adviser who counsels one of the most powerful corporations in the nuclear field on how to defeat their aim of curbing the proliferation of nuclear power plants.

It will be tempting to coast. There is a model here in this state in Gov. Edmund G. (Jerry) Brown who coasted into the governorship and used the same kind of glide in the presidential primaries he entered. Whether it will work on a national scale is the tough question Carter confronts.

Topsoil Moisture Continues To Fall

By The Associated Press
Topsoil moisture supplies on Nebraska farms continued to decline last week and rain is needed to improve the over-all grain prospects, the State Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said Monday.
Dryland crops especially need more rain, the service said in its weekly crop-weather report.
Topsoil moisture is now short in 68% of the counties and adequate in 30%.
Two per cent reported top soil moisture surplus.
Subsoil supplies improved, but only 20% of the counties reported them as adequate.
Irrigated corn is in good condition with 95% of the crop silked to date, the same as last year. About 85% of the dryland corn crop also has silked the same as a year ago.
Sorghum and soybeans declined last week and the service reported the crops in "fair to good" condition.

Sorghum is behind normal with 70% headed, 5% less than a year ago. Soybeans are 80% podded, up from 65% at this time last year. Scattered rains last week helped revive some pastures, but many livestock producers are using supplemental feed for cattle.
Rainfall throughout Nebraska during the past week included:
Chadron 06 North Platte 176
Grand Island 48 Scottsbluff 14
Norfolk 01 Valentine 58
Precipitation, via sections, received since the beginning of the growing season, April 1, as compared to longtime averages follows:

At Least One Optometrist Offers Poor Special Deal

In Monday's Column A, a paragraph said none of Lincoln's Optometrists are offering special services for low income consumers.
Actually, at least one optometrist, Dr. Charles H. Coren, with an office at 5640 South St., gives eye examinations and glasses at his cost for materials. He works through referrals from Open Door Health Clinic and other agencies.
He still requires the payment in advance for his cost for eyeglasses when they're necessary.

Crash Claims Cyclist

Plainview (UPI) — Apan L. Fulton, 33 Plainview, was killed Sunday in a motorcycle-pickup truck accident at an intersection in this northeast Nebraska community, the State Patrol reported Monday.
The patrol said Fulton was driving a motorcycle that collided with a pickup truck driven by Harry Gustman, Plainview. The patrol said Gustman was turning left when the accident occurred about 5 p.m. Sunday.

Gage $4 Million Budget OK'd

Beatrice (UPI) — The Gage County Board of Supervisors Monday approved a 1976-77 fiscal year budget of more than $4 million. The board said the budget will keep the county's mill levy at about 14.26 mills, which is just below the 14.28 mill limit. The budget represents an increase over the 1975-76 budget of more than $600,000.

Charges Filed In Fatal Crash

Omaha (AP) — Wolfgang Liedtke, 28, Omaha, has been charged with felony motor vehicle homicide in connection with an accident last Friday in which a Tekamah youth died. Raymond P. Rasmussen, 18, a passenger, was killed when the car Liedtke was driving hit a parked truck and then a metal utility pole, police said. Liedtke and two other passengers told police they had left an Omaha bar just before the accident, officials said.

Branch Arraigned In Shooting Case

Gering — Michael Branch, 22, of Scottsbluff was arraigned in Scotts Bluff District Court here Monday on charges of shooting with intent to wound in the early Sunday shooting of Terry Brubaker, 18, also of Scottsbluff. A preliminary hearing for Branch has not as yet been set, according to the Scotts Bluff County attorney's office. Brubaker was hospitalized in Scottsbluff with a gunshot wound in the chest. He was listed in stable condition.

Phone Info Centers Expanding

Omaha (AP) — Two telephone information centers are being expanded for the beginning of court-ordered school integration next month. The volume of calls is expected to increase at both the Omaha School District's Rumor Control office and the telephone information service of the Concerned Citizens for Omaha.

Nebraska Youngsters Take A Look At Their Future

By J. L. SCHEIDT
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska youths are taking a look at their future.

That's the consensus of more than 300 young people participating in the 16th annual Nebraska Conference of Youth in Lincoln this week.

"We're not going to be youth forever," said conference cochairman Ann Gradwohl of Lincoln. "We've got to look at what we have in common, and where we're going."

With that theme in mind, the young people took a look at education, technology, government, laws and social attitudes with seeds planted by a panel of "experts" and discussion sessions keyed to the main issues.

According to Dr. Joseph Lipson of the University of Mid-America, Monday's first speaker, "What you don't know puts you at the mercy of those who do."

"Education," he said, "is preparation for unknown future events." Training is education for a "reasonably predictable future" and technology is "the way you do the things you do."

Dr. Eldon Heskett, director of student services for the Lincoln Public Schools, said youths should have some say in the shaping of their future education. They should be able to fit what they want to learn into their curriculum.

Dr. Ron Brandt, associate superintendent for curriculum in the Lincoln schools, expanded the idea by noting that Lincoln students have the option to design "about two-thirds of their high school education." That freedom of choice is used to make education "preparation for life," he said.

"Nationally, we're finding students are more polished in a variety of areas, but really lack depth in their education," Brandt said, hence the demands for "more basics."

Because of that, Lincoln schools are taking a hard look at the "purpose and responsibilities of the schools in the life of the student," he added.

Brandt, who is preparing a policy statement for the schools to define their stand, said education has to provide six things: students have to get a job and earn an income; they have to manage that income; maintain their own physical and mental health, while obeying laws and using community resources; most importantly, "we have to teach you how to establish and pursue your goals," Brandt said.

State Treasurer Frank Marsh talked about Third World politics and the importance of a free exchange of resources between the United States and foreign governments.

"Maybe we could trade our knowledge of center pivot irrigation for their knowledge of tropical agriculture, and the ability to grow corn year-round instead of just during a specific season," Marsh said.

Lancaster County Commissioner Bruce Hamilton explained the pros and cons of creeping socialism. He cautioned that, in a system based mainly on people, people who "are far less than perfect," one should be cautious of anyone who claims to have the ultimate solution to the world's problems.

"Much of what each of us is today, is pure luck," he said. The American way should still be based on the premise of giving everyone a "shot at the good life."

Crete Mayor Norm Behrens cautioned, "We are becoming a society of educated idiots. We've lost all feel for the application of good common sense."

He noted the national debt is about $600 billion, adding that is but one of the many problems "our generation is passing on to your generation."

Three Join State Hall Of Fame

Taking advantage of a special dispensation from the Nebraska Legislature, the Nebraska Hall of Fame Commission Monday named three new members to the state Hall of Fame.

The three include:

- Grace Abbott (1878-1939) — Social worker; chief of U.S. Children's Bureau, 1921-34; consultant to League of Nations; born, Grand Island.
- Roscoe Pound (1870-1964) — Legal scholar, professor of law at several universities and dean of Harvard Law School, 1916-1936; born, Lincoln.
- Mari Sandoz (1901-1966) — Author of books about the Old West; works include "Cheyenne Autumn," "Crazy Horse," "Old Jules"; born, Sheridan County.

Normally, the commission names only one new Hall of Fame member every two years. J. Sterling Morton was previously named for the 1975-76 period.

During the last session of the Legislature, however, the passage of LB670 authorized the commission to name up to four new members during 1976, in honor of the U.S. bicentennial.

During the balloting, Hartley Burr Alexander fell one vote short of the four required for selection. Alexander was a philosopher/poet.

Among the 13 nominees, others receiving votes were Indian artist/writer Susette LaFlesche, military leader and

Nebraska Youngsters Take A Look At Their Future

By J. L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska youths are taking a look at their future.

That's the consensus of more than 300 young people participating in the 16th annual Nebraska Conference of Youth in Lincoln this week.

"We're not going to be youth forever," said conference cochairman Ann Gradwohl of Lincoln. "We've got to look at what we have in common, and where we're going."

With that theme in mind, the young people took a look at education, technology, government, laws and social attitudes with seeds planted by a panel of "experts" and discussion sessions keyed to the main issues.

According to Dr. Joseph Lipson of the University of Mid-America, Monday's first speaker, "What you don't know puts you at the mercy of those who do."

"Education," he said, "is preparation for unknown future events." Training is education for a "reasonably predictable future" and technology is "the way you do the things you do."

Dr. Eldon Heskett, director of student services for the Lincoln Public Schools, said youths should have some say in the shaping of their future education. They should be able to fit what they want to learn into their curriculum.

Dr. Ron Brandt, associate superintendent for curriculum in the Lincoln schools, expanded the idea by noting that Lincoln students have the option to design "about two-thirds of their high school education." That freedom of choice is used to make education "preparation for life," he said.

"Nationally, we're finding students are more polished in a variety of areas, but really lack depth in their education," Brandt said, hence the demands for "more basics."

Because of that, Lincoln schools are taking a hard look at the "purpose and responsibilities of the schools in the life of the student," he added.

Brandt, who is preparing a policy statement for the schools to define their stand, said education has to provide six things: students have to get a job and earn an income; they have to manage that income; maintain their own physical and mental health, while obeying laws and using community resources; most importantly, "we have to teach you how to establish and pursue your goals," Brandt said.

State Treasurer Frank Marsh talked about Third World politics and the importance of a free exchange of resources between the United States and foreign governments.

"Maybe we could trade our knowledge of center pivot irrigation for their knowledge of tropical agriculture, and the ability to grow corn year-round instead of just during a specific season," Marsh said.

Lancaster County Commissioner Bruce Hamilton explained the pros and cons of creeping socialism. He cautioned that, in a system based mainly on people, people who "are far less than perfect," one should be cautious of anyone who claims to have the ultimate solution to the world's problems.

"Much of what each of us is today, is pure luck," he said. The American way should still be based on the premise of giving everyone a "shot at the good life."

Crete Mayor Norm Behrens cautioned, "We are becoming a society of educated idiots. We've lost all feel for the application of good common sense."

He noted the national debt is about $600 billion, adding that is but one of the many problems "our generation is passing on to your generation."

ranching pioneer Frank North and Standing Bear, a Ponca chief.

In order to finance the purchase of bronze busts of the new Hall of Fame designates, the commission will request a deficit appropriation from the Legislature early next year.

Commission secretary Dr. Marvin Kivett said it is impossible to determine right now how much the busts will cost.

Kivett said the cost will depend on whether or not the commission can locate existing busts of the individuals, from which casts can be made.

If none exist, an artist will have to be commissioned to create the sculpture.

Cavalry Buff Present At Custer Centennial

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau
Elk Creek — It was kind of like having a burr under his saddle for 40 years. And all it took for removal was a 2,300-mile trip to the centennial observance at Custer Battlefield National Monument.
Most anyone who knows Roy F. Kappel knows he is, by his own description, "one of those idiot cavalry buffs." And at least his close friends know he has been wrapped up in Custer massacre history most of his life.
Close friends know he has been wrapped up in a Montana boyhood only a few miles from the monument. Twelve years in the Army beginning in 1936 intensified his interest, and a decade ago he set his sights on attending the centennial ceremony.
Kappel, now a bookkeeper in Tecumseh, following Atlas base employment which brought him to Nebraska, then began rounding up pieces of the cavalry's colorful uniform. He even bought a mare for the express purpose of foaling his prized "Commanche II."
The horse is now the five-year-old namesake, with a slight change in spelling, of the mount generally spoken of as the only Custer massacre survivor. Old Commanche died in 1891 and is now displayed, thanks to a taxidermist, in a Fort Riley museum.

"I just had to take my Commanche out for that ceremony, explained the soft-spoken Kappel, 58. "It wasn't that I'm interested in tearing down Custer or building him up... I just wanted the facts."
Another motivation was to add personal insights for the historic school programs he expects to present. Traveling alone with Commanche II in a trailer, he took 150 slides and made four 60-minute tape recordings on the eight-day trip.
Starting at North Dakota's Fort Abraham Lincoln as did Custer, he generally retraced the 400-mile Custer Trail which ended with the Little Big Horn defeat. An important stop was at the Mowbride, S.D., grave of Sitting Bull, who with Chief Crazy Horse were the most famous Indians in the battle.
"I had visited Crazy Horse's grave before, so I can now say I've stood beside the threesome made so famous by the battle," he explained.
The trip did have one disappointment — ironically, because of modern day Indians. Kappel had to leave behind his uniform, weapons and even Commanche in order to enter the battlefield.
"The National Park Service was real concerned about some demonstrations by AIM," he explained. "They were afraid uniforms might get the Indians all cranked up again."

KAPPEL... with prized Commanche II.

Russel Calls Paper His Last Publication

Fort Collins, Colo. — Sixty years to the month after publication of his first scientific paper, J.C. Russel of Lincoln, Neb., presented what he said would be his "last professional publication" here.
The retired University of Nebraska soil scientist gave historical details of the development of stubble mulch tillage by Dr. F. L. Duley and himself. He addressed a Great Plains conservation tillage workshop here.
Stubble mulch tillage is a soil and water conservation technique widely used in the semi-arid sections of the wheat belt, Russel said. It leaves wheat residues on top of the soil while controlling most weeds, thus saving moisture during the fallow period and preventing wind and water erosion, he pointed out.
Russel, a vigorous, alert 87-year-old, started his career at Nebraska as a graduate student in soil chemistry in 1913.
He has now been retired for 17 years.
He and Duley started their work on the stubble mulch tillage system about July 1, 1938.
In cooperation with manufacturers, they developed a system of wide, V-shaped sweeps that would undercut stubble and kill weeds and volunteer wheat while leaving the stubble intact.
They also were instrumental in developing seeders that would plant through the stubble.

Variable Interest Rates May Be More Common

Omaha (AP) — Less than 5% of the home loans in Nebraska have variable interest rates, according to an Omaha savings and loan official.
But Bruce Barton, president of Conservative Savings and Loan Association and the Nebraska Savings and Loan League, said that type of financing may be more common in the future.
Barton said his association has used a "modifiable rate" exclusively since 1969, and the Nebraska State Savings and Loan Association in Fremont and Tecumseh Building and Loan Association also use similar systems.
Although methods differ, Conservative's interest rate for loans is up to two per cent more than the interest rate of a one-year certificate of deposit, Barton said. As the deposit interest rate rises, the loan rate may rise.
"We have to increase our earnings to pay more to the savers," Barton said, adding that he doesn't think savers have been receiving enough return for their money.
The variable rate loan is the "only reasonable way we see" to do that, he said, because it allows loan companies to provide money without worrying about future interest increases.
For example, Conservatives' loan interest rate is one-fourth of one per cent lower than that of conventional loan in Omaha, mainly because Conservative does not have to charge more in case interest rates increase drastically sometime in the next 30 years, Barton said.

Pesticide Proposals Assailed By Schmit

The pesticide control program authorized by federal regulations "far exceeds any demonstrated need" in Nebraska, State Sen. Loran Schmit told an Environmental Protection Agency panel Monday.
The Bellwood senator, chairman of the Legislature's Agriculture and Environment Committee, testified at an EPA policy advisory committee meeting, one of four across the U.S.
The unicameral panel's "exhaustive study" determined there's "no need for restrictive pesticide legislation," Schmit said in prepared remarks.
"With only a limited amount of funds available," he asked, "why must the federal government insist on spending the taxpayer's money" in the absence of any pesticide control need while funding in other areas "could help prevent deaths."
Schmit said no one opposes necessary and beneficial laws, "but it is time to stop spending money on programs which are not needed and simply serve to create more bureaucratic red tape."
"The EPA is creating a problem where none exists," Schmit said. "There have only been five deaths from pesticide accidents in Nebraska since 1964, according to University of Nebraska records."
"Most of these were due to some type of misuse of the pesticides, and the EPA's regulations wouldn't have prevented the deaths. Even the most innocuous commodity can cause death when not used properly."
"Since 1969, fourteen Nebraskans have died from the misuse of aspirins," Schmit said. "Yet, there is no regulation to control misuse."
While the government "is trying to justify spending millions of dollars" despite few pesticide deaths, Schmit noted 376 deaths on Nebraska highways in 1975.
Nebraska farmers "have consistently been found to be responsible in the handling and application of their pesticides," Schmit testified. Farmers are concerned about consequences of their actions and pesticide use effects on the land because it's the basis of their livelihood.
As a group, Schmit said, farmers too "have consistently been willing to participate in programs where there is a demonstrated need." But he charged in this case the government "is only burdening the businessmen, the farmers and industry with unnecessary rules and regulations and statutes."
Further, "stringent pesticide control will cost millions of dollars to implement on the federal level," Schmit said.

Cyril Bish

Administrative Post Is Given Up By Bish

Cyril Bish will be stepping down as administrator of the Lancaster County agent's office as soon as a replacement can be hired.
Bish made the announcement Monday at the monthly meeting of the Agricultural Committee of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce.
"I have been in the county 22 years. I feel I would like to be more involved in programs and let someone else cope with the administration problems," Bish said.
Emery Nelson, a horticultural specialist in the Lancaster County agent's office, has also recently resigned to take a new position involving training farmers across the state in pesticide handling to meet requirements of the Environmental Protection Agency.
"We have a dozen applicants for the chairman's job from five states. We are seeking a person to be half-time administration and half-time on programs," Bish said.
In other action, the Agriculture Committee will sponsor a dinner in honor of the State Fair executive board at the Hilton Hotel Sept. 7.
"Invitations to the affair will be sent out in the next week or so. We expect from 150 to 200 people at the dinner," said Dave Wolvin, a chamber agriculture staff member.

Yarbrough Enters Plea Of Insanity At Fairbury

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau
Fairbury — Floyd James Yarbrough, charged with first degree murder in the Feb. 7 death of a Fairbury girl, entered a plea of "innocent by reason of insanity" Monday afternoon.
The 21-year-old defendant was arraigned in Jefferson County district court. Judge William B. Rust immediately set Sept. 8 for the start of a jury trial.
Appearing calm, the Washington state native was flanked by two defense attorneys but made the plea in his own words. He was neatly dressed in a corduroy suit.
Questioned about his educational background, Yarbrough said he left school after the eighth grade to join the Marines. Without explanation, he said he was discharged two months later and then was placed in the 10th grade because of his age. He completed part of the 11th grade.
Taken to the Nebraska Penal Complex immediately after his February preliminary hearing, the defendant has since undergone psychiatric testing at the request of attorneys Lyle Koenig and W. O. Baldwin of Hebron. Rust ruled him competent to stand trial but granted a request for further evaluation.
Yarbrough is accused of the strangulation of Cathy Jo Parker of Fairbury, 19. The girl's nearly nude body was found in a room of the Onyx Hotel.
Technically the charge is of murder while in the perpetration of first degree sexual assault (rape). The penalty can be either death or life imprisonment.

Omaha (AP) — Less than 5% of the home loans in Nebraska have variable interest rates, according to an Omaha savings and loan official.
 But Bruce Barton, president of Conservative Savings and Loan Association and the Nebraska Savings and Loan League, said that type of financing may be more common in the future.
 Barton said his association has used a "modifiable rate" exclusively since 1969, and the Nebraska State Savings and Loan Association in Fremont and Tecumseh Building and Loan Association also use similar systems.
 Although methods differ, Conservative's interest rate for loans is up to two per cent more than the interest rate of a one-year certificate of deposit, Barton said. As the deposit interest rate rises, the loan rate may rise.
 "We have to increase our earnings to pay more to the savers," Barton said, adding that he doesn't think savers have been receiving enough return for their money.
 The variable rate loan is the "only reasonable way we see" to do that, he said, because it allows loan companies to provide money without worrying about future interest increases.
 For example, Conservative's loan interest rate is one-fourth of one per cent lower than that of conventional loan in Omaha, mainly because Conservative does not have to charge more in case interest rates increase drastically sometime in the next 30 years, Barton said.

Pesticide Proposals Assailed By Schmit

The pesticide control program authorized by federal regulations "far exceeds any demonstrated need" in Nebraska, State Sen. Loran Schmit told an Environmental Protection Agency panel Monday.
 The Bellwood senator, chairman of the Legislature's Agriculture and Environment Committee, testified at an EPA policy advisory committee meeting, one of four across the U.S.
 The Unicameral panel's "exhaustive study" determined there's "no need for restrictive pesticide legislation," Schmit said in prepared remarks.
 "With only a limited amount of funds available," he asked, "why must the federal government insist on spending the taxpayer's money" in the absence of any pesticide control need while funding in other areas "could help prevent deaths."
 Schmit said no one opposes necessary and beneficial laws, "but it is time to stop spending money on programs which are not needed and simply serve to create more bureaucratic red tape."
 "The EPA is creating a problem where none exists," Schmit said. "There have only been five deaths from pesticide accidents in Nebraska since 1964, according to University of Nebraska records."
 "Most of these were due to some type of misuse of the pesticides, and the EPA's regulations wouldn't have prevented the deaths. Even the most innocuous commodity can cause death when not used properly."
 "Since 1969, fourteen Nebraskans have died from the misuse of aspirins," Schmit said. "Yet, there is no regulation to control misuse."
 While the government "is trying to justify spending millions of dollars" despite few pesticide deaths, Schmit noted 376 deaths on Nebraska highways in 1975.
 Nebraska farmers "have consistently been found to be responsible in the handling and application of their pesticides," Schmit testified. Farmers are concerned about consequences of their actions and pesticide use effects on the land because it's the basis of their livelihood.
 As a group, Schmit said, farmers too "have consistently been willing to participate in programs where there is a demonstrated need." But he charged in this case the government "is only burdening the businessmen, the farmers and industry with unnecessary rules and regulations and statutes."
 Further, "stringent pesticide control will cost millions of dollars to implement on the federal level," Schmit said.

Cyril Bish

Administrative Post Is Given Up By Bish

Cyril Bish will be stepping down as administrator of the Lancaster County agent's office as soon as a replacement can be hired.
 Bish made the announcement Monday at the monthly meeting of the Agricultural Committee of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce.
 "I have been in the county 22 years. I feel I would like to be more involved in programs and let someone else cope with the administration problems," Bish said.
 Emory Nelson, a horticultural specialist in the Lancaster County agent's office, has also recently resigned to take a new position involving training farmers across the state in pesticide handling to meet requirements of the Environmental Protection Agency.
 "We have a dozen applicants for the chairman's job from five states. We are seeking a person to be half-time administration and half-time on programs," Bish said.
 In other action, the Agriculture Committee will sponsor a dinner in honor of the State Fair executive board at the Hilton Hotel Sept. 7.
 "Invitations to the affair will be sent out in the next week or so. We expect from 150 to 200 people at the dinner," said Dave Wolvin, a chamber agriculture staff member.

Yarbrough Enters Plea Of Insanity At Fairbury

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau
 Fairbury — Floyd James Yarbrough, charged with first degree murder in the Feb. 7 death of a Fairbury girl, entered a plea of "innocent by reason of insanity" Monday afternoon.
 The 21-year-old defendant was arraigned in Jefferson County district court. Judge William B. Rist immediately set Sept. 8 for the start of a jury trial.
 Appearing calm, the Washington state native was flanked by two defense attorneys but made the plea in his own words. He was neatly dressed in a corduroy suit.
 Questioned about his educational background, Yarbrough said he left school after the eighth grade to join the Marines. Without explanation, he said he was discharged two months later and then was placed in the 10th grade because of his age. He completed part of the 11th grade.
 Taken to the Nebraska Penal Complex immediately after his February preliminary hearing, the defendant has since undergone psychiatric testing at the request of attorneys Lyle Koenig and W. O. Baldwin of Hebron. Rist ruled him competent to stand trial but granted a request for further evaluation.
 Yarbrough is accused of the strangulation of Cathy Jo Parker of Fairbury, 19. The girl's nearly nude body was found in a room of the Onyx Hotel.
 Technically the charge is of murder while in the perpetration of first degree sexual assault (rape). The penalty can be either death or life imprisonment.

By paying students to mix powdered clay with water — thus creating the moist, workable clay art classes consume by the tub — the Lincoln Public Schools are able to save considerable money.

Pugging Saves — Money, That Is

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

Pugging will save the Lincoln Public Schools about $3,500 this year. What, you ask, is pugging? It's the mechanical process of making powdered clay into workable clay by the addition of water in a pugmill, a $1,500 machine manned by Lincoln students, mixing it to the proper density, texture and moisture content.

The 54 Lincoln schools use some 5,000 pounds or 820 bags of clay in art programs every year, according to Roger Van Deventer, arts consultant for the schools. Clay, purchased commercially in that amount would cost $7 per bag for a total cost of $5,740, he said.

By using two teams of students, working eight-hour shifts for 22 days, the three-year-old pugmill produced the necessary amount of clay, at a cost of $2.75 per bag or a total of $2,255, hence the savings of $3,485 to the school district.

That $2.75 per bag is what the schools pay the art department for the clay. It covers the cost of labor, plastic bags and ties and boxes, as well as transportation and storage, Van Deventer explained.

Clay is about 50% water, and heavy, so shipping costs generally are high, he added. The clay powder is purchased at the Yankee Hill Brick Co. in Lincoln, and hauled, all at once, to Lincoln High School, where it is used in the pugmill in the basement.

We use 1,200 pounds of dry powder for our yearly supply, 600 of red and 600 of gray, Van Deventer said. One hundred pounds of clay powder produces 190 pounds of workable clay. The Lincoln pugmill more than paid for itself in the first year of operation, he added. Outside of an occasional clogged drain, it is relatively trouble-free.

Van Deventer knows of at least three other pugmills in operation in the state, but notes that it takes a large school district to make the thing feasible.

The four students who run the mill are paid on a production basis, a factor which according to Van Deventer, has made the operation work. The more clay, the more money.

Lyle Grefelman and Mike Miller make up one team while two University of Nebraska-Lincoln students veterans with the pugging tasks, make up the other. That pair, Amy Anderson and Martha Field, aren't "the type you'd think would want to fuss with the dirty operation, but they apparently love it," Van Deventer added.

The clay often finds itself in a variety of finished products ranging from funny face animals to pots and dishes.

If the artist doesn't like the piece, it can be reclaimed by soaking in water and running it through the mill, he said. But this isn't often done since the students usually take their stuff home with them like it or not.

Stepmother Won't Give Up

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I just celebrated our 30th wedding anniversary. Three years ago my father died. He was very wealthy and left everything to my stepmother. Last June, my stepmother (who is 11 years older than I am) was visiting my husband and me, and I found them in bed together. My world came crashing down, and I ordered her out of the house. After conferring with my two sons and their wives, I wrote a letter to this woman and told her I never wanted to see her again. She responded with a letter stating that she has been in love with my husband as long as I have, and she could never say no to him.

My husband has asked me to forgive him, and he promised never to see her again. I forgave him, but this woman won't give up. She calls here and if I answer the phone she hangs up on me. I don't know whether she calls him at his office, but I assume she does.

My sons and their wives tell me that she has called them, and they have slammed the phone down on her.

Just when I think I'm getting over this terrible hurt, she calls and upsets me. Please tell me how to handle it.

HURT BADLY

DEAR HURT: She sounds disturbed. Ask your lawyer what steps should be taken to put an end to this harassment. You don't have to tolerate it.

DEAR ABBY: I am the only female in an office of 10 men. Although the restrooms are clearly marked "MEN" and "WOMEN," the men use the women's restroom in addition to their own. I strongly resent that practice.

I do want privacy in the restroom, but if I mention it, I will be labeled a prude. My job is well paying, and I would hate to change for that reason, especially at age 50. May I have your suggestions?

DESIRES PRIVACY

DEAR DESIRES: If you DON'T MENTION it, how will the offenders know that you resent their actions? The solution is obvious. Speak up. And don't worry about what they call you.

DEAR ABBY: I am going to give my girlfriend a diamond soon, but here's the problem. Her father is in the jewelry business, and I don't know whether I should buy the ring from him or not. I'm afraid if I go to him, he might think I'm expecting a better price, which I assure you I am not.

If I buy the ring from a competitor, I'm afraid my girl will be hurt. What should I do?

BUYING A DIAMOND
DEAR BUYING: Buy the diamond from your future father-in-law. If he offers you a special price (and he probably will), don't be a schnook — accept it.

To Win Or Lose Matters Least

Cortland, N.Y. (UPI) — Lawrence Martin, associate professor of physical education at State University College at Cortland, N.Y., says it's really true — winning or losing doesn't count as much as how an athlete plays a game.

He cited research showing sports competition reduces feelings of aggression for winners, but for losers the case is not as clear. Losers further suffer a loss of self-esteem.

Martin says while sports do appear to be a healthy release for limited aggression, winning and losing must be de-emphasized.

Young athletes, he adds, must be taught to take satisfaction in a good performance — regardless of winning or losing.

Lawnmowers Go Ba-Ba-Ba

Bonn, West Germany (UPI) — Householders and businesses who want their grass cut cheaply are being urged to use sheep.

Woolen lawnmowers are the cheapest, cleanest, quietest, most nonpolluting ones you can get, a spokesman for the German Sheep Raisers Association said.

Sheep already are being rented by schools, factories, large homeowners, and a helicopter landing field to remove grass.

Annette Van Dorp, 22-year-old agricultural student, started a rent-a-sheep company with 300 sheep in Bonn in April and has been so successful she is planning to increase her flock to 700.

She charges about $8 a sheep per season. Customers must take at least five sheep.

Goofing Off

By ANONYMOUS
Star Staff Writer

There comes a time in every working person's life when he or she has nothing to do, but must put on the appearance of being busy.

Some people are lucky enough to be able to leave their office or desk for long periods during the time when nothin's doin', but most others are stuck in one spot, frantically searching for a ruse to effect an industrious pose.

Having nothing to do can come from a number of things. You may be waiting for a phone call on which the rest of your actions for the day is predicated. Or you might be between time-consuming tasks with only a half hour before lunch or quitting time. Or you may be so competent in your job that you have outdistanced your co-workers in a series of chores, or done something faster than your boss thought possible. Or you may just feel like goofing off.

There is a danger in standing around idle. You may get dragged into a task that will keep you far past your regular lunch period, or worse yet, past the time you were planning to get off. Or, and this is the worst possible thing, you may alert your boss to the fact that he hasn't given you enough work, at which point you will be deluged by tasks which then may become your permanent responsibility.

So the problem is, look busy. Here are some tactics:

The slow desk shuffle. If you have a desk, start opening the drawers and carefully examining the contents. (Never mind that you know exactly what's in there.) Look puzzled, as if something were amiss. Open another drawer and transfer something from one to the other, and vice-versa. Completely rearrange the contents of your desk drawers. Mumble slightly to yourself in pleased tones, as if this is a terrific idea. When finished, close all drawers and exhibit a self-satisfied smile.

Since this will only take five or 10 minutes at the most, you may often need a more time-consuming dodge.

The long march. Get up from your desk, go over to a co-worker and say that you have to go out for a few minutes, but will be back as soon as possible. Go to the rest room, but be sure to leave in a direction opposite to that of the facilities. Go down the hall, ride the elevator up one floor, take a round-about route to the stairway, walk downstairs, and go to the restroom.

Then follow the same procedure in returning. If you work in a one-story building, go out the front door and come in the back.

The intellectual stall. Keep a piece of paper with the words "Memo: For Suggestion Box" in your desk. Have the paper filled with words and leave it on your desk. Then place another page in a typewriter and type a few lines on it.

Most people who pass will think you are composing an in-depth suggestion for the betterment of the company. Type anything you want on the second page, or just sit there and scratch your head, as if pondering some difficult wording for an important idea. Be careful with this, however. Never let anyone read your papers. If they grab for one, cling to the page and say "It's still awfully rough. I'd rather you'd wait until I polished it up a bit."

The phone fake. Keep a list of telephone numbers that give you a recorded message on the weather, spiritual messages, your astrological sign or anything else. Dial the number, listen to the tape and talk about some business-related subject. This works especially well if your boss comes up to talk to you. You can either pretend to be involved in an important conversation, or say "I'll have to get back to you on that, J.P. My boss needs me."

Used correctly, these four tactics should get you through several periods of idleness. After that time, you should be close to a professional goof-off, and be able to think up your own more sophisticated dodges.

If you get really good at it, you will probably get promoted for appearing so industrious. In that case you will have attained a position where doing nothing is considered deep, constructing thinking, and you will be set for life.

Biker, Dancer Wed In Tavern Ceremony

Fayetteville, N.C. (UPI) — Congratulations, Steve and Tammy. May the beer never run dry and the bike never wipe out.

It was a big day for Steve, 24, a biker, and Tammy, 20, a topless dancer. As Cumberland County Magistrate Thomas Drake pronounced them man and wife, the juke box doubling as an altar struck up a wailing country-rock tune.

Although the wedding party was forbidden to carry weapons, as decreed by a sign in the bar-turned-sanctuary, they were prepared with the traditional rice.

And, of course, tears.

"It was beautiful, just beautiful," said matron of honor Cathy, who, like the bride and groom, asked that last names not be used.

The bride wore a white grease-spotted halter top, bright pink pants and sandals. The groom donned a white silk tie to complete his jeans and hobnail boots ensemble.

Bar owner Bill Evans estimated a couple of hundred bikers, dancers, bar regulars and family, including the bride's dog, came to wish the newlyweds long life and happiness. Even Drake joined in the nuptial beer toast at the Red Magic Carpet Bar.

Outside in the parking lot, bikers downed cups of beer as they traded motorcycle parts and revved their engines.

"This was the best place and the best time to get all our friends together in one spot," Tammy said.

It appeared most of their friends made it to the day-long bash.

They should have. The invitation was pinned to the wall over there for more than a week," Steve said.

Tammy said she asked Steve to marry her the weekend before while they were visiting his family in South Carolina.

I figured if I didn't get him then I probably never would."

Opening lead — seven of hearts.

One play sometimes represents the difference between making a contract and stands or falls depending on going down, and declarer should therefore try not to dummy at trick one. He must overlook such a play when the opportunity presents itself.

Here is a simple case to illustrate the principle. Declarer gets to three notrump and West leads the seven of hearts. Let's say declarer plays the ten of hearts from dummy and East plays the jack on it.

South wins with the king and, with the cards divided as they are, he must eventually go down at least two against proper defense. East is bound to score four heart tricks as soon as West gets on lead with a club and returns a heart through dummy's Q-3.

But South has a much better way to play the hand that will stop East-West stone-cold dead. All he has to do to stymie the defense is play the queen of hearts from dummy on West's opening lead of the seven.

What can East do in that case? If he takes the ace he cannot successfully return a heart because of dummy's ten, and South has all the time he needs to wrap up nine tricks. If East does not take the ace, he winds up in the same disadvantageous position after declarer leads the nine of clubs from dummy and loses the finesse to West's king.

So the fact is that the contract between making a contract and stands or falls depending on going down, and declarer should therefore try not to dummy at trick one. He must overlook such a play when the opportunity presents itself.

Here is a simple case to illustrate the principle. Declarer gets to three notrump and West leads the seven of hearts. Let's say declarer plays the ten of hearts from dummy and East plays the jack on it.

Goofing Off

By ANONYMOUS
Star Staff Writer

There comes a time in every working person's life when he or she has nothing to do, but must put on the appearance of being busy.

Some people are lucky enough to be able to leave their office or desk for long periods during the time when nothin's doin', but most others are stuck in one spot, frantically searching for a ruse to effect an industrious pose.

Having nothing to do can come from a number of things. You may be waiting for a phone call on which the rest of your actions for the day is predicated. Or you might be between time-consuming tasks with only a half hour before lunch or quitting time. Or you may be so competent in your job that you have outdistanced your co-workers in a series of chores, or done something faster than your boss thought possible. Or you may just feel like goofing off.

There is a danger in standing around idle. You may get dragged into a task that will keep you far past your regular lunch period, or worse yet, past the time you were planning to get off. Or, and this is the worst possible thing, you may alert your boss to the fact that he hasn't given you enough work, at which point you will be deluged by tasks which then may become your permanent responsibility.

So the problem is, look busy. Here are some tactics:

The slow desk shuffle. If you have a desk, start opening the drawers and carefully examining the contents. (Never mind that you know exactly what's in there.) Look puzzled, as if something were amiss. Open another drawer and transfer something from one to the other, and vice-versa. Completely rearrange the contents of your desk drawers. Mumble slightly to yourself in pleased tones, as if this is a terrific idea. When finished, close all drawers and exhibit a self-satisfied smile.

Since this will only take five or 10 minutes at the most, you may often need a more time-consuming dodge.

The long march. Get up from your desk, go over to a co-worker and say that you have to go out for a few minutes, but will be back as soon as possible. Go to the rest room, but be sure to leave in a direction opposite to that of the facilities. Go down the hall, ride the elevator up one floor, take a round-about route to the stairway, walk downstairs, and go to the restroom.

Then follow the same procedure in returning. If you work in a one-story building, go out the front door and come in the back.

The intellectual stall. Keep a piece of paper with the words "Memo: For Suggestion Box" in your desk. Have the paper filled with words and leave it on your desk. Then place another page in a typewriter and type a few lines on it.

Most people who pass will think you are composing an in-depth suggestion for the betterment of the company. Type anything you want on the second page, or just sit there and scratch your head, as if pondering some difficult wording for an important idea. Be careful with this, however. Never let anyone read your papers. If they grab for one, cling to the page and say "It's still awfully rough. I'd rather you'd wait until I polished it up a bit."

The phone fake. Keep a list of telephone numbers that give you a recorded message on the weather, spiritual messages, your astrological sign or anything else. Dial the number, listen to the tape and talk about some business-related subject. This works especially well if your boss comes up to talk to you. # City, County Agree To Split Savings On Milk Inspection

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

After playing with a series of numbers and a host of philosophies, the City Council and County Board decided to go halves — sort of — on the savings from the milk inspection program.

The City-County Common — the board, council and mayor meeting together — agreed that the county savings will be $34,556 when the milk inspection program changes from local hands to the State Agriculture Department. The city savings will be $27,838.

That decision was preceded by much internal debate.

For the first time this year the two governments are funding human service functions on a total formula basis: 80% of the money coming from the county coffers, 20% from the city.

The total funding picture is the same as past years, but the amount of money each human service agency gets from either government has changed.

The general idea was to have one government provide all of the funds for an agency for an easier bookkeeping and working relationship without jeopardizing the entire funding picture.

In the past many agencies have been funded a little by both governments.

But the problem with the new approach came when the City Council made cuts on joint budgets already approved by the Common, and the County Board granted increases to totally county-run agencies like Lancaster Manor.

The 80/20 formula broke down; the city was no longer paying its historic percentage.

Human Service Director Bob Clark suggested that part of the discrepancy be made up by giving the county all the milk inspection savings.

City officials balked. The result was a compromise, and an understanding to further refine the entire joint funding procedure before next summer's budget season.

Marv Nuernberger

Agency Chiefs Expected At Hearing

Lancaster County Engineer Marv Nuernberger and an assortment of other elected and appointed county agency chiefs are expected to testify at the county budget hearing Tuesday night.

The hearing, the last chance for public input before the county's budget is adopted Thursday, will begin at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chambers on the first floor of the County-City Building.

The three commissioners have already whittled about $1 million from the departmental budget requests, and the total county budget now requires a 13.297 mill levy, up 11% from last year's 11.995 levy.

The heaviest cuts were made in the three county engineering budgets, and in the sheriff's department, county attorney and Lancaster Manor requests. But few agencies' proposals were untouched by the commissioners' line item review.

Nuernberger will be asking for a return to last year's mill levy for his largest budget — bridge and special road fund — and an end to what he calls "the fruit basket upset approach" to his budgets.

While trimming the engineer's three budgets, the commissioners also transferred money from one budget to another — shown by a series of asterisks in the individual budgets.

The transfers are unnecessary, since the cuts could have been made within the budgets, and also are incomprehensible, Nuernberger contends.

Other department heads are also expected to object to specific cuts in their own departmental budgets.

But if past budget hearings are any indication, there will be few private citizens objecting to an increase in local property taxes.

LOMR To Hire Stella Principal

A public school principal from Stella will be hired as the new executive director of the Lancaster County Office of Mental Retardation.

William E. Templemeyer will be officially named to the $21,424 a year position during the County Board's Tuesday afternoon meeting.

Templemeyer, who received a B.S. in education from Peru

State College and a masters degree in special education from the University of Nebraska-Omaha, has been the principal of the Southeast Nebraska Consolidated School in Stella for the past four years.

He also served as Title I administrator and director of special education at the school, which includes grades kindergarten through 12.

Templemeyer worked with trainable and educable retarded students in Nebraska Education Service Unit No. 3 before becoming a principal.

The board's Tuesday action will fill the post vacated one month ago when former Director Robert Smith resigned to start a business in Colorado.

Low Income Members Of LAP Want Rides To Board Meetings

By VINCE BOUCHER
Star Staff Writer

You had to be there.

And that — being there — was precisely the issue at the Monday meeting of the Lincoln Action Program board.

The board heard a series of proposals from the low income caucus that included having LAP staff members provide transportation to meetings for low income board members who have no transportation of their own.

Over objections that such a provision would be an undue hardship on the LAP staff, member Joan Wooten said the board had a responsibility to low income members who had been elected to serve on the board.

"To heck with your budget; you can't function without them," she said. Attendance at several LAP board meetings has been inconsistent and the May meeting was dismissed for lack of a quorum.

The low income caucus also asked for some internal information on LAP staff travel, job descriptions and personnel as well as a list of all low income board members.

They did not ask the LAP board to take action on the decision of the city to cut out VISTA workers for next year, saying they plan to take that issue to the City Council themselves.

Planned discussion of a LAP overall evaluation report was postponed for a second month because one component of the report still needs to be turned in. Board President Jerilyn Coffey was asked to dispatch a letter to the delinquent evaluator.

LAP Executive Director Jesse Payne was asked about the progress of a planned Hispanic Cultural Center. He said there was no money in the LAP budget for it at present, but that a staff position was being sought to get things going.

Payne reported on the budget for fiscal 1976-1977, saying that $94,000 had been requested from the city and county together.

"We have reason to believe we will receive $50,000 — $25,000 from the city and $25,000 from the county," Payne said, adding that an additional $310,000 will come from the federal government.

The board discussed at length the lack of success in getting a group together to start the yearly evaluation of Payne. A special committee was appointed but has not acted. A suggestion to have the personnel committee complete the evaluation, as they did last year, brought some protest from the board.

"Let's get on with it," said personnel committee member Carroll Savin, impatient with the drawn-out discussion. "If another group wants to do it, then have them do it."

In the end, the executive committee, the personnel committee and two other board members who had been appointed to the original committee were named to be the evaluators.

"Maybe that way we can get six of them together to do it," Wooten said.

Northeast Penal Complex Inmate Unit Seeks Stabbed Several Times Added Bus

Members of the Northeast Lincoln-Community Development Organization are seeking cross-town bus service to their area, according to Hale Laws, president.

Laws said members agreed at a Monday night meeting to distribute petitions to residents living in the area between 63rd and 73rd.

"I think it would be a money-making instead of a money losing route," Laws said. The route would extend along 70th and A St. down to 56th and could possibly serve East High students, Meadow Lane shoppers and employees in the area, Laws said. He added that besides circulating the petitions, the Northeast group will be finding out which candidate for public office will be in favor of the proposed route.

Nebraska Penal Complex officials said an inmate was stabbed several times in the chest Monday evening.

Corrections Capt. Robert Pease said David Coleman, 26, was taken to a Lincoln hospital for exploratory surgery. Coleman was reported in stable condition and was expected to live.

Pease said no weapon was found and that no suspects were in custody Monday.

Nebraska State Patrol criminal investigator Greg Frazer is heading an investigation into the incident.

Pease said Coleman was serving 10-30 years on an habitual criminal conviction from Douglas County.

Omaha Plans To Survey For Lead Poisoning

Omaha (AP) — Blood samples will be drawn from scores of North Omaha children this week to determine what problem exists with elevated levels of lead, public health officials announced Monday.

The survey is an update of a study done several years ago. Dr. H. J. Wegner, acting director of the Omaha-Douglas County Health Department, said $175,000 is being sought in federal funds to conduct a childhood lead poisoning prevention program.

In the earlier study it was found that 20% of the children tested had lead in their blood above the acceptable level. But none was found to have overt signs of illness, the study report said.

Fire Monday afternoon did "considerable damage" to an Aqua-Matic Car Wash station at 27th and South, firemen said.

The blaze began when employees were working on a sign at the station over a fuel pump. An electrical cutter malfunctioned and the pump caught fire. There were no injuries in the fire.

Arapahoe and Cambridge fire units, aided by Holbrook volunteers, fought the fire for about four hours until it was under control. They were called back when the fire restarted four hours later.

There were no injuries and a damage estimate was not available.

Producer Hecht Gets Divorce

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Harold A. Hecht, producer of such films as "Marty" and "Birdman of Alcatraz," has been divorced from his wife, Martine, after a 14-year marriage.

A spokesman said the couple divided about $1 million in property. Mrs. Hecht, 40, will retain custody of the couple's three children, and Hecht, 66, will pay about $1,500 a month in child support.

The divorce was granted Thursday in Los Angeles Superior Court.

The couple married in 1962 and separated in 1974.

City, County Agree To Split Savings On Milk Inspection

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

After playing with a series of numbers and a host of philosophies, the City Council and County Board decided to go halves — sort of — on the savings from the milk inspection program.

The City-County Common — the board, council and mayor meeting together — agreed that the county savings will be $34,556 when the milk inspection program changes from local hands to the State Agriculture Department. The city savings will be $27,838.

That decision was preceded by much internal debate.

For the first time this year the two governments are funding human service functions on a total formula basis: 80% of the money coming from the county coffers, 20% from the city.

The total funding picture is the same as past years, but the amount of money each human service agency gets from either government has changed.

The general idea was to have one government provide all of the funds for an agency for an easier bookkeeping and working relationship without jeopardizing the entire funding picture.

In the past many agencies have been funded a little by both governments.

But the problem with the new approach came when the City Council made cuts on joint budgets already approved by the Common, and the County Board granted increases to totally county-run agencies like Lancaster Manor.

LOMR To Hire Stella Principal

A public school principal from Stella will be hired as the new executive director of the Lancaster County Office of Mental Retardation.

William E. Templemeyer will be officially named to the $21,424 a year position during the County Board's Tuesday afternoon meeting.

Templemeyer, who received a B.S. in education from Peru State College and a masters degree in special education from the University of Nebraska-Omaha, has been the principal of the Southeast Nebraska Consolidated School in Stella for the past four years.

He also served as Title I administrator and director of special education at the school, which includes grades kindergarten through 12.

Templemeyer worked with trainable and educable retarded students in Nebraska Education Service Unit No. 3 before becoming a principal.

The board's Tuesday action will fill the post vacated one month ago when former Director Robert Smith resigned to start a business in Colorado.

Templemeyer and his wife have 11 children.

Low Income Members Of LAP Want Rides To Board Meetings

By VINCE BOUCHER
Star Staff Writer

You had to be there.

And that — being there — was precisely the issue at the Monday meeting of the Lincoln Action Program board.

The board heard a series of proposals from the low income caucus that included having LAP staff members provide transportation to meetings for low income board members who have no transportation of their own.

Over objections that such a provision would be an undue hardship on the LAP staff, member Joan Wooten said the board had a responsibility to low income members who had been elected to serve on the board.

"To heck with your budget; you can't function without them," she said. Attendance at several LAP board meetings has been inconsistent and the May meeting was dismissed for lack of a quorum.

The low income caucus also asked for some internal information on LAP staff travel, job descriptions and personnel as well as a list of all low income board members.

They did not ask the LAP board to take action on the decision of the city to cut out VISTA workers for next year, saying they plan to take that issue to the City Council themselves.

Planned discussion of a LAP overall evaluation report was postponed for a second month because one component of the report still needs to be turned in. Board President Jerilyn Coffey was asked to dispatch a letter to the delinquent evaluator.

LAP Executive Director Jesse Payne was asked about the progress of a planned Hispanic Cultural Center. He said there was no money in the LAP budget for it at present, but that a staff position was being sought to get things going.

Payne reported on the budget for fiscal 1976-1977, saying that $94,000 had been requested from the city and county together.

"We have reason to believe we will receive $50,000 — $25,000 from the city and $25,000 from the county," Payne said, adding that an additional $310,000 will come from the federal government.

The board discussed at length the lack of success in getting a group together to start the yearly evaluation of Payne. A special committee was appointed but has not acted. A suggestion to have the personnel committee complete the evaluation, as they did last year, brought some protest from the board.

"Let's get on with it," said personnel committee member Carroll Sawin, impatient with the drawn-out discussion. "If another group wants to do it, then have them do it."

In the end, the executive committee, the personnel committee and two other board members who had been appointed to the original committee were named to be the evaluators.

"Maybe that way we can get six of them together to do it," Wooten said.

Northeast Penal Complex Inmate Unit Seeks Added Bus

Members of the Northeast Lincoln-Community Development Organization are seeking crosstown bus service to their area, according to Hale Laws, president.

Laws said members agreed at a Monday night meeting to distribute petitions to residents living in the area between 63rd and 73rd.

"I think it would be a money-making instead of a money losing route," Laws said. The route would extend along 70th and A St. down to 56th and could possibly serve East High students, Meadow Lane shoppers and employees in the area. Laws said. He added that besides circulating the petitions, the Northeast group will be finding out which candidate for public office will be in favor of the proposed route.

Nebraska Penal Complex officials said an inmate was stabbed several times in the chest Monday evening.

Corrections Capt. Robert Pease said David Coleman, 26, was taken to a Lincoln hospital for exploratory surgery. Coleman was reported in stable condition and was expected to live.

Pease said no weapon was found and that no suspects were in custody Monday.

Marv Nuernberger

Agency Chiefs Expected At Hearing

Lancaster County Engineer Marv Nuernberger and an assortment of other elected and appointed county agency chiefs are expected to testify at the county budget hearing Tuesday night.

The hearing, the last chance for public input before the county's budget is adopted Thursday, will begin at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chambers on the first floor of the County-City Building.

The three commissioners have already whittled about $1 million from the departmental budget requests, and the total county budget now requires a 13.297 mill levy, up 11% from last year's 11.995 levy.

The heaviest cuts were made in the three county engineering budgets, and in the sheriff's department, county attorney and Lancaster Manor requests. But few agencies' proposals were untouched by the commissioners' line item review.

Nuernberger will be asking for a return to last year's mill levy for his largest budget — bridge and special road fund — and an end to what he calls "the fruit basket upset approach" to his budgets.

While trimming the engineer's three budgets, the commissioners also transferred money from one budget to another — shown by a series of asterisks in the individual budgets.

The transfers are unnecessary, since the cuts could have been made within the budgets, and also are incomprehensible, Nuernberger contends.

Other department heads are also expected to object to specific cuts in their own departmental budgets.

But if past budget hearings are any indication, there will be few private citizens objecting to an increase in local property taxes.

Carter Takes Pro-Consumer Stands

©The New York Times

Washington — Jimmy Carter told a luncheon forum Monday that he hoped to challenge Ralph Nader soon "for the title of top consumer advocate in the country."

Then, in answers to questions, he took a number of stands that gladdened the hearts of consumer-protection advocates but could prove displeasing to the business community.

On some questions, however, he maintained carefully qualified, cautious positions that would not offend industry or conservatives.

Principles Endorsed

Speaking at a "Public Citizens Forum" here sponsored by Nader, Carter endorsed the principles behind two major pieces of antitrust legislation pending in Congress which have been vigorously opposed by business and are now opposed by President Ford.

One bill would give state attorneys general the right to bring lawsuits on behalf of all the citizens of a state for damages caused by anti-trust violations such as price fixing. Large corporations fear this could bring damage assessments of great size.

The other bill would strengthen the powers of the Justice Department to block corporate mergers through injunctions until the legality of such proposed mergers is litigated.

In a development which excited some consumerists even more, the Democratic presidential nominee said unexpectedly that he would support legislation to overturn two recent Supreme Court decisions that have seemed to limit seriously the effectiveness of "class action" lawsuits by citizens.

One decision requires all members of the damaged group to be notified of the filing of the suit -- a formidable task and an expensive one. The other decision forbade a group of citizens from totalling relatively minor damages suffered to reach a threshold or minimum damage level required to file a suit against the offending business.

Carter, who was in Washington for the day and returned to Georgia Monday night, also:

—Said he favored a law against what he called "revolving door" movement of persons from jobs in federal regulatory agencies into the industries they had been regulating and vice versa. If Congress did not pass such a law, he would try to prevent such practices by executive order and other means if elected President.

—Said he believed that government regulation of industry that tended to elevate or prop up rates charged to customers, as in the case of transportation and freight fares, should be "drastically minimized." He criticized

"sweetheart" relationships between industries and the government agencies meant to regulate them.

—Praised pending legislation to create a Consumer Protection Agency, said he would work for its creation if President Ford vetoes the law and promised to work closely with its members.

—Said he believed there was too much violence on television and expressed a belief that a President had an "obligation" as well as a right to express displeasure to broadcasting networks about the quality of programming. He said, however, he recognized there was a fine line between working for quality and censorship.

'Different Climate' Promised

The Democratic presidential nominee promised the audience — many of whom were consumerists and public interest advocates — there "is going to be a different climate in the White House" if he is elected.

One such person, Kathleen F. O'Reilly, legislative director of the Consumer Federation of America, called his remarks "extremely gratifying."

On some other issues, however, Carter, who was questioned by a panel of journalists and by the large audience, expressed a reluctance to go as far as some consumer advocates might wish.

He again said he did not favor a general "breakup" of oil companies into different companies engaged in oil field-to-service station operations. Only wholesale and retail operations should be divested by the oil companies, he said. As he had done before, he said he would favor forcing oil companies to divest themselves of coal mines and other energy firms unless he was satisfied that adequate competition existed between competing sources of energy.

For the first time, he said that such competition does not now exist at any adequate level.

Aid To Consumerists Disliked

Carter also said he did not favor federal financial assistance to consumer groups to permit them to be more active.

He made only vague promises of giving greater attention to proposals to determine the cancer-causing or toxic properties of substances sold for public consumption.

He expressed a preference for stricter state laws on the incorporation of corporations rather than proposals for federal charters for such corporations.

Carter called for stiff corporate fines for firms that offer bribes abroad but did not spell out in detail his own views on a comprehensive plan to prevent corporate crime.

For a politician once accused of being "fuzzy" on controversial issues it had been a day of sweeping and unusual commitment.

'Xynileptich, Do You See What I See?'

Del Rio, Tex. (UPI) — On a clear summer night airline pilots should pay no special heed if they look down and see a swimming pool with its lights twinkling or spy a series of letters constructed from mirrors spelling out, "Linger when you land here, Birdmen."

It is not for them. It is the work of artist Barbara Petch and the 20 members of her "Skylight" study group waiting poolside at her Studio Green home, a former woman's wear store on U.S. 90. She is waiting for the space travelers to come again and this time they'll get a big Texas welcome.

Not to be outdone by an Austin, Tex., group known as the Society for the Preservation of Man which set up a circle of lights to attract UFOs to land in the Texas hill country, Mrs. Petch's organization has gone even farther by establishing a reception committee, communications center, landing site and clubhouse to welcome visitors from outer space.

At first it appears to be a well planned spoof of the Austin group's "Project Starlight International" attempt to communicate with space beings, but Mrs. Petch says she's serious to the point of planning how to host UFO travelers when they are lured to her south Texas landing site.

She claims the idea was prompted by her being invited aboard a UFO three years ago, and said a dream she had recently makes her think she might have accepted.

"It's an interplanetary rest area," she said of her residence. "You can just sort of camp out in here with the rest of us. What I'm going to do is set up a kind of a gift shop in this store with things from all over the world — the kind of place a space man would like to come in and shop, pick up something of our culture. We've got beds we can fix up and sleeping bags.

"Out by the pool it's very lovely. They space men could go swimming. We have a kitchen we could use to cook things. It would be just a kind of a fun thing. I bought a tot next door and I'm going to pour a concrete six-foot circle that's going to be our landing field."

Gas Pipeline Explosion Kills 6

CALHOUN, La. (AP) — A 20-inch natural gas pipeline blew up on Monday near this north Louisiana town, killing six persons whose homes were engulfed in boiling flames which spewed from the rupture, state police said.

The explosion dug a 30-foot crater while a blowtorch of flame roared 200 feet into the sky for nearly an hour.

Police said the explosion was apparently triggered when a road grader hit the pipeline buried under a rural road.

A witness said the blast threw a trailer home into a tree where it burned.

Three trailers and two houses were destroyed by the thundering blast which was felt 6 miles away. A spokesman for United Gas Pipe Line Co., which owned the line, said four persons were killed in one trailer near the pipeline and two died in a second trailer.

Art Auction Was Comic, But No Joke

(c) Chicago Sun Times

Chicago — An art auction in the Playboy Towers Hotel was comic from beginning to end but strictly no joke.

Auctioneers Stan Lee and Jenette Kahn sold original, signed drawings of comic-book and cartoon-strip characters and the proceeds went to the Alternative Schools Network, a coalition of some 40 nonsectarian community schools, most of them in the inner city.

The Supermans' B.C.'s, Lil Abners and Captain Marvels were donated to the auction by the illustrators and collectors across the nation.

The benefit auction was a feature of the Chicago Comicon, a three-day meeting of nostalgia buffs, especially those devoted to the derring-do of superheroes and the fables of their comic cousins.

Some 3,000 admirers and collectors of the pop art attended the convention.

They listened to discussions of underground comics, production and marketing of strips and the histories of some of the better known residents of the funny papers.

Exhibitors offered old and sometimes rare comic books that ranged in price from the few cents printed on the cover to $1,200 for All American Comics No. 16. The All-American No. 16 was displayed by Bill Roche, 26, who said the best offer he had for a single book during the convention was $400 for All Star Comics No. 3.

Other exhibitors in the Grand Ballroom sales area displayed old magazines, posters including the famous nude Marilyn Monroe calendar shot for $40 and such relics of a middle-aged childhood as Big Little Books, Little Orphan Annie and a Flash Gordon interplanetary ray gun for $80.

If Lee and Miss Kahn were amateur auctioneers, they are certainly professionals in the comic-book business.

The mustachioed Lee is publisher of Marvel Comics. Miss Kahn does that job for D.C. Comics.

'Very Drastic' Increase In Oil Wanted By Some

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Some members of the 13-nation oil cartel want a "very drastic" price increase comparable to the quadrupling of prices that followed the 1973 Arab oil embargo, Saudi Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani said Monday.

He said Saudi Arabia, the world's leading oil exporter, will resist an increase of that size but predicted there will be some kind of increase in 1977.

"I think it is premature to talk now about the percentage," he told reporters at a United Nations press luncheon. "It depends on a variety of factors, including the economic recovery in the West."

"But we are not going to slaughter the hen that lays the gold eggs," he stated. "There is a limit to what we can do. And I think we see that limit a little bit clearer than others," a reference to Saudi Arabia's differences with so-called price hawks in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

The current benchmark price for oil exported by OPEC members is $11.51 for a 42-gallon barrel. It has been in effect since October 1975. OPEC oil ministers considered a hike when they met on the Indonesian island of Bali in May but decided against it.

Yamani did not identify the countries pressing for a spectacular increase, but he noted at another point that Iran, the world's second largest exporter, has been a major pusher for price hikes in the past.

Turkish Army Put On Alert After Protest

Ankara, Turkey (AP) — Several units of Turkey's 500,000-strong armed forces were put Monday in a state of "advanced preparedness" after Greece protested for the second time the activities of a Turkish survey ship in the Aegean Sea, reliable sources said.

The upgrading of the combat readiness of the Turkish army followed reports from Athens that similar instructions were also issued to Greek army contingents in Thrace and other military bases facing Turkey across the Aegean sea.

Carter Takes Pro-Consumer Stands

©The New York Times

Washington — Jimmy Carter told a luncheon forum Monday that he hoped to challenge Ralph Nader soon "for the title of top consumer advocate in the country."

Then, in answers to questions, he took a number of stands that gladdened the hearts of consumer-protection advocates but could prove displeasing to the business community.

On some questions, however, he maintained carefully qualified, cautious positions that would not offend industry or conservatives.

Principles Endorsed

Speaking at a "Public Citizens Forum" here sponsored by Nader, Carter endorsed the principles behind two major pieces of antitrust legislation pending in Congress which have been vigorously opposed by business and are now opposed by President Ford.

One bill would give state attorneys general the right to bring lawsuits on behalf of all the citizens of a state for damages caused by anti-trust violations such as price fixing. Large corporations fear this could bring damage assessments of great size.

The other bill would strengthen the powers of the Justice Department to block corporate mergers through injunctions until the legality of such proposed mergers is litigated.

In a development which excited some consumerists even more, the Democratic presidential nominee said unexpectedly that he would support legislation to overturn two recent Supreme Court decisions that have seemed to limit seriously the effectiveness of "class action" lawsuits by citizens.

One decision requires all members of the damaged group to be notified of the filing of the suit — a formidable task and an expensive one. The other decision forbade a group of citizens from totalling relatively minor damages suffered to reach a threshold or minimum damage level required to file a suit against the offending business.

Carter, who was in Washington for the day and returned to Georgia Monday night, also:

— Said he favored a law against what he called "revolving door" movement of persons from jobs in federal regulatory agencies into the industries they had been regulating and vice versa. If Congress did not pass such a law, he would try to prevent such practices by executive order and other means if elected President, Carter said.

— Said he believed that government regulation of industry that tended to elevate or prop up rates charged to customers, as in the case of transportation and freight fares, should be "drastically minimized." He criticized

"sweetheart" relationships between industries and the government agencies meant to regulate them.

— Praised pending legislation to create a Consumer Protection Agency, said he would work for its creation if President Ford vetoes the law and promised to work closely with its members.

— Said he believed there was too much violence on television and expressed a belief that a President had an "obligation" as well as a right to express displeasure to broadcasting networks about the quality of programming. He said, however, he recognized there was a fine line between working for quality and censorship.

'Different Climate' Promised

The Democratic presidential nominee promised the audience — many of whom were consumerists and public interest advocates — there "is going to be a different climate in the White House" if he is elected.

One such person, Kathleen F. O'Reilly, legislative director of the Consumer Federation of America, called his remarks "extremely gratifying."

On some other issues, however, Carter, who was questioned by a panel of journalists and by the large audience, expressed a reluctance to go as far as some consumer advocates might wish.

He again said he did not favor a general "breakup" of oil companies into different companies engaged in oil field-to-service station operations. Only wholesale and retail operations should be divested by the oil companies, he said. As he had done before, he said he would favor forcing oil companies to divest themselves of coal mines and other energy firms unless he was satisfied that adequate competition existed between competing sources of energy.

For the first time, he said that such competition does not now exist at any adequate level.

Aid To Consumerists Disliked

Carter also said he did not favor federal financial assistance to consumer groups to permit them to be more active.

He made only vague promises of giving greater attention to proposals to determine the cancer-causing or toxic properties of substances sold for public consumption.

He expressed a preference for stricter state laws on the incorporation of corporations rather than proposals for federal charters for such corporations.

Carter called for stiff corporate fines for firms that offer bribes abroad but did not spell out in detail his own views on a comprehensive plan to prevent corporate crime.

For a politician once accused of being "fuzzy" on controversial issues it had been a day of sweeping and unusual commitment.

Gas Pipeline Explosion Kills 6

CALHOUN, La. (AP) — A 20-inch natural gas pipeline blew up on Monday near this north Louisiana town, killing six persons whose homes were engulfed in boiling flames which spewed from the rupture, state police said.

The explosion dug a 30-foot crater while a blowtorch of flame roared 200 feet into the sky for nearly an hour.

Police said the explosion was apparently triggered when a road grader hit the pipeline buried under a rural road.

A witness said the blast threw a trailer home into a tree where it burned.

Three trailers and two houses were destroyed by the thundering blast which was felt 6 miles away. A spokesman for United Gas Pipe Line Co., which owned the line, said four persons were killed in one trailer near the pipeline and two died in a second trailer.

'Xynileptich, Do You See What I See?'

Del Rio, Tex. (UPI) — On a clear summer night airline pilots should pay no special heed if they look down and see a swimming pool with its lights twinkling or spy a series of letters constructed from mirrors spelling out, "Linger when you land here, Birdmen."

It is not for them. It is the work of artist Barbara Petch and the 20 members of her "Skylight" study group waiting poolside at her Studio Green home, a former women's wear store on U.S. 90. She is waiting for the space travelers to come again and this time they'll get a big Texas welcome.

Not to be outdone by an Austin, Tex., group known as the Society for the Preservation of Man which set up a circle of lights to attract UFOs to land in the Texas hill country, Mrs. Petch's organization has gone even farther by establishing a reception committee, communications center, landing site and clubhouse to welcome visitors from outer space.

At first it appears to be a well planned spoof of the Austin group's "Project Starlight Inter-

Johnny Dean's collection became the most interesting one in his Normal, Ill., neighborhood when he finally found a place to display it. He and his father hung girders from the ceiling and John-

Art Auction Was Comic, But No Joke

(c) Chicago Sun Times

Chicago — An art auction in the Playboy Towers Hotel was comic from beginning to end but strictly no joke.

Auctioneers Stan Lee and Jenette Kahn sold original, signed drawings of comic-book and cartoon-strip characters and the proceeds went to the Alternative Schools Network, a coalition of some 40 nonsectarian community schools, most of them in the inner city.

The Supermans' B.C.'s, Lil Abners and Captain Marvels were donated to the auction by the illustrators and collectors across the nation.

The benefit auction was a feature of the Chicago Comicon, a three-day meeting of nostalgia buffs, especially those devoted to the derring-do of superheroes and the foibles of their comic cousins.

Some 3,000 admirers and collectors of the pop art attended the convention.

They listened to discussions of underground comics, production and marketing of strips and the histories of some of the better known residents of the funny papers.

Exhibitors offered old and sometimes rare comic books that ranged in price from the few cents printed on the cover to $1,200 for All American Comics No. 16. The All-American No. 16 was displayed by Bill Roche, 26, who said the best offer he had for a single book during the convention was $400 for All Star Comics No. 3.

Other exhibitors in the Grand Ballroom sales area displayed old magazines, posters (including the famous nude Marilyn Monroe calendar shot for $4) and such relics of a middle-aged childhood as Big Little Books, Little Orphan Annie and a Flash Gordon interplanetary ray gun for $80.

If Lee and Miss Kahn were amateur auctioneers, they are certainly professionals in the comic-book business.

The mustachioed Lee is publisher of Marvel Comics. Miss Kahn does that job for D.C. Comics.

'Very Drastic' Increase In Oil Wanted By Some

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Some members of the 13-nation oil cartel want a "very drastic" price increase comparable to the quadrupling of prices that followed the 1973 Arab oil embargo, Saudi Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani said Monday.

He said Saudi Arabia, the world's leading oil exporter, will resist an increase of that size but predicted there will be some kind of increase in 1977.

"I think it is premature to talk now about the percentage," he told reporters at a United Nations press luncheon. "It depends on a variety of factors, including the economic recovery in the West."

"But we are not going to slaughter the hen that lays the gold eggs," he stated. "There is

Turkish Army Put On Alert After Protest

Ankara, Turkey (AP) — Several units of Turkey's 500,000-strong armed forces were put Monday in a state of "advanced preparedness" after Greece protested for the second time the activities of a Turkish survey ship in the Aegean Sea, reliable sources said.

The upgrading of the combat readiness of the Turkish army followed reports from Athens that similar instructions were also issued to Greek army contingents in Thrace and other military bases facing Turkey across the Aegean sea.

So... Losses Posted

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market recorded some scattered losses Monday in trading shortened by an hour at several major exchanges because of Hurricane Belle.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped 2.54 to 983.46. Nearly all the average's loss stemmed from ex-dividends, or dividend-payment adjustments, in six of its component stocks.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about a 4-3 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Big Board volume for the five-hour session came to 11.70 million shares, against 13.93 in the full day's activity Friday.

The NYSE and American, Boston and Cincinnati stock exchanges closed at 3 p.m. EDT as many workers headed home early with the hurricane moving toward the Northeast.

The shortened day produced no signs of a stirring of activity in the market, which has been gripped by lethargy for most of the summer.

In the economic news, Ahmed Zaki Yamani, Saudi Arabia's oil minister, said a price increase for 1977 was likely from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

But news accounts said Yamani also hinted that the increase would be smaller than 10 per cent.

The day marked the first change in the makeup of the Dow Jones industrial average in 17 years.

Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing was added to the hkg Anaconda, which is planning a merger through which it would become part of Atlantic Richfield.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost .30 to 103.49, and the NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks was down .16 at 55.30.

—Staying Ahead—

$2 Bills Rarely Used In Commercial Trade

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

New York — Those first-day-of-issue $2 bills, postmarked by post offices on May 13, sell at $3 to $3.50 in many coin shops. But dealers are growing suspicious of the quantities coming to market. They think some of them are frauds.

"I've had people in here offering to get me however many bills I want," says Don Brigandi, of Donald E. Brigandi & Co. "I think they're taking them to someone at the post office and getting them backdated to May 13." Because of this, Brigandi has quit buying or selling the bills. Their price would probably be even higher, he says, if it weren't for these "rumors of fraud."

Older $2 bills, of the series discontinued in 1966, go for around $2.95 to $3.25 in the shops (you'd get perhaps $2.35 to $2.50 if you had one to sell). Brigandi says that the price has dropped 10 to 15 cents since the new $2 bills came out.

Although there's a suspicious surfeit of the numismatic $2s, it's rare to see a $2 bill in commercial trade.

The sticking point is that banks and stores aren't handing them out in change as routinely as they hand out $1s. In a random check of its branches, New York's Citibank found only about half dispensing the bill normally, with the rest not giving them out unless the customer asked. Many retailers stow $2s under the cash drawer if they happen to get them from customers, and send them back to the bank with their daily deposits.

The Treasury figures that by printing $2s for the price of $1s, it will save somewhere between $4 million and $7 million a year.

But the fledgling $2 bill must still be considered an endangered species. Banks aren't reordering it at a rate large enough to keep it alive, which is red meat for those who think the $2 bill will never catch on in the United States.

The old $2 bill died in 1966, not so much a victim of its bad reputation as of its scarcity. The denomination was printed in inflationary quantities to help finance the Revolutionary War, and again to pay for the Civil War. But in more recent years, the number of $2s was strictly limited by law. In its last printing, only 6 million were made, whereas the new $2s are coming out at a rate of 400 million a year.

The American Bankers Association says that "public acceptance" of the bills has been poor. But the Treasury's Clarence Selin is of the opinion that the public is neutral. It's true that some people return any $2s they get in change, but by and large "people don't care whether they get them or not," he argues. If the banks and the stores would put the bills into circulation, they'd stay there.

Over the past two weeks, the Treasury and Federal Reserve have been meeting with bank presidents and heads of retailing chains, to get them involved in merchandising the $2 bill. If the order came from the top, more banks might pack $2s into their pre-counted packets of $50 and $100, and tellers would make more of an effort to use them for change.

James Conlon, director of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, would like to see the Federal Reserve ship $2s to the banks whether they want them or not, but the Fed is resisting mandatory allocation. Persuasion is the order of the day.

Meanwhile, over at the U.S. Mint, a report is due this month on some possible changes in the country's coinage. A $1 coin, larger than the quarter but smaller than the 50-cent piece, is under consideration. That would doubtless mean dropping the big Eisenhower dollar, modestly circulated in the West but rarely seen anywhere else. I'd also be for dropping the 50-cent piece, which rivals the $2 in popularity.

The final solution to the $2 bill problem is to make it the lowest denomination paper currency — by abolishing the $1. After all, today's $2 buys only about what $1 bought 20 years ago. So cheap a $2 bill deserves to be a coin.

(c) 1976, The Washington Post Company

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Tuesday, August 10, 1976

A young actress: "I want to talk to you. I want you to see me in this Little Theater group. I am a Scorpio. I am going to be a star. If you help me with my horoscope, I'll tell the world it was you. I'm good. I'm going to be great. I believe in astrology. I want you to help me time my moves. My agent is stupid. My publicity man thinks only of money. My psychiatrist 'bugs' me. You're the only one I can rely on — help me with astrology and the world will owe you a debt of gratitude!" Response: You are a beautiful young lady. Your horoscope indicates you will climb the ladder of success. Your interest in astrology will play a significant role. Here are some Scorpio individuals who preceded you: Burt Lancaster, Katharine Hepburn, Tatum O'Neal, Fannie Brice, Dick Cavett and Charles Bronson. As for me, I won't be your astrologer, but you'll succeed, anyway!

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Money, arrangements, budget, art objects, luxury items all are part of montage. You are being deceived by one trying to sell "a bill of goods." There is no free lunch, nothing for nothing. Be aware, alert, creatively skeptical.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): See beyond the immediate — don't immediately accept what appears obvious. Obtain hint from Aries message. You have more allies than might be imagined. Those "in charge" are in your corner. Key now is confidence. You need not take back seat. Know it and act accordingly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your plans coalesce. What had been nebulous can become viable. Organize — bring priorities into focus. Capricorn, Cancer could figure prominently. What you seek can be obtained through research, some added reading. Act accordingly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You're able to graphically illustrate points. You are involved, responsive. Be sure that one you "take to your heart" is worthy. At least, try to be discriminating! Aries, Libra figure prominently. You might receive award, token of appreciation, mark of recognition.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Bright prospects are featured — but avoid premature moves. Don't presume. Instead, double check. Generally, allow others to send signals, develop clues and express view. A pleasant surprise is due — and it could come from professional superior.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You are "with the tide." Means your moves, actions, judgments are accepted, even applauded. One who aided, taught you in past might make reappearance. Be receptive to that possibility. Aquarius, Cancer and Leo could be in picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Highlight versatility, diversification. Experiment and expand. Welcome social contacts. Member of opposite sex figures prominently (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be willing to review, revise, to tear down if necessary to rebuild. Aquarius, Leo, Taurus could be in picture. Accent on details, complicated situation, red tape, values, inheritance, tax dollars.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Find alternatives; be aware of options. Take side streets — means avoid direct confrontations. What appears solid could lack substance. Know it and do some investigating. Be flexible, capable of making changes, adjustments. Short trip becomes wild-goose chase if you fail to verify times, directions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Money, specialty items, unique models, purchases form part of montage. Accent on budget, personal possessions, income potential. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio could be in picture. Steer clear of path of extravagance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Cycle is such that you examine basic issues and come up with answers. Security needs are emphasized. Your judgment, intuition is sharp, on target. You deserve to be confident. One who had been indifferent comes over to your side.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You become involved in organizational planning — questions of responsibility and promotion could arise. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure in picture. Behind scenes intrigue is not to be ignored.

IF AUGUST 10th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are creative, original, have drive, initiative and courage. You need affection, can act at times as if a spoiled child. December could be an outstanding month in a year featuring change, variety and travel. If single, marriage could be on horizon. Aquarius and Leo persons play important roles in your life.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. Call the number of letters in a word or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 4, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Cromwell Favors Huskers As Big Eight Titlists

NEW YORK (AP) — Take it from someone who knows all about beating Oklahoma: Not only will the Sooners have a tough time winning an unprecedented third straight national college football championship but he doesn't even pick them to win the Big Eight Conference.

"I'd probably have to go with Nebraska right now," says Nolan Cromwell, who quarterbacked Kansas to a stunning 23-3 upset of mighty Oklahoma last season, the Sooners' only defeat in three years.

Cromwell was in town Monday along with four other past and prospective All-Americans plus Notre Dame Coach Dan Devine to help kick off an NCAA-ABC college football promotion tour. A whirlwind tour—with a different coach at each stop—will take them to Washington, Detroit, Chicago, Atlanta, Dallas and San Francisco before the final gun sounds Saturday in Los Angeles.

Along with Cromwell, the other players also foresee some changes in college football's hierarchy.

For example, Larry Seivers, Tennessee's All-American wide receiver, says there are "a lot of teams" capable of ending Alabama's domination of the Southeastern Conference. And Kirk Lewis, an offensive tackle from Michigan, picks "Michigan No. 1, Ohio State No. 2" in the Big Ten, meaning a Rose Bowl trip for Bo Schembechler's Wolverines instead of Woody Hayes' Buckeyes.

All-America running back Ricky Bell of Southern California, the 1975 national rushing leader, sees the Trojans rebounding to represent the Pacific-8 in the Rose Bowl after an 8-4 off-year, plus "the potential to win the national championship." And defensive end Willie Fry says that at Notre Dame "the players always keep No. 1 in mind," even in the wake of a somewhat disappointing 8-3 campaign.

Despite Oklahoma's domination of the Big Eight, Cromwell predicts that "people will be after them this year, especially Nebraska. Nebraska was supposed to be rebuilding last year... if you can call such a great year (10-2) a rebuilding year. I'd pick Oklahoma No. 2 in the conference, although last year they did have the better team with more experience and better depth. They'll be a good team again, but they graduated a lot of people."

Seivers thinks Alabama has dominated the SEC much too long. "A lot of people are looking for Georgia to be a real strong team," he said. "I'm looking for Tennessee myself. Alabama lost quite a few people to graduation and I see a lot of teams able to beat them—Georgia, Florida, Tennessee."

Lewis, who muffed last season with an injury, admits it "gets kind of frustrating" staying home while Ohio State takes its annual trip to the Rose Bowl. "Every year I've thought we were better than Ohio State," he said, "and I thought we outplayed them every year, but they either beat us or tied us. Ohio State lost some super people but they've got super talent coming back. But the Michigan team will be as good or better than any in recent years."

After a couple of Rose Bowls, Bell admits he's "spoiled" by the short trip from Los Angeles to Pasadena. "It was quite a letdown when we didn't go last year," he said. "There were a few tears shed. The only reason we didn't go was because we beat ourselves. It wasn't that the other teams beat us; we just made so many mistakes on our own."

Fry wasn't satisfied with Notre Dame's 8-3 record "since Notre Dame is supposed to be the epitome of college football, but I think we did quite well in view of the fact that we had so many young people who hadn't played together. We'll still be a young club, but a very solid ballclub."

Everybody is very optimistic. If we finish below the national championship we won't be satisfied... at least I won't."

Candy Sweet In No-Hitter

Pittsburgh (UPI) — John Candelaria can remember vividly — it wasn't that long ago — playing in the sandlots of Brooklyn and daydreaming about standing on the pitchers mound before a national television audience only one out away from no-hit immortality.

"This is something I dreamed about since I was a little boy," said the Pittsburgh Pirates' 6-foot-7 Candelaria after beating the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-0 with a no-hitter. "It's something every kid dreams about."

"When he (Bill Russell) hit the ball, my first thought was that it was going to drop in," said Candelaria, who turned his dramatic entry into the record books for "Candy Night" in Pittsburgh as thousands of candy bars were given away. "Then I saw Al (Oliver) moving in and I knew I had it."

"It's the fulfillment of a lifetime dream."

The closest the Dodgers came to getting a hit was in the first inning when Ted Sizemore looped a soft fly ball down the right field line that Pirates' outfielder Dave Parker caught knee-high on the dead run.

In the ninth, Candelaria needed only three pitchers to retire the first two batters, getting Dave Lopes on to a grounder to short and Ted Sizemore on a foul ball to right field. Candelaria got one strike on Bill Russell before getting the Dodger shortstop on a pop up to center to wrap up the no-hitter. Lacy had trouble retrieving the ball against the fence.

Candelaria leaped into the air as center fielder Al Oliver caught the ball for the final out and then was mobbed by his teammates. A crowd of more than 15,000 fans gave him a standing ovation as he left the field.

The Pirates scored two runs in the fifth inning when Richie Zisk and Parker opened with singles off losing pitcher Doug Rau, 10-9, and both scored when Bill Robinson slammed a double into the leftfield corner as Lee Lacy had trouble retrieving the ball against the fence.

Candelaria, 23, in his second year with the Pirates, survived a bases-loaded situation in the third inning. With one out, Steve Yeager drew a walk, but was forced at second on a grounder by Rau. Dave Lopes and Ted Sizemore then reached base on errors by Frank Taveras and Robinson, but Candelaria got Russell on a forceout to end the threat.

Candelaria then retired 18 batters in a row to end the game.

It was the first no-hitter ever thrown by a Pittsburgh Pirates pitcher in Pittsburgh and the third in the major leagues this season, following Houston's Larry Dierker and the Chicago White Sox' John "Blue Moon" Odom and Francisco Barrios.

"I feel fantastic—just great," said Candelaria. "I was very nervous in the last inning. I was just trying to keep the ball down, trying to get them one at a time. It's just tremendous."

Stunning Surprise To Texan

By RYLY JANE HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

In an intersectional tennis tournament where the players have never met each other on the court, nothing can really be called an upset.

But Leland Putterman of Houston pulled off the biggest surprise of the experimental tourney. Putterman, the No. 2 player from the Texas section, defeated the No. 1 player of the Intermountain and Missouri Valley sections Monday at Hillcrest Country Club in the 16-and-under age group.

"I didn't think it would be this way in the first round," said the tall Texan. "But you never know what to expect."

Putterman took Mike Benson of Ogden, Utah, to three sets, 4-6, 7-5, 6-4, before meeting Mark Johnson of Henrietta, Okla.

Putterman, utilizing a very strong serve, won the first game, 6-3, and then in the second set, he not only used his strong serve but started rushing the net on the shorter Johnson.

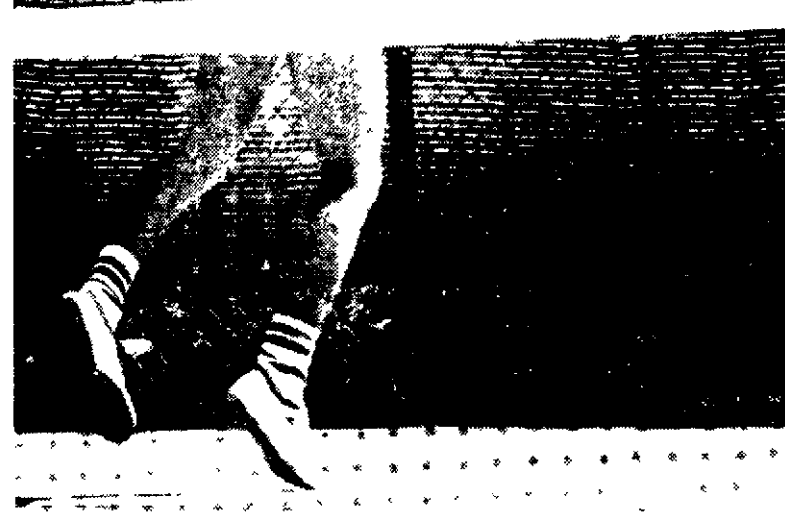

"My serve is one of my stronger points," Putterman said. "I usually serve a lot at home and that really helped me improve it."

"Rushing the net depends on the opponent. Mark can be an explosive player once he gets strong. He didn't seem to be this afternoon so I really started pressing him at the net," he said. "And Mark wasn't lobbing very well. I played him in doubles and he was lobbing all over the place. But today I got to most of them. The wind was a factor in the part of the game."

Putterman charged every ball, and although there was a point in the match when it seemed as if Johnson would run him all over the court, Putterman kept getting to the ball.

"Running is a good part of my game. I'll go after almost any ball — unless it's ridiculous," he allowed.

One tennis player who wasn't able to run after any ball was Sharon Selman of Austin, Tex. Selman had injured an ankle prior to the tournament and wasn't able to play. She forfeited the first two matches and left for home. Cindy Hill of Dallas will fly into Lincoln Monday night to take Selman's place in the tourney.

LELAND PUTTERMAN... returns lob against Johnson.

Cindy Brightfield, the No. 1 player for Missouri Valley from St. Louis, was enthused about the first intersectional tourney for the younger age-groups.

"They've always had them for the 18s, but it's nice they decided to try it for us," she said. "Almost all my best friends are from tennis. You really meet nice people at tournaments and you usually keep seeing them."

"This tournament is more relaxing than any other I've been at. There's less pressure on us," she said. "There is some boredom waiting for matches, but there's always that at a tennis tournament. Here, we can go swimming, play cards, eat or read

"My mom would probably kill me if she knew I went swimming, but it really was hot," she said. "If the water is too warm, it can get you tired and too relaxed to play."

But the water in the pool was nice and cool and just relaxed me enough."

Both singles and doubles play will continue Tuesday at Hillcrest Country Club in the 16 and 14 age groups and in the 12-year-old action at the Lincoln Country Club at 9 a.m.

Wynn Captures First Tourney

Endicott, N.Y. (UPI) — Avoiding the "big numbers" which had cost him chances at previous titles, Bob Wynn Monday won the first tournament of his six-year tour career, the rain-plagued $200,000 B.C. Open.

Wynn earned the $40,000 first prize when rookie Bob Gilder missed a six-foot par putt on the 72nd hole to drop him out of a tie for the lead.

A quadruple bogey eight on the 71st hole cost Wynn the lead in last year's Philadelphia Classic, and a discouraging nine in the third round of last year's PGA Championship also cost him the lead in that event.

He had similarly blown himself out of contention in the final round of tournaments for the past two weeks.

"Yes, I'd made big numbers before when they hurt the most," said Wynn, a 36-year old Californian. "And I'm sure that the bad experience probably helped me a little bit. I knew I could blow it and it wouldn't be the end of the world."

"Of course it's great to win, and that's what we're all out here for, but I learned a long time ago that it isn't the most important thing in my life," said Wynn. "In fact, I really don't need the tour financially. I recently went together with some friends and formed a bank back home. Within five months we had it in the bank."

Wynn scrambled in and out of the lead in Sunday's round, which was doubled to 36-holes due to a Saturday rainout.

He had birdied the tournament's 70th hole to tie Gilder at 12-under-par when a severe rain storm flooded the Ea Joe Golf Club here, postponing the finish until Monday.

Both Wynn and Gilder birdied the par-three 71st hole Monday morning. Wynn parred the par-four 72nd hole, but Gilder missed the green and later missed a six-foot par putt to give Wynn the tournament.

Hill earned $5,650 for his eighth place finish, leaving him $1,400 short of the $1-million mark in career winnings.

BOB WYNN... celebrates birdie putt.

Connors Outclasses Ramirez

HOOKSETT, N.H. (UPI) — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors, playing his brand of bash and dash tennis, overpowered Raul Ramirez Monday to win the $100,000 Volvo International tennis tournament for the second straight year, 7-6, 4-6, 6-3.

In the rain-delayed final, moved indoors from the Mount Cranmore Tennis Club in the White Mountains to the tiny Algonquin Tennis Club, Connors collected $16,000 and a new car. Ramirez won the runnerup $8,000 prize.

It was Connors' fourth straight win over the Mexican since Ramirez beat him in the dramatic fifth match of the North American Zone Davis Cup final last December in Mexico City.

Ramirez started slowly, losing the first three games and slipping five times on the spongy Uniturf synthetic surface, chosen because it most closely resembled the red clay at the outdoor courts at Mt. Cranmore where the tourney started.

Down 4-1, Ramirez rallied to take the lead 6-5. He was serving for the set when Connors broke Ramirez' serve and won a tiebreaker 7-3 by rifling a forehand past the Mexican, who had charged the net.

In the second set, both had trouble holding serve in the tiny double building, which had room for only club members and reporters to watch. Connors jumped to a 3-3 lead on the strength of two service breaks.

Connors serve was broken in the second game, but he led 4-2 and seemed to be in command.

Then a deftly hit Ramirez' lob landed on the baseline to break Connors in the eighth game. It gave the Mexican the needed momentum to break Connors in the 10th when the 23-year-old American muffed on a difficult volley.

Connors opened the third set with two forehand passing shots to break Ramirez' serve. Connors grabbed a 4-3 lead with another break.

Ramirez appeared to have evened the deciding match in the eighth game. But a line judge corrected her call, ordering a

Ramirez point replayed.

Rattled, he lost five of the next seven points, musing an easy backhand to give Connors the match.

Neither player seemed especially comfortable in the cramped quarters. Ramirez lost one point by crashing a lob shot into the ceiling. Connors lost one when a Ramirez' lob hit the end of the building on the first bounce.

After a rest, Ramirez teamed with Brian Gottfried to defeat Argentina's Ricardo Cano and Paraguay's Victor Pecci, 6-3, 6-0, in the doubles final. Ramirez and Gottfried, the Wimbledon champions, took less than 50 minutes to defeat the South Americans.

Columbus Has Lincoln Races

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Columbus — Phase Two of the Lincoln Races opens here Tuesday at Agricultural Park.

After a successful first 15 days of the Lincoln meet at Ak-Sar-Ben in Omaha, the final 10 days of the Lincoln meet will be held here at Columbus.

Lincoln racing will be held Tuesday through Saturday of this week and next week. Columbus will then race its regular 25 days from Aug. 24 through Sept. 25 with a special Labor Day program.

"We hope the people that supported us in Omaha will help us in Columbus," said State Fairgrounds' general manager Henry Brandt. "I hope they will come to Columbus for our first two weeks here."

"We've been very pleased with our attendance and mutual handle in Omaha and we hope it continues to go well in Columbus."

Brandt added

Brandt said he is eyeing a daily average mutual handle of $225,000 for the 10 days of the Lincoln Races in Columbus.

Tuesday's schedule is highlighted by the $3,000 Inaugural Purse, a 6-furlong sprint for allowance runners. There will be no Lincoln stakes races at Columbus as the State Fairgrounds held all its stakes races during the first 15 days in Omaha.

The minimum purse will be $1,500 and the minimum claiming price will be $1,500.

The Lincoln races were forced to divide its dates between Ak-Sar-Ben and Columbus while the new grandstand is being constructed at the State Fairgrounds.

"This is a one-time only expansion of our schedule," noted Columbus Races general manager Warren Albert. "The Lincoln track should be in full operation with its new facilities next year."

Walker Wins Stockholm Mile

STOCKHOLM (AP) — John Walker of New Zealand muffed his own world mile record by 3.7 seconds and American Dwight Stones avenged his poor Olympic showing by beating Jacek Wszola of Poland in the high jump Monday at an international track meet here.

Walker, the Olympic 1,500 meters champion, lunged past West German Thomas Wessinghage at the finish to win the featured mile race for the Dickson Trophy in 3 minutes, 53.07 seconds.

Wessinghage, who surprised the black-vested New Zealander with a strong luck in the final stretch, was only three hundredths of a second behind in 3:53.10 for a new national and European record.

Walker set his world record of 3:49.4 a year ago in Göteborg, Sweden.

Stones, the world record holder from San Diego, cleared 7 feet, 5 1/2 inches, a new meet record but well off his world mark of 7-7 1/2, which he set last Wednesday in Philadelphia. Stones finished third in the rain at the Olympics, and Wszola won the gold.

Wszola was second at 7-4 1/4, and American Mike Winsor as third, also at 7-4 1/4.

Other American winners included Olympic broad jump champion Arnie Robinson and Jim Boldin in the 400-meter hurdles. Also, Carlos Sousa Lopes of Portugal ran history's sixth fastest 10,000 meters.

Lopez, silver medalist in the Olympic 10,000 meters behind Finland's Lasse Viren, set a new Portuguese record of 27:42.8 and finished 3.2 seconds ahead of runnerup Dick Quax of New Zealand.

Dave Bedford of Britain holds the world record of 27:30.8, set three years ago. Lopez might have broken the mark with a stronger pace in the last few laps. He was only one second slower than Bedford's intermediate time, but then slowed down in the last kilometer.

Viren, the first to win gold medals in the 5,000 and 10,000 meters in successive Olympics, entered the mile but wound up a disappointing ninth and last in 4:02.9.

Eamonn Coghlan of Ireland, fourth in the 1,500 meters at Montreal, finished third in 3:55.07.

Wessinghage was the biggest surprise in the opening day of the two-day meet, avenging his poor performance in Montreal where he failed to qualify for the 1,500 final.

"I really didn't expect such a good time," he said. "It was really good for my confidence after my failure in Montreal."

Kenya's Mike Bort, one of the world's top 800 meter runners, was held out of the meet by his government only minutes before the race because of the New Zealander's entry.

Bort, representing the Pacific Coast Club of San Jose, Calif., earlier got special permission from his federation to run as an individual as in Philadelphia last week. But a cable from his federation saying he was not Distance may be a factor for some of the regular Lincoln fans," Albert added. But the Columbus meet annually draws fans from as far away as Kansas City, Des Moines and Sioux Falls.

Albert said the expanded meet and record purse money has lured the finest group of thoroughbreds ever to Columbus. The Columbus Races has slated 10 stakes and feature races.

"It will be a better year than ever for fans to enjoy the Columbus meet," Albert said.

Eight races will be held on weekdays with nine on Saturdays and Labor Day. There will be a daily double on the first two races and exactas will be held on the fourth, sixth and last races each day.

Post time will be 4 p.m. on weekdays and 2 p.m. on Saturdays and Labor Day.

allowed to run spoiled his European comeback.

Other Africans, including world 1,500 meter record holder and former mile record holder Filbert Bayi of Tanzania, withdrew earlier after learning the New Zealanders were coming.

Tanzania led the boycott of almost 30 African nations in the Olympics protesting a four of segregationist South Africa by New Zealand's rugby team.

In the absence of Bort, Willi Wuebeck of West Germany ran to an easy victory in the 800 ahead of European champion Luciano Susang of Yugoslavia. Wuebeck, who was fourth in the Olympics, clocked 1:46.66 and Susang 1:47.34.

Robinson of San Diego, had a leap of 26-1 1/4 well off his personal best of 27-4 1/4.

Bolding, who failed in the U.S. Olympic trials, came home in 49.1 seconds for his second fastest time this year. Quentin Wheeler, fourth in Montreal, was runner-up in 49.7 and Briton Alan Pascoe third in 50.4.

Olympic champion Annegret Richter of West Germany won the women's 100-meter dash in a fast 11.3 for another meet record. Inge Helten made it a West German 1-2 finish, one tenth of a second behind.

The men's 100 meters went to Guy Abrahams of Panama in 10.4 with James Gibbs of Guyana second in 10.6.

Cromwell Favors Huskers As Big Eight Titlists

NEW YORK (AP) — Take it from someone who knows all about beating Oklahoma: Not only will the Sooners have a tough time winning an unprecedented third straight national college football championship but he doesn't even pick them to win the Big Eight Conference.

"I'd probably have to go with Nebraska right now," says Nolan Cromwell, who quarterbacked Kansas to a stunning 23-3 upset of mighty Oklahoma last season, the Sooners' only defeat in three years.

Cromwell was in town Monday along with four other past and prospective All-Americans plus Notre Dame Coach Dan Devine to help kick off an NCAA-ABC college football promotion tour. A whirlwind tour—with a different coach at each stop—will take them to Washington, Detroit, Chicago, Atlanta, Dallas and San Francisco before the final gun sounds Saturday in Los Angeles.

Along with Cromwell, the other players also foresee some changes in college football's hierarchy.

For example, Larry Seivers, Tennessee's All-American wide receiver, says there are "a lot of teams" capable of ending Alabama's domination of the Southeastern Conference. And Kirk Lewis, an offensive tackle from Michigan, picks "Michigan No. 1, Ohio State No. 2" in the Big Ten, meaning a Rose Bowl trip for Bo Schembechler's Wolverines instead of Woody Hayes' Buckeyes.

All-America running back Ricky Bell of Southern California, the 1975 national rushing leader, sees the Trojans rebounding to represent the Pacific-8 in the Rose Bowl after an 8-4 off-year, plus "the potential to win the national championship." And defensive end Willie Fry says that at Notre Dame "the players always keep No. 1 in mind," even in the wake of a somewhat disappointing 8-3 campaign.

Despite Oklahoma's domination of the Big Eight, Cromwell predicts that "people will be after them this year, especially Nebraska. Nebraska was supposed to be rebuilding last year . . . if you can call such a great year (10-2) a rebuilding year. I'd pick Oklahoma No. 2 in the conference, although last year they did have the better team with more experience and better depth. They'll be a good team again, but they graduated a lot of people."

Seivers thinks Alabama has dominated the SEC much too long. "A lot of people are looking for Georgia to be a real strong team," he said. "I'm looking for Tennessee myself. Alabama lost quite a few people to graduation and I see a lot of teams able to beat them—Georgia, Florida, Tennessee."

Lewis, who missed last season with an injury, admits it "gets kind of frustrating" staying home while Ohio State takes its annual trip to the Rose Bowl. "Every year I've thought we were better than Ohio State," he said, "and I thought we outplayed them every year, but they either beat us or tied us. Ohio State lost some super people but they've got super talent coming back. But the Michigan team will be as good or better than any in recent years."

After a couple of Rose Bowls, Bell admits he's "spoiled" by the short trip from Los Angeles to Pasadena. "It was quite a letdown when we didn't go last year," he said. "There were a few tears shed. The only reason we didn't go was because we beat ourselves. It wasn't that the other teams beat us; we just made so many mistakes on our own."

Fry wasn't satisfied with Notre Dame's 8-3 record "since Notre Dame is supposed to be the epitome of college football, but I think we did quite well in view of the fact that we had so many young people who hadn't played together. We'll still be a young club, but a very solid ballclub."

Everybody is very optimistic. If we finish below the national championship we won't be satisfied . . . at least I won't."

Candy Sweet In No-Hitter

Pittsburgh (UPI) — John Candelaria can remember vividly — it wasn't that long ago — playing in the sandlots of Brooklyn and daydreaming about standing on the pitchers mound before a national television audience only one out away from no-hit immortality.

"This is something I dreamed about since I was a little boy," said the Pittsburgh Pirates' 6-foot-7 Candelaria after beating the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-0 with a no-hitter. "It's something every kid dreams about."

"When he (Bill Russell) hit the ball, my first thought was that it was going to drop in," said Candelaria, who timed his dramatic entry into the record books as thousands of candy bars were given away. "Then I saw Al (Oliver) moving in and I knew I had it. 'It's the fulfillment of a lifetime dream.'"

The closest Dodgers came to getting a hit was in the first inning when Ted Sizemore looped a soft fly ball down the right field line that Pirates' outfielder Dave Parker caught knee-high on the deck run.

In the ninth, Candelaria needed only three pitchers to retire the first two batters, getting Dave Lopes on a grounder to short and Ted Sizemore on a foul ball to right field. Candelaria got one strike on Bill Russell before getting the Dodger shortstop on a pop up to center to wrap up the no-hitter. Candelaria had trouble retrieving the ball against the fence.

Candelaria leaped into the air as center fielder Al Oliver caught the ball for the final out and then was mobbed by his teammates. A crowd of more than 15,000 fans gave him a standing ovation as he left the field.

The Pirates scored two runs in the fifth inning when Richie Zisk and Parker opened with singles off losing pitcher Doug Rau, 10-9 and both scored when Bill Robinson slammed a double into the leftfield corner as Lee Lacy had trouble retrieving the ball against the fence.

Candelaria, 23, in his second year with the Pirates, survived a bases-loaded situation in the third inning. With one out, Steve Yeager drew a walk, but was forced at second on a grounder by Rau. Dave Lopes and Ted Sizemore then reached base on errors by Frank Taveras and Robinson, but Candelaria got Russell on a forceout to end the threat.

Candelaria then retired 18 batters in a row to end the game.

It was the first no-hitter ever thrown by a Pittsburgh Pirates pitcher in Pittsburgh and the third in the major leagues this season, following Houston's Larry Dierker and the Chicago White Sox' John "Blue Moon" Odum and Francisco Barrios.

"I feel fantastic—just great," said Candelaria. "I was very nervous in the last inning. I was just trying to keep the ball down, trying to get them one at a time. It's just tremendous."

Stunning Surprise To Texan

By RYLY JANE HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

In an intersectional tennis tournament where the players have never met each other on the court, nothing can really be called an upset.

But Leland Putterman of Houston pulled off the biggest surprise of the experimental tourney. Putterman, the No. 2 player from the Texas section, defeated the No. 1 player of the Intermountain and Missouri Valley sections Monday at Hillcrest Country Club in the 16-and-under age group.

"I didn't think it would be this way in the first round," said the tall Texan. "But you never know what to expect."

Putterman took Mike Benson of Ogden, Utah, to three sets, 4-6, 7-5, 6-4, before meeting Mark Johnson of Henrietta, Okla.

Putterman, utilizing a very strong serve, won the first game, 6-3, and then in the second set, he not only used his strong serve but started rushing the net on the shorter Johnson.

"My serve is one of my stronger points," Putterman said. "I usually serve a lot at home and that really helped me improve it."

"Rushing the net depends on the opponent. Mark can be an explosive player once he gets strong. He didn't seem to be this afternoon so I really started pressing him at the net," he said. "And Mark wasn't lobbing very well. I played him in doubles and he was lobbing all over the place. But today I got to most of them. The wind was a factor in the part of the game."

Putterman charged every ball, and although there was a point in the match when it seemed as if Johnson would run him all over the court, Putterman kept getting to the ball.

"Running is a good part of my game. I'll go after almost any ball — unless it's ridiculous," he allowed.

One tennis player who wasn't able to run after any ball was Sharon Selman of Austin, Tex. Selman had injured an ankle prior to the tournament and wasn't able to play. She forfeited the first two matches and left for home. Cindy Hill of Dallas will fly into Lincoln Monday night to take Selman's place in the tourney.

LELAND PUTTERMAN . . . returns lob against Johnson.

Cindy Brightfield, the No. 1 player for Missouri Valley from St. Louis, was enthused about the first intersectional tourney for the younger age-groups.

"They've always had them for the 18s, but it's nice they decided to try it for us," she said. "Almost all my best friends are from tennis. You really meet nice people at tournaments, and you usually keep seeing them."

"This tournament is more relaxing than any other I've been at. There's less pressure on us," she said. "There is some boredom waiting for matches, but there's always that at a tennis tournament. Here, we can go swimming, play cards, eat or read."

"My mom would probably kill me if she knew I went swimming, but it really was hot," she said. "If the water is too warm, it can get you tired and too relaxed to play. But the water in the pool was nice and cool and just relaxed me enough."

Both singles and doubles play will continue Tuesday at Hillcrest Country Club in the 16 and 14 age groups and in the 12-year-old action at the Lincoln Country Club at 9 a.m.

Wynn Captures First Tourney

Endicott, N.Y. (UPI) — Avoiding the "big numbers" which had cost him chances at previous titles, Bob Wynn Monday won the first tournament of his six-year tour career, the rain-plagued $200,000 B.C. Open.

Wynn earned the $40,000 first prize when rookie Bob Gilder missed a six-foot par putt on the 72nd hole to drop him out of a tie for the lead.

A quadruple bogey eight on the 71st hole cost Wynn the lead in last year's Philadelphia Classic, and a discouraging nine in the third round of last year's PGA Championship also cost him the lead in that event.

He had similarly blown himself out of contention in the final round of tournaments for the past two weeks.

"Yes, I'd made big numbers before when they hurt the most," said Wynn, a 36-year old Californian. "And I'm sure that the bad experience probably helped me a little bit. I knew I could blow it and it wouldn't be the end of the world."

"Of course it's great to win, and that's what we're all out here for, but I learned a long time ago that it isn't the most important thing in my life," said Wynn. "In fact, I really don't need the tour financially. I recently went together with some friends and formed a bank back home. Within five months we had it in the black."

Wynn scrambled in and out of the lead in Sunday's round, which was doubled to 36-holes due to a Saturday rainout.

He had birdied the tournament's 70th hole to tie Gilder at 12-under-par when a severe rain storm flooded the En Joie Golf Club here, postponing the finish until Monday.

Both Wynn and Gilder birdied the par-three 71st hole Monday morning. Wynn parred the par-four 72nd hole, but Gilder missed the green and later missed a six-foot par putt to give Wynn the tournament.

Hill earned $5,650 for his eighth place finish, leaving him $1,400 short of the $1-million mark in career winnings.

BOB WYNN . . . celebrates birdie putt.

Connors Outclasses Ramirez

HOOKSETT, N.H. (UPI) — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors, playing his brand of bash and dash tennis, overpowered Raul Ramirez Monday to win the $100,000 Volvo International tennis tournament for the second straight year, 7-6, 4-6, 6-3.

In the rain-delayed final, moved indoors from the Mount Cranmore Tennis Club in the White Mountains to the tiny Algonquin Tennis Club, Connors collected $16,000 and a new car. Ramirez won the runnerup $8,000 prize.

It was Connors' fourth straight win over the Mexican since Ramirez beat him in the dramatic fifth match of the North American Zone Davis Cup finals last December in Mexico City.

Ramirez started slowly, losing the first three games and slipping five times on the spongy Uniturf synthetic surface, chosen because it most closely resembled the red clay at the outdoor courts at Mt. Cranmore where the tourney started.

Down 4-1, Ramirez rallied to take the lead 6-5. He was serving for the set when Connors broke Ramirez' serve and won a tiebreaker 7-3 by rifling a forehand past the Mexican, who had charged the net.

In the second set, both had trouble holding serve in the tiny double building, which had room for only club members and reporters to watch. Connors jumped to a 3-2 lead on the strength of two service breaks.

Connors serve was broken in the second game, but he led 4-2 and seemed to be in command.

Then a deftly hit Ramirez' lob landed on the baseline to break Connors in the eighth game. It gave the Mexican the needed momentum to break Connors in the 10th when the 23-year-old American missed on a difficult volley.

Connors opened the third set with two forehand passing shots to break Ramirez' serve. Connors grabbed a 4-3 lead with another break.

Ramirez appeared to have evened the deciding match in the eighth game. But a line judge corrected her call, ordering a

Ramirez point replayed.

Rattled, he lost five of the next seven points, missing an easy backhand to give Connors the match.

Neither player seemed especially comfortable in the cramped quarters. Ramirez lost one point by crashing a lob shot into the ceiling. Connors lost one when a Ramirez' lob hit the end of the building on the first bounce.

After a rest, Ramirez teamed with Brian Gottfried to defeat Argentina's Ricardo Cano and Paraguay's Victor Pecci, 6-3, 6-0, in the doubles final. Ramirez and Gottfried, the Wimbledon champions, took less than 50 minutes to defeat the South Americans.

Columbus Has Lincoln Races

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Columbus — Phase Two of the Lincoln Races opens here Tuesday at Agricultural Park.

After a successful first 15 days of the Lincoln meet at Ak-Sar-Ben in Omaha, the final 10 days of the Lincoln meet will be held here at Columbus.

Lincoln racing will be held Tuesday through Saturday of this week and next week. Columbus will then race its regular 25 days from Aug. 24 through Sept. 25 with a special Labor Day program.

"We hope the people that supported us in Omaha will help us in Columbus," said State Fairgrounds' general manager Henry Brandt. "I hope they will come to Columbus for our first two weeks here."

"We've been very pleased with our attendance and mutuel handle in Omaha and we hope it continues to go well in Columbus."

Brandt added.

Brandt said he is eyeing a daily average mutuel handle of $225,000 for the 10 days of the Lincoln Races in Columbus.

Tuesday's schedule is highlighted by the $3,000 Inaugural Purse, a 6-furlong sprint for allowance runners. There will be no Lincoln stakes races at Columbus as the State Fairgrounds held all its stakes races during the first 15 days in Omaha.

The minimum purse will be $1,500 and the minimum claiming price will be $1,500.

The Lincoln races were forced to divide its dates between Ak-Sar-Ben and Columbus while the new grandstand is being constructed at the State Fairgrounds.

"This is a one-time only expansion of our schedule," noted Columbus Races general manager Warren Albert. "The Lincoln track should be in full operation with its new facilities next year."

Walker Wins Stockholm Mile

STOCKHOLM (AP) — John Walker of New Zealand missed his own world mile record by 3.7 seconds and American Dwight Stones avenged his poor Olympic showing by beating Jacek Wszola of Poland in the high jump Monday at an international track meet here.

Walker, the Olympic 1,500 meters champion, lunged past West German Thomas Wessinghage at the finish to win the featured mile race for the Dickson Trophy in 3 minutes, 53.07 seconds.

Wessinghage, who surprised the black-vested New Zealander with a strong kick in the final stretch, was only three hundredths of a second behind in 3:53.10 for a new national and European record.

Walker set his world record of 3:49.4 a year ago in Goteborg, Sweden.

Stones, the world record holder from San Diego, cleared 7 feet, 5½ inches, a new meet record but well off his world mark of 7-7¼ which he set last Wednesday in Philadelphia. Stones finished third in the rain at the Olympics, and Wszola won the gold.

Wszola was second at 7-4¼, and American Mike Winsor as third, also at 7-4¼.

Other American winners included Olympic broad jump champion Arnie Robinson and Jim Bolding in the 400-meter hurdles. Also, Carlos Sousa Lopez of Portugal ran history's sixth fastest 10,000 meters.

Lopez, silver medalist in the Olympic 10,000 meters behind Finland's Lasse Viren, set a new Portuguese record of 27:42.8 and finished 3.2 seconds ahead of runnerup Dick Quax of New Zealand.

Dave Bedford of Britain holds the world record of 27:30.8, set three years ago. Lopez might have broken the mark with a stronger pace in the last few laps. He was only one second slower than Bedford's intermediate time, but then slowed down in the last kilometer.

Viren, the first to win gold medals in the 5,000 and 10,000 meters in successive Olympics, entered the mile but wound up a disappointing ninth and last in 4:02.9.

Eamonn Coghlan of Ireland, fourth in the 1,500 meters at Montreal, finished third in 3:55.07.

Wessinghage was the biggest surprise in the opening day of the two-day meet, avenging his poor performance in Montreal where he failed to qualify for the 1,500 final.

"I really didn't expect such a good time," he said. "It was really good for my confidence after my failure in Montreal."

Kenya's Mike Boit, one of the world's top 800 meter runners, was held out of the meet by his government only minutes before the race because of the New Zealander's entry.

Boit, representing the Pacific Coast Club of San Jose, Calif., earlier got special permission from his federation to run as an individual as in Philadelphia last week. But a cable from his federation saying he was not

"Distance may be a factor for some of the regular Lincoln fans," Albert added. "But the Columbus meet annually draws fans from as far away as Kansas City, Des Moines and Sioux Falls."

Albert said the expanded meet and record purse money has lured the finest group of thoroughbreds ever to Columbus. The Columbus Races has slated 10 stakes and feature races.

"It will be a better year than ever for fans to enjoy the Columbus meet," Albert said.

Eight races will be held on weekdays with nine on Saturdays and Labor Day. There will be a daily double on the first two races and exactas will be held on the fourth, sixth and last races each day.

Post time will be 4 p.m. on weekdays and 2 p.m. on Saturdays and Labor Day.

allowed to run spoiled his European comeback.

Other Africans, including world 1,500 meter record holder and former mile record holder Filbert Bayi of Tanzania, withdrew earlier after learning the New Zealanders were coming.

Tanzania led the boycott of almost 30 African nations in the Olympics protesting a four of segregationist South Africa by New Zealand's rugby team.

In the absence of Boit, Willi Wuelbeck of West Germany ran to an easy victory in the 800, ahead of European champion Luciano Susanj of Yugoslavia. Wuelbeck, who was fourth in the Olympics, clocked 1:46.66 and Susanj 1:47.34.

Robinson, of San Diego, had a leap of 26-1¼, well off his personal best of 27-4¼.

Bolding, who failed in the U.S. Olympic trials, came home in 49.1 seconds for his second fastest time this year. Quentin Wheeler, fourth in Montreal, was runner-up in 49.7 and Briton Alan Pascoe third in 50.4.

Olympic champion Annegret Richter of West Germany won the women's 100-meter dash in a time 11.3 for another meet record. Inge Helten made it a West German 1-2 finish, one tenth of a second behind.

The men's 100 meters went to Guy Abrahams of Panama in 10.4 with James Gilkes of Guyana second in 10.6.

Morning Briefing

Racing Inductions Finalized

The ill-fated Ruffian and jockey Braulio Baeza will be inducted into the Hall of Fame at the National Museum of Racing on Tuesday with five other horses, trainer Woody Stephens and the late trainer Robert Smith.

Ruffian was destroyed after breaking down in a match race last year with Foolish Pleasure.

Other horses who will be inducted included Susan's Girl, Alsab, Bed O'Roses, Neuvil and Northern Dancer.

Football

Al DeRogatus, a fixture on NBC-TV broadcasts of National Football League games, has been dropped from the network's roster of color commentators.

Denver Broncos' head coach John Ralston said the team picked up 6-4, 250-pound guard Joe Sullivan from San Diego in exchange for an undisclosed 1977 draft choice.

All-pro offensive tackle Rayfield Wright of the Dallas Cowboys has signed a multiyear contract.

Atlanta Braves' catcher Biff Pocoroba was placed on the disabled list Monday for the remainder of the season because of ligament damage to his knee.

Shirley Povlich, retired sports columnist of the Washington Post and the Tom Meany, a former New York sportswriter received the 1975 J.G. Taylor Spink Award Monday during baseball's Hall of Fame ceremonies.

Cincinnati Reds' left-hander Don Gullett remained in Los Angeles Monday while the team moved on to Chicago in order to have his left shoulder examined by an orthopedic specialist.

Garry Templeton is expected to take over the shortstop's job for the St. Louis Cardinals after being called up Sunday from the National League's club at Tulsa.

Former New York Yankee pitcher Mel Stottlemyre will be organizational pitching coach for Seattle's American League baseball franchise.

The Cleveland Indians said catcher Alan Ashby was placed on the 15-day disabled list Monday as a result of a fractured thumb he suffered in the second game of Sunday's doubleheader at Detroit.

The Montreal Expos placed catcher Barry Foote on the supplementary 15-day disabled list retroactive to Aug 7.

California Angels' outfielder Bobby Bonds underwent successful surgery on his right hand Monday.

Hockey

The Pittsburgh Penguins of the National Hockey League said they have signed goaltender Denis Herron, a free agent who played for Kansas City last year.

The Detroit Red Wings have agreed to release assistant coach Denis DeJordy from the final year of his contract so he can become coach of the Laval Nationals of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League.

The World Hockey Association announced Monday the transfer of its Cleveland franchise to St. Paul, Minn., and the sale of its financially troubled San Diego team to baseball owner-hamburger baron Ray Kroc.

Boxing

Muhammad Ali is now officially a minister. He had been suspended from the Muslim religion because of his boxing activities. But he was reinstated by Wallace D. Muhammad, chief minister of the Nation of Islam and son of the late Elijah Muhammad.

French middleweight champion Gratien Tonna was freed from jail Monday awaiting trial for a traffic death his attorney claimed occurred because the boxer is illiterate and can not read road signs.

Howard Davis, the Olympic gold medal winner from Glen Cove, N.Y., will receive the Val Barker Cup as the outstanding boxer in the recent Montreal competition at the 51st Boxing Writers Association Dinner Friday night.

Other Sports

Speedboat racer Dick Satton crashed his powerboat into a wave trough on Lake Paloude and was killed Sunday.

Within the next few years, pro basketball may return to Kentucky, says John Y. Brown, former president of the defunct American Basketball Association.

Dave Frame increased his lead during the fifth round of the $50,000 Buffalo Open Bowling Tournament.

Air Force Capt. Paul Boggs, who won the men's springboard diving gold medal at the Montreal Olympic Games, said Monday he plans to leave the military to attend law school.

Six American wheelchair archers took gold medals Monday, highlighting a big day for United States athletes at the Olympics for the Physically Disabled.

House and Senate conferees agreed on a compromise to allocate more than $49 million for facilities for the 1980 Winter Olympics in Lake Placid, N.Y.

Ohio State To Be Checked

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — NCAA and Big Ten officials say they will investigate alleged recruiting violations against Ohio State University, but it's a move that spokesmen say is standard.

NCAA executive director Warren S. Brown said the organization would look into the charges that were made last week by the Michigan State University student newspaper at Michigan State University.

Ohio State University director of athletics J. Edward Weaver said Monday OSU has received no formal notification of any NCAA investigation into the alleged recruiting violations.

OSU has been placed on three years' probation by the NCAA for recruiting violations, Ohio State football Coach

Weaver issued the following statement: "Ohio State University has received no formal notification of any investigation on the part of the NCAA concerning the alleged recruiting violations reported last week by the Michigan State University student newspaper Ohio State University and the Big Ten consulted regarding the matter immediately following the initial allegations and will proceed to investigate the validity of these reports. The Ohio State University repeats its earlier pledge of full cooperation in any official investigation."

MSU has been placed on three years' probation by the NCAA for recruiting violations, Ohio State football Coach

Woody Hayes recently admitted the probe of MSU began after he voiced complaints about recruiting policies at the rival school. "I have not had the chance to read the stories," Brown said. "We've received all our information first hand. But, we always look into allegations which appear in print."

In three copyrighted stories last week the State News reported that the OSU coaching staff promised cash and trips to the Rose Bowl as recruiting inducements. Both are violations of Big Ten and NCAA rules.

Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke said the conference "has an obligation to conduct an inquiry into any allegation of violations."

The four living new inductees in the Baseball Hall of Fame display their plaques Monday after their induction.

Roberts, Lemon Enshrined

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Robin Roberts made light of his propensity to give up "gopher" balls and Bob Lemon recalled that he once "stuck a ball in my mother's ear" during baseball's Hall of Fame induction ceremonies Monday.

Roberts and Lemon, premier pitchers during the 1950s, were among the six new members honored at this traditional birthplace of baseball. Rain forced the ceremonies indoors to the Otesaga Hotel, a few blocks from the Hall of Fame and Museum building where they are normally held.

Also inducted were Fred Lindstrom, a lifetime .311 hitter in the National League; former American League umpire Cal Hubbard; Roger Connor, home run king in pre-1900; and Oscar Charleston, Negro League standout during the 1920s and 1930s. Both Connor and Charleston are deceased.

Roberts won 20 games or more six straight years starting in 1950 with the National League champion Philadelphia Phillies. A hard worker with a live fast ball and good control, the right-handed Roberts won 286 games and lost 245 in his career and in 1956 established a major league record by giving up 46 home runs.

Roberts joked that he had requested that every player who had hit a home run off him be invited here for his induction. "But I was told Cooperstown was not big enough," said Roberts, who pitched in the majors for 19 seasons.

Turning serious Roberts, now 49, said he never thought about the Hall of Fame during his playing days. "I'm just very thrilled to be here," he said.

Lemon, who turned to pitching at age 26 after failing as a third baseman and outfielder, posted seven 20-victory seasons including an over-all 207-128 record, all with the Cleveland Indians.

"It's downhill from here on," said Lemon, now 55 and the pitching coach for the New York Yankees. "This is the whole thing, my whole life." He said he felt so good that he even wanted to thank the sports writers who didn't vote for him.

Both Lemon and Roberts were elected to the Hall by the Baseball Writers Association of America. Lindstrom, Hubbard and Connor were elected by the Veterans Committee and Charleston by the Negro Leagues Committee.

Lemon recalled his old teammate Early Wynn's motto:

"I'd stick a ball in my mother's ear if it would help me win a ball game." Lemon said as a youngster he used to play catch with his father. "I'd just learned to throw a curve ball and I told my mom to come out of the house and watch me throw it. Well, the curve was a hanger and I stuck it right in her ear." Lemon's mother, Ruth, 83, came from California for the induction.

The former Indian also joked that he never took the game home with him. "I always left it at a bar on the way home."

NSAA Meetings To Begin

The Nebraska School Activities Association's series of rules interpretations meetings for high school coaches and game officials in football and volleyball will begin Aug. 16, the Association announced.

"The rules aren't drastically changed in the past year, but there are some spectators at high school games will see as obviously different," said Assistant Executive Secretary Rex Jones, the NSAA's supervisor of officials.

"A major change, in terms of safety for our athletes, covers what is known as butt blocking and face tackling. An athlete no longer can deliver a blow in football while either blocking or tackling where the face mask or any part of the front or top of the helmet is the primary point of contact," Jones said.

Changes in high school rules are adopted by the National Federation of High School Athletic Associations, of which the NSAA is a member. All

Nebraska high schools belong to the NSAA, and all high school game officials must be registered by the NSAA.

"The rule change probably the most noticeable to fans will be encroachment," Jones said. "Once the ball is ready to be snapped and both teams are on the line of scrimmage, any player on either side breaking the plane of the scrimmage line will be guilty of encroachment (a five-yard penalty). The purpose is to eliminate the practice of players taking cheap shots following a false start."

"We can imagine every middle guard in America who likes to jump around on the line of scrimmage to shake up the offense will think this is the most unfair rule in the world. He can still jump around. He simply can't jump across the scrimmage line before the snap or he'll be called for encroachment," Jones said.

One of the requirements for game officials to be registered to work high school games is attendance at a rules interpretation meeting. Another is passing a written test covering the rules of their sport. Head coaches from each high school must also attend a rules interpretation meeting.

Roberts, Lemon Enshrined

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Robin Roberts made light of his propensity to give up "gopher" balls and Bob Lemon recalled that he once "stuck a ball in my mother's ear" during baseball's Hall of Fame induction ceremonies Monday.

Roberts and Lemon, premier pitchers during the 1950s, were among the six new members honored at this traditional birthplace of baseball. Rain forced the ceremonies indoors to the Otesaga Hotel, a few blocks from the Hall of Fame and Museum building where they are normally held.

Also inducted were Fred Lindstrom, a lifetime .311 hitter in the National League; former American League umpire Cal Hubbard; Roger Connor, home run king in pre-1900, and Oscar Charleston, Negro League standout during the 1920s and 1930s. Both Connor and Charleston are deceased.

Roberts won 20 games or more six straight years starting in 1950 with the National League champion Philadelphia Phillies. A hard worker with a live fast ball and good control, the right-handed Roberts won 286 games and lost 245 in his career and in 1956 established a major league record by giving up 46 home runs.

Roberts joked that he had requested that every player who had hit a home run off him be invited here for his induction. "But I was told Cooperstown was not big enough," said Roberts, who pitched in the majors for 19 seasons.

Turning serious Roberts, now 49, said he never thought about the Hall of Fame during his playing days. "I'm just very thrilled to be here," he said.

Lemon, who turned to pitching at age 26 after failing as a third baseman and outfielder, posted seven 20-victory seasons including an over-all 207-128 record, all with the Cleveland Indians.

"It's downhill from here on," said Lemon, now 55 and the pitching coach for the New York Yankees. "This is the whole thing, my whole life." He said he felt so good that he even wanted to thank the sports writers who didn't vote for him.

Both Lemon and Roberts were elected to the Hall by the Baseball Writers Association of America. Lindstrom, Hubbard and Connor were elected by the Veterans Committee and Charleston by the Negro League Committee.

Lemon recalled his old teammate Early Wynn's motto:

"I'd stick a ball in my mother's ear if it would help me win a ball game." Lemon said as a youngster he used to play catch with his father. "I'd just learned to throw a curve ball and I told my mom to come out of the house and watch me throw it. Well, the curve was a hanger and I stuck it right in her ear." Lemon's mother, Ruth, 83, came from California for the induction.

The former Indian also joked that he never took the game home with him. "I always left it at a bar on the way home."

NSAA Meetings To Begin

The Nebraska School Activities Association's series of rules interpretations meetings for high school coaches and game officials in football and volleyball will begin Aug. 16, the Association announced.

"The rules aren't drastically changed in the past year, but there are some spectators at high school games who see as obviously different," said Assistant Executive Secretary Rex Jones, the NSAA's supervisor of officials.

"A major change, in terms of safety for our athletes, covers what is known as butt blocking and face tackling. An athlete no longer can deliver a blow in football while either blocking or tackling where the face mask or any part of the front or top of the helmet is the primary point of contact," Jones said.

Changes in high school rules are adopted by the National Federation of High School Athletic Associations, of which the NSAA is a member. All

Nebraska high schools belong to the NSAA, and all high school game officials must be registered by the NSAA.

"The rule change probably the most noticeable to fans will be encroachment," Jones said. "Once the ball is ready to be snapped and both teams are on the line of scrimmage, any player on either side breaking the plane of the scrimmage line will be guilty of encroachment (a five-yard penalty). The purpose is to eliminate the practice of players taking cheap shots following a false start."

"We can imagine every middle guard in America who likes to jump around on the line of scrimmage to shake up the offense will think this is the most unfair rule in the world. He can still jump around. He simply can't jump across the scrimmage line before the snap or he'll be called for encroachment," Jones said.

One of the requirements for game officials to be registered to work high school games is attendance at a rules interpretation meeting. Another is passing a written test covering the rules of their sport. Head coaches from each high school must also attend a rules interpretation meeting.

Burwell Preparing For Rodeo Crowds

BURWELL, Neb. (AP) — This town of 1,400 persons expects about 40,000 visitors Thursday when professional cowboys and cowgirls from across the nation begin competing at the 55th annual "Nebraska's Big Rodeo."

The schedule includes two sections of saddle bronc riding, calf roping, bareback bronc riding, barrel racing and steer wrestling. There also will be daily brahma bull riding competition and wild horse races.

The Big Rodeo was begun after Homer C. Stokes saw a rodeo in Norton, Kan., in 1921, and solicited $25 in prize money from Burwell businesses, according to a pictorial history entitled, "Fifty Years of Nebraska's Big Rodeo."

In the "olden days," the Big Rodeo included trick roping, trick riding, and even an attack by Indians on a settlement.

Although a silver-mounted belt buckle was once sufficient reward for the cowboys' and cowgirls' work, participants in the present Big Rodeo can earn about $1,000 a week.

The rodeo will run from Thursday through Sunday and will feature country-western entertainers and the selection of Miss Rodeo Nebraska.

Heft Equals Kubitschek Ace

Two holes-in-one were fired Sunday at the Knolls Country Club.

Bob Kubitschek stroked his ace on the No. 11, 85-yard hole using a wedge. His son, Rob Kubitschek along with Glen and Frank Heft witnessed the shot.

Kubitschek used the ace on his way to a record-tying round of 23 on the back nine.

Glen Heft, who was one of the witnesses of Kubitschek's hole-in-one, was not to be outdone.

Stiner Qualifies

Ex-Lincoln High diver Marc Stiner, who now competes for Michigan State, qualified for the National AAU Diving Meet over the weekend.

Stiner finished second in the one-meter competition in a pre-qualifying meet in Chicago, the only route to a berth in the nationals.

The top five finishers in each event in the pre-qualifying meets advance to the nationals which will be held in Decatur, Ga., starting Aug. 17.

Investigator: Collision 'Probably Avoidable'

Stratton (AP) — "It was probably an avoidable accident," said accident investigator Robert E. Kitzmiller of Lincoln, as he stood at a railroad crossing where a freight train hit a Sunday school bus Sunday.

The former South Dakota state trooper, now an employee of the U.S. Department of Transportation, shook his head as he talked quietly Monday about the tragedy which killed a minister, his wife and seven children.

As Kitzmiller and a newsman talked, a west-bound Burlington Northern freight train, its whistle sounding loudly, rolled through the crossing at an estimated 50 to 60 miles per hour. The engineer waved as Kitzmiller took pictures of the train and the flashing signal lights on the crossing sign.

The bright yellow caboose on the end of the long line of black and orange coal hopper cars was plainly visible for about one mile as it moved westward.

Sunday's train had come from the west at about 60 miles per hour on a clear day. The engineer, Floyd Wesch, 51, McCook, said later, "I don't think the driver ever saw me."

The driver was the Rev. Thomas B. Nerren, 44. He, his wife, Chirlene, 31, and one of their two sons, Thomas, 8, were among the nine dead. Another son, William, 3, was listed in fair condition in a Denver hospital.

The other children killed were Cindy Jo Minary, 3, her sister, Debra, 7; Julianna Scarrow, 4, her sister, Jennifer, 7, and brother Steven Lloyd, 3; and Holly Schoenberger.

Funeral services for three Scarrow children have been scheduled for 10 a.m. Wednesday in the Stratton High School gymnasium. Burial will be in Rose Hill Cemetery, one mile from the intersection where they died. Two other children of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Scarrow remain hospitalized in serious condition.

Funeral services for the two Minary girls were scheduled for 11 a.m. Tuesday at the Church of Christ in Palisade. Burial will be in Palisade Cemetery. Ann Marie Minary, 4, another child of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Minary, remained hospitalized in serious condition Monday.

Seven of the eight children injured remained hospitalized Monday. Their conditions ranged from fair to serious and hospital authorities in Benkelman, Stratton and Denver, 250 miles to the west, said all were expected to live. One child, James M. Williamson Jr., 8, was treated and released at a local hospital Sunday.

Town Wonders How It Happened

Stratton (AP) — Residents of this tiny southwestern Nebraska community gathered around the soda fountain at the Stratton Drug Store Monday to wonder how Sunday's bus-train crash could have happened.

The air was filled with the talk of the accident, which claimed nine lives, around the shaded benches where the old men sit to visit.

As flags flew at half-staff in front of many business places, federal and state investigators gathered with Burlington Northern Railroad officials to re-enact the crash.

This time, the only passengers on a borrowed school bus were investigators, not children. The freight train approached the crossing slowly, instead of at the 57 mile-per-hour speed railroadmen said Sunday's train was traveling. The train and the bus both stopped, backed up and approached again as investigators took pictures, made measurements and tried to determine how it happened that the Rev. Thomas B. Nerren didn't see the train Sunday.

No answers were immediately forthcoming.

The re-enactment took less than half an hour.

While it was staged, newsmen talked with residents about the deaths of the minister, his wife and child and six other children from this community.

John Mohr, a school board member, said the minister was one of "the most trusted and conscientious drivers" the school district had. The minister drove a school bus for the district during the regular school year.

Stratton School Supt. Harry Rogers said of the minister, "I had no doubts about his carefulness. He was more than careful around the kids at school — very careful."

Asked about the condition of the bus the Rev. Mr. Nerren was driving, Rogers said, "We felt it was in real good shape."

The school district sold the bus to the church for $725 last spring.

Bob Hardy, a member of the Church of Christ, said the church "didn't encounter any problems with it either."

Hardy described the minister as "a real competent bus driver."

Hardy said the idea of buying the bus was the Rev. Mr. Nerren's.

"He wanted a bus route because he wanted to associate with the kids," Hardy said.

The Rev. Mr. Nerren moved to Stratton in August 1975 from Americus, Ga. He was a native of Mississippi.

Kenneth Minary, 30, lost two children in the accident. He said the minister "was running just a little bit late" on his scheduled Sunday morning pickups.

"He usually was at our house about 9 or 9:15," Minary said Sunday. He said, the minister arrived about 9:20. Officials said the accident occurred between 9:25 and 9:30 a.m. Bible School was to start at 9:30 a.m.

Stratton Bus Crash State's Worst Ever

By United Press International

A Nebraska Department of Roads official said Monday the weekend church bus-train accident at Stratton was the worst bus tragedy in the state's history.

Before Sunday's crash, which claimed nine lives, the spokesman said the most serious accidents had been a truck-school van collision which claimed six lives at Davenport in 1970 and a school bus-train crash which left four dead at Waterloo in 1967.

The spokesman said in light of the Stratton incident, the department's Accident Records Bureau was starting to compile statistics on bus accidents.

The bureau said as of Monday 30 persons had died on Nebraska highways since Aug. 1, compared with six on the same time span a year ago.

Sixteen of the deaths this month occurred during the past weekend, the highest weekend toll ever in Nebraska, according to a spokesman at the state's Accident Records Bureau.

Gov. J. James Exon called the situation a "tragedy" and said keeping the death rate down was now out of the hands of his

Highway Safety Advisory Committee.

Exon said his committee has inaugurated a safety awareness campaign, "but when you get right down to it, it is up to the driver now."

The Sunday crash at Stratton, which also injured eight persons, wasn't the first large-scale emergency the community had experienced.

An Amtrak passenger train derailed on Feb. 12, 1974, on the east edge of Stratton, leaving 21 persons injured.

Ron Crow, a member of the first rescue squad to reach Sunday's victims, said the train derailment helped prepare emergency workers.

Crow, who is Hitchcock County Hospital administrator in Stratton, said the rescue effort was "real well organized. We were ready."

Dr. Kenneth Stout of Stratton, who treated both the Amtrak and Sunday bus accident victims, said the Amtrak derailment was "nothing like" Sunday's accident.

"None were this seriously injured," he said.

Eyewitness 'Just Wants To Forget'

Stratton (AP) — "I just want to forget it and get this knot out of my stomach," Don Kotschwar said Monday of the bus-train crash which killed nine persons and injured eight others.

Kotschwar, the superintendent of utilities for this community of about 480 persons, witnessed Sunday's train-church bus crash from about 150 feet away. He was the first man on the scene.

Kotschwar and a utility crew were installing a new utility pole just to the northeast of the dusty little crossing where the accident occurred about 9:25 a.m. Sunday.

Kotschwar said the crew had taken a break and he was "leaning on the hood of his pickup truck smoking a cigarette when it happened."

Moments before the crash, Kotschwar said, the Rev. Thomas B. Nerren, 44, brought the bus he was driving to a halt at a stop sign at an intersection 150 feet north of the railroad crossing. The flashers on the Church of Christ bus, which was purchased from the Stratton School District for $725 last spring, were working then, Kotschwar recalled.

"He waved," Kotschwar said of the minister, adding that he waved back as the bus made the right hand turn and began heading slowly towards the railroad track.

At the moment, Kotschwar said, he could see the approaching 67-car eastbound Burlington Northern freight train plainly.

"The train had been a hootin' and the flasher was a goin'."

said Kotschwar. He said he believes the minister accelerated slightly, but that the bus was moving only 10 to 12 miles per hour when it reached the crossing.

"I thought, I just hope to God he makes it," said Kotschwar. An instant later, the crash occurred.

"Oh, my God," Kotschwar said he thought at the moment of impact. "I could hear the brakes-a-squawlin' and the brake shoes-a-screachin'."

Kotschwar said he rushed to the scene, then told a woman who had pulled up just to the north of the crossing to go for help.

"There were only two kids conscious, Jimmy Williamson and Katherine Williamson. She was screaming 'My little sister's killed,'" he said.

Kotschwar said one of the bodies was thrown 150 feet from the point of impact.

As others arrived on the scene, Kotschwar said, townspeople began turning the youngsters over and getting the dirt out of their faces so they could breathe if they were still alive.

"It was the God-awfullest thing I ever saw," he said.

Kotschwar said the bus never stopped before the tracks.

"I don't think he ever saw the train, a signal or anything else," Kotschwar said.

Kotschwar said he heard about Friday's school bus crash near Neola, Iowa, in which three children were killed. He said he told his wife Saturday that he hoped he would never see anything like that.

Church Buses Exempt From Stringent Rules

By The Associated Press

Safety rules for buses owned by churches are less strict than regulations for commercial and school buses, a Nebraska State Patrol officer said.

Church-owned buses are generally governed by rules that affect passenger cars, said Cpl. Larry Deckert of Omaha.

Drivers need only regular Nebraska driver's licenses and aren't required to stop at railroad crossings, as are school bus drivers.

The buses undergo the same annual safety inspection as required of autos.

By contrast, school buses must pass two State Patrol inspections and at least two mechanical inspections each year. They must stop at railroad crossings whether a train is visible or not.

Also, school bus operators must pass a special driving test and obtain a school bus operator's license, Deckert said.

Georgia Congregation Grieved By Loss

Americus, Ga. (UPI) — A spokesman for the Americus Church of Christ said Monday the congregation reacted with sadness to news that its former pastor had been killed in a bus-train accident in Nebraska.

"The membership is very grieved and saddened at the loss," said Mrs. Harvey Thaxton.

The Rev. Thomas B. Nerren was one of nine persons, seven of them small children, who were killed in an accident Sunday morning at Stratton, Neb. His wife and one of their two children were among the dead.

One year ago Sunday, Nerren arrived in Stratton on a trial basis, and both he and the southwest Nebraska congregation agreed he should move there.

Mrs. Thaxton said the congregation of fewer than 100 did not want the native of Mississippi to leave. He had been there two years.

Mrs. Thaxton said Nerren was influential in the community and "we enjoyed regular growth" while he was in Americus.

She said buses were not used in Georgia church's program. However, she said, Nerren did deliver a weekly radio sermon.

Urbom Dismisses Ex-Creighton Professor's Suit

Omaha (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom has dismissed in its entirety a lawsuit filed against the Creighton University School of Medicine by a former assistant professor of medical microbiology.

Last week, Urbom ruled insufficient evidence existed that

Creighton discriminated against Dutta Seshachalam because of natural origin and race.

The judge also ruled the university did not retaliate against Seshachalam because he took his case to the Nebraska and federal Equal Opportunity Employment

Commissions while still a university employee.

In a memorandum decision filed in U.S. District Court Monday, Urbom ruled Creighton extended full appeal rights to Seshachalam after the university refused to renew his contract for the 1975-76 school year.

Seshachalam, now of Norman, Okla., is a native of India. He had contended the alleged actions by Creighton caused him "immeasurable" damage to his career and had asked personal damages of $100,000 and back pay of $57,000.

Oklahoma Has Largest Number Of Indians

Oklahoma City (UPI) — Oklahoma has the largest Indian population of any state in the union.

The 1970 Census placed the Indian population of the state at 97,731. Thirty-five tribes inhabit the state.

The name of the state is derived from two Choctaw Indian words, "okla" meaning "people" and "homma" meaning "red."

94th Congress Described As 'Failure' By Thone

Congressman Charles Thone Monday described the two-year record of the 94th Congress as "a dismal failure."

Thone pointed to "wild deficit spending" and the lack of tax reform as two of its greatest sins.

"A realization of just how reckless Congress has been is the fact that the national debt would be more than $11 billion further in the red if it weren't for vetoes by President Ford that have been sustained," the 1st District Republican said in his weekly newsletter.

As for tax reform, the House and Senate bills are "so far apart and Congress plans to be in session so few days yet this year that it seems unlikely that the two bills can be reconciled."

Meanwhile, Thone said, Congress continues to give its members more benefits by "back-door methods."

"The 1975 congressional majority vote for automatic cost-of-living increases for members of Congress — who are the chief cause of inflation — is one of the all-time depths of political irresponsibility," he said.

Investigation Collision 'Probably Avoidable'

Stratton (AP) — "It was probably an avoidable accident," said accident investigator Robert E. Kitzmiller of Lincoln, as he stood at a railroad crossing where a freight train hit a Sunday school bus Sunday.

The former South Dakota state trooper, now an employee of the U.S. Department of Transportation, shook his head as he talked quietly Monday about the tragedy which killed a minister, his wife and seven children.

As Kitzmiller and a newsman talked, a west-bound Burlington Northern freight train, its whistle sounding loudly, rolled through the crossing at an estimated 50 to 60 miles per hour. The engineer waved as Kitzmiller took pictures of the train and the flashing signal lights on the crossing sign.

The bright yellow caboose on the end of the long line of black and orange coal hopper cars was plainly visible for about one mile as it moved westward.

Sunday's train had come from the west at about 60 miles per hour on a clear day. The engineer, Floyd Wesch, 51, McCook, said later, "I don't think the driver ever saw me."

The driver was the Rev. Thomas B. Nerren, 44. He, his wife, Chirlene, 31, and one of their two sons, Thomas, 8, were among the nine dead. Another son, William, 3, was listed in fair condition in a Denver hospital.

The other children killed were Cindy Jo Minary, 3, her sister, Debra, 7; Julianna Scarrow, 4, her sister, Jennifer, 7, and brother Steven Lloyd, 3; and Holly Schoenberger.

Funeral services for three Scarrow children have been scheduled for 10 a.m. Wednesday in the Stratton Hill School gymnasium. Burial will be in Rose Hill Cemetery, one mile from the intersection where they died. Two other children of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Scarrow remain hospitalized in serious condition.

Funeral services for the two Minary girls were scheduled for 11 a.m. Tuesday at the Church of Christ in Palisade. Burial will be in Palisade Cemetery. Ann Marie Minary, 4, another child of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Minary, remained hospitalized in serious condition Monday.

Seven of the eight children injured remained hospitalized Monday. Their conditions ranged from fair to serious and hospital authorities in Benkelman, Stratton and Denver, 250 miles to the west, said all were expected to live. One child, James M. Williamson Jr., 8, was treated and released at a local hospital Sunday.

Town Wonders How It Happened

Stratton (AP) — Residents of this tiny southwestern Nebraska community gathered around the soda fountain at the Stratton Drug Store Monday to wonder how Sunday's bus-train crash could have happened.

The air was filled with the talk of the accident, which claimed nine lives, around the shaded benches where the old men sit to visit.

Only the re-enactment of Sunday's tragedy, including the loud sounding of a freight engine's horn, broke the quiet of the day.

As flags flew at half-staff in front of many business places, federal and state investigators gathered with Burlington Northern Railroad officials to re-enact the crash.

This time, the only passengers on a borrowed school bus were investigators, not children. The freight train approached the crossing slowly, instead of at the 57 mile-per-hour speed railroadmen said Sunday's train was traveling. The train and the bus both stopped, backed up and approached again as investigators took pictures, made measurements and tried to determine how it happened that the Rev. Thomas B. Nerren didn't see the train Sunday.

Asked about the condition of the bus the Rev. Mr. Nerren was driving, Rogers said, "We felt it was in real good shape."

The school district sold the bus to the church for $725 last spring.

Bob Hardy, a member of the Church of Christ, said the church "didn't encounter any problems with it either."

Hardy described the minister as "a real competent bus driver."

Hardy said the idea of buying the bus was the Rev. Mr. Nerren's.

"He wanted a bus route because he wanted to associate with the kids," Hardy said.

The Rev. Mr. Nerren moved to Stratton in August 1975 from Americus, Ga. He was a native of Mississippi.

Kenneth Minary, 30, lost two children in the accident. He said the minister "was running just a little bit late" on his scheduled Sunday morning pickups.

"He usually was at our house about 9 or 9:15," Minary said. Sunday, he said, the minister arrived about 9:20. Officials said the accident occurred between 9:25 and 9:30 a.m. Bible School was to start at 9:30 a.m.

No answers were immediately forthcoming.

The re-enactment took less than half an hour.

While it was staged, newsmen talked with residents about the deaths of the minister, his wife and child and six other children from this community.

John Mohr, a school board member, said the minister was DRIVER'S SON ... William lifted by paramedic Charles Piercy on way to Denver hospital.

Stratton Bus Crash State's Worst Ever

By United Press International
A Nebraska Department of Roads official said Monday the weekend church bus-train accident at Stratton was the worst bus tragedy in the state's history.

Before Sunday's crash, which claimed nine lives, the spokesman said the most serious accidents had been a truck-school bus collision which claimed six lives at Davenport in 1970 and a school bus-train crash which left four dead at Waterloo in 1967.

The spokesman said in light of the Stratton incident, the department's Accident Records Bureau was starting to compile statistics on bus accidents.

The bureau said as of Monday 30 persons had died on Nebraska highways since Aug. 1, compared with six on the same time span a year ago.

Sixteen of the deaths this month occurred during the past weekend, the highest weekend toll ever in Nebraska, according to a spokesman at the state's Accident Records Bureau.

Gov. J. James Exon called the situation a "tragedy" and said keeping the death rate down was now out of the hands of his

Highway Safety Advisory Committee.

Exon said his committee has inaugurated a safety awareness campaign, "but when you get right down to it, it is up to the driver now."

The Sunday crash at Stratton, which also injured eight persons, wasn't the first large-scale emergency the community had experienced.

An Amtrak passenger train derailed on Feb. 12, 1974, on the east edge of Stratton, leaving 21 persons injured.

Ron Crow, a member of the first rescue squad to reach Sunday's victims, said the train retailment helped prepare emergency workers.

Crow, who is Hitchcock County Hospital administrator in Stratton, said the rescue effort was "real well organized. We were ready."

Dr. Kenneth Stout of Stratton, who treated both the Amtrak and Sunday bus accident victims, said the Amtrak derailment was "nothing like" Sunday's accident.

"None were this seriously injured," he said.

The Rev. Thomas B. Nerren was one of nine persons, seven of them small children, who were killed in an accident Sunday morning at Stratton, Neb. His wife and one of their two children were among the dead.

One year ago Sunday, Nerren arrived in Stratton on a trial basis, and both he and the southwest Nebraska congregation agreed he should move there.

Eyewitness 'Just Wants To Forget'

Stratton (AP) — "I just want to forget it and get this knot out of my stomach," Don Kotschwar said Monday of the bus-train crash which killed nine persons and injured eight others.

Kotschwar, the superintendent of utilities for this community of about 480 persons, witnessed Sunday's train-church bus crash from about 150 feet away. He was the first man on the scene.

Kotschwar said the crew had taken a break and he was "leaning on the hood of his pickup truck smoking a cigarette when it happened."

Moments before the crash, Kotschwar said, the Rev. Thomas B. Nerren, 44, brought the bus he was driving to a halt at a stop sign at an intersection 150 feet north of the railroad crossing. The flashers on the Church of Christ bus, which was purchased from the Stratton School District for $725 last spring, were working then, Kotschwar recalled.

"He waved," Kotschwar said of the minister, adding that he waved back as the bus made the right hand turn and began heading slowly towards the railroad track.

At the moment, Kotschwar said, he could see the approaching 67-car eastbound Burlington Northern freight train plainly.

"The train had been a hootin' and the flasher was a goin'."

As others arrived on the scene, Kotschwar said, townspeople began turning the youngsters over and getting the dirt out of their faces so they could breathe if they were still alive.

"It was the God-awfullest thing I ever saw," he said.

Kotschwar said the bus never stopped before the tracks.

"I don't think he ever saw the train, a signal or anything else," Kotschwar said.

Kotschwar said he heard about Friday's school bus crash near Neola, Iowa, in which three children were killed. He said he told his wife Saturday that he hoped he would never see anything like that.

Church Buses Exempt From Stringent Rules

By The Associated Press
Safety rules for buses owned by churches are less strict than regulations for commercial and school buses, a Nebraska State Patrol officer said.

Church-owned buses are generally governed by rules that affect passenger cars, said Cpl. Larry Decker of Omaha.

Drivers need only regular Nebraska driver's licenses and aren't required to stop at railroad crossings, as are school bus drivers.

The buses undergo the same annual safety inspection as required of autos.

By contrast, school buses must pass two State Patrol inspections and at least two mechanical inspections each year. They must stop at railroad crossings whether a train is visible or not.

Also, school bus operators must pass a special driving test and obtain a school bus operator's license, Decker said.

Urbom Dismisses Ex-Creighton Professor's Suit

Omaha (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom has dismissed in its entirety a lawsuit filed against the Creighton University School of Medicine by a former assistant professor of medical microbiology.

Last week, Urbom ruled insufficient evidence existed that

Creighton discriminated against Dutta Seshachalam because of natural origin and race.

The judge also ruled the university did not retaliate against Seshachalam because he took his case to the Nebraska and federal Equal Opportunity Employment

Commissions while still a university employee.

In a memorandum decision filed in U.S. District Court Monday, Urbom ruled Creighton extended full appeal rights to Seshachalam after the university refused to renew his contract for the 1975-76 school year.

Seshachalam, now of Norman, Okla., is a native of India. He had contended the alleged actions by Creighton caused him "immeasurable" damage to his career and had asked personal damages of $100,000 and back pay of $57,000.

Sexuality Has No Age Limit

By JOANNE FARRIS
A READER WRITES: Your recent column concerning "Elder Citizens" recalls to mind a similar article by another columnist. You two ladies, along with numerous programmers, are possessed with the idea that something must be done for the welfare and happiness of senior folks, that workshops, interesting hobbies must be set up to ease the elderly in their declining years. Especially the clever idea of setting up shuffleboard games in motels. Really now, if I'm in a motel, I can sure think of some wonderful games to play other than shuffleboard. The mere mention of the word motel excites me.

You and all the program people never once refer to the most enjoyable pastimes for senior citizens, namely sex. Just because we are over 65 doesn't mean the fire and feeling have gone out of our lives.

I doubt if any investigation or attention has been given this phase of comfort and enjoyment of the elders by you or any of the programmers, but I guess this is only natural for busy career women.

My own wife falls into this category as she is involved in church affairs, card clubs and tea parties. I would like to read something about this.

COMMENT: I've cut out parts of your letter which some readers might object to. Though you say you are a regular reader, I guess you missed my column on Masters and Johnson, when they discussed sex and older people.

They, and I, agree with you that we all will remain sexual beings as long as we live, and that aging persons in normal health continue to have sexual drives, needs, desires and interest. They enjoy sex in the same way that they enjoy most other aspects of their lives, which means that some have a much greater and longer-lasting capacity for sexual pleasure than others. I sense from your letter that your wife is not as young sexually as you are, which is a serious problem for you.

Dr. Sally Schumaker, who directs the Sexual Function Clinic at Long Island Jewish Hospital Center led a panel on "Sex for Senior Citizens" here. Large though the room was, it could not accommodate all people who turned out. Once the group had made their presentations, questions came thick and fast from the concerned and vitally interested audience.

Their average age must have approached 70, and it was exciting to see the frankness and honesty with which they approached the subject. The most poignant questions, which are also the most difficult to answer, came from widows and widowers, who ask, "What do I do with my sexual desires when my spouse is gone?"

Yes, sexuality exists in one form or another for all individuals. However, it does not necessarily express itself in the desire or ability to have intercourse. Some persons express it only in their need for closeness, affection and intimacy.

A group of college students laughed when I told them that there may be more older people living together unmarried than there are in their age group. Many old people who would like to marry are forced by the discriminatory rules of the Social Security system to live together without benefit of clergy in order to get along better financially.

One of my favorite letters is from an 83-year-old man, married 60 years, who enjoys sex with his 78-year-old wife at least once a week!

Masters and Johnson have pioneered on this subject to help couples who have sexual problems. Dr. Schumaker and others have spread the availability of this assistance around the country. Medical schools are becoming alert to the fact that doctors are generally uneducated on the subject of sexual adjustment. For more information call your local medical society or a general hospital nearest you to find out if there is such a clinic near your home.

There is no age limit on sexuality.

Mental Health Boards Need No Insurance

County mental health boards are quasi-judicial bodies generally immune from lawsuits, and counties need not provide malpractice insurance for members, the State Justice Department said Monday.

Greeley County Atty. Harold E. Connors requested the opinion, written by Assistant Atty. Gen. J. Kirk Brown regarding the boards created by LB806, a 1975 law.

The boards act in a quasi-judicial, not a judicial or lay capacity, the opinion found, because their function under state law is to find facts and determine proper treatment needs.

"Any legal entity may be sued," the opinion said. However, the county mental health boards created by LB806 and their members "would be immune from civil liability provided that the act or acts complained have occurred within the scope of the board's authority and without willfulness, malice or corruption."

Regarding the question of providing malpractice insurance for mental health board members, the opinion noted that they're appointed by district court judges; county boards have no express or incidental power over the boards. Further, the Justice Department found no law authorizing a county board the right to buy insurance for malpractice, defined by courts as referring only to conduct of a professional person.

Although some board members must be professionals, none of the members function in hearings in a professional or fiduciary (confidential or trustee) capacity, the opinion said. Thus, "no professional-client relationships are established, the breach of which might constitute malpractice."

Two laws authorizing a county board in some situations to buy "public liability" insurance don't apply in the county mental health board situation, according to the opinion.

Such liability coverage is allowed for county board members and employees, two categories inapplicable to mental health board members, department research found.

Banking Contract To Be Inked

A group of Nebraska banks will sign a contract this week to implement a system of electronic funds transfer which may be used by any participating bank and its customers.

The banking group, Nebraska Electronic Transfers System (NETS), which represents about 84% of the state's total individual checking and savings accounts, has entered into an agreement with MICRO, Inc. of Phoenix, Ariz., to provide the equipment which is expected to make statewide banking possible by March of next year.

According to NETS President Kermit Hansen, chairman of the U.S. National Bank in Omaha, the operation will provide "geographic flexibility for customers to do their banking almost anywhere in the state."

He said that NETS is working closely with the State of Iowa which also hopes to have its system operational by the latter part of March 1977. Plans call for operation of a regional electronic funds transfer system for Iowa and Nebraska and eventually for a nationwide system.

The five principal processing banks with transfer terminals already in operation locally include First National Bank and Trust Co. and National Bank of Commerce in Lincoln and three Omaha banks — U.S. National, Omaha National and First National of Omaha.

Those banks and possibly a few others will serve the corresponding banks throughout the state, making it possible for customers to conduct deposit and payment functions at various remote locations where compatible banking terminals are located, according to Hansen.

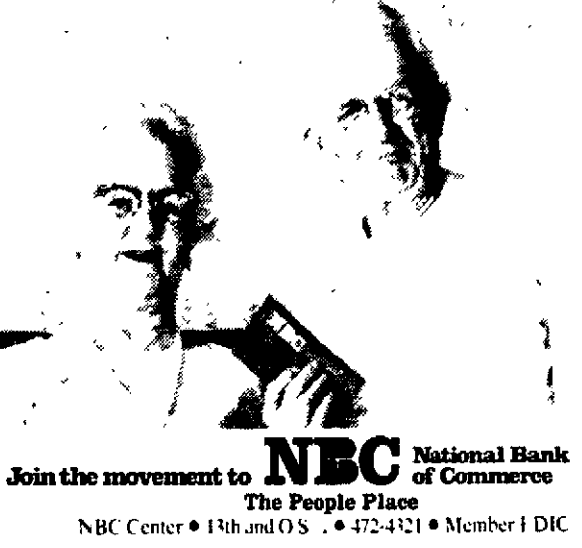

He said the system represents a culmination of 15 years of technological developments in banking and should result in convenience for customers and savings to merchants.

It is designed to reduce paper flow in the form of checks and thus reduce and one day "hopefully eliminate" bad checks.

Like any other change, the transition will require an "involved educational process," but a 30% reduction in paper flow will be considered a "fine accomplishment."

North Country — We sat in ancient, cozy Little River Inn and watched the evening fog drift through the redwoods' lacy tops. This is where Highway 1 reaches north country. There are 1,400 miles of California coast road, ending appropriately at Eureka. The state motto is "Eureka."

As California grows and grows — ("Largest State of the Union") — we move farther and farther out. Real estate signs blossom on the brown sheep pastures. The sheep have pretty well gone.

The Mendocino Grapevine reports. "In 1954, 150,000 breeding ewes roamed the county's ranges. . . Last year they numbered scarcely 32,000."

That's too bad. It was up in this wonderful country of spring lambs that a sheep rancher demonstrated a natural wonder for my daughter, then eight years old.

"See, while a lamb is sucking its mother's milk, it wiggles its tail. If you grab its tail, it can't feed. Stops the pump."

He grabbed a sucking lamb by the tail. The lamb stopped sucking. He let out a little "ba-a-a." His mama turned around and said "Ba-a-a-a!" So it must be true.

Highway 1 marches along the California coastline from Oregon to Tijuana, Mexico. It crosses salmon rivers and climbs coastal hills. I have to stop at Timber Cove Inn above Fort Ross before I can face the road ahead.

It's two-lane. It drops off a mile or so into the sea below.

In the winter, storms sweep down from Alaska. They beat the cliffs with white water. The surf brings in piles of runaway redwood logs and stores them on cove beaches.

Wind rips at the peeling paint of scrollwork houses built in the days of the lumber barons. The men from Maine who built their New England villages here and shipped the wet-resistant redwood that built and rebuilt San Francisco.

It's perfect weekend country. "You should have bought lots here 20 years ago," said the man in the Hotel Mendocino. "You could pick up these old gingerbread houses for a song."

Some people did buy the houses. I don't know what song they sang, but R.O. Peterson — (Jack-in-the-box) — bought and remodeled the old Mendocino Hotel.

It has paneled walls and Tiffany glass lamps and drinks cost $1.50. A song with high notes.

Little River Inn — it's been here for nearly 90 years — has expanded but still offers its famous abalone with eggs for breakfast.

Artist shops have moved into the gingerbread mansions. The shutters that slammed in the wind have new hinges. The walls have new paint.

On a roadside shop of odds and ends, the sign says: "Stuff."

Down the road in the old Gualala Hotel, a man sitting at the bar said: "Not much to do around here. The Happy Hour starts at 9 a.m."

He had three bottles of Miller's High Life lined up in front of him. In the lunchroom across the street, a sign on the wall says:

"We don't serve women. You have to bring your own."

Those are the jokes, folks, on Highway 1.

No one wants to waste money or energy these days. And yet, you could be doing that very thing if you neglect your furnace.

A furnace check up is quick and easy. Just call a qualified heating contractor and he will send out a technician to inspect your furnace. After inspection, he'll discuss with you any repairs or adjustments necessary to restore top level performance.

Before winter sets in, have your furnace checked. It's low-cost insurance against the possibility of wasting energy and money later on.

Mental Health Boards Need No Insurance

County mental health boards are quasi-judicial bodies generally immune from lawsuits, and counties need not provide malpractice insurance for members, the State Justice Department said Monday.

Greeley County Atty. Harold E. Connors requested the opinion, written by Assistant Atty. Gen. J. Kirk Brown regarding the boards created by LB806, a 1975 law.

The boards act in a quasi-judicial, not a judicial or lay capacity, the opinion found, because their function under state law is to find facts and determine proper treatment needs.

Although some board members must be professionals, none of the members function in hearings in a professional or fiduciary (confidential or trustee) capacity, the opinion said. Thus, "no professional-client relationships are established, the breach of which might constitute malpractice."

Two laws authorizing a county board in some situations to buy "public liability" insurance don't apply in the county mental health board situation, according to the opinion.

Such liability coverage is allowed for county board members and employees, two categories inapplicable to mental health board members, department research found.

Little River Inn — it's been here for nearly 90 years — has expanded but still offers its famous abalone with eggs for breakfast.

Artist shops have moved into the gingerbread mansions. The shutters that slammed in the wind have new hinges. The walls have new paint.

On a roadside shop of odds and ends, the sign says: "Stuff."

Down the road in the old Gualala Hotel, a man sitting at the bar said: "Not much to do around here. The Happy Hour starts at 9 a.m."

He had three bottles of Miller's High Life lined up in front of him. In the lunchroom across the street, a sign on the wall says:

"We don't serve women. You have to bring your own."

Those are the jokes, folks, on Highway 1.

"I don't have money to burn. That's why I had my furnace checked to make sure it was producing a dollar's worth of heat for every dollar's worth of energy."

No one wants to waste money or energy these days. And yet, you could be doing that very thing if you neglect your furnace.

A furnace check up is quick and easy. Just call a qualified heating contractor and he will send out a technician to inspect your furnace. After inspection, he'll discuss with you any repairs or adjustments necessary to restore top level performance.

Before winter sets in, have your furnace checked. It's low-cost insurance against the possibility of wasting energy and money later on.

Council Override Fails On Zoning Changes Veto

The City Council failed Monday to override a veto by Mayor Helen Boosalis of a zone change approved last week by the council.

The rezoning would have permitted construction of an apartment building at the northeast corner of 47th and F Sts. The area is now zoned for duplexes.

In explaining her veto, one of the few handed down by the mayor since she assumed office last year, Mayor Boosalis said the council's action constituted spot zoning.

Only council members Max Denney and Bob Sikyta voted in favor of the override. Sue Bailey, Bob Jeamey and John Robinson opposed the attempt. Steve Cook and Dick Baker were absent.

In other action Monday the council took the following actions:

— Denied a request from the Nebraska Central Building and Loan Association to use public space for a public at 1409 O St.

— Approved a contract between the city and county authorizing city to perform duties of enforcing county zoning regulations.

— Approved terms and conditions of grant award of "701" federal funds pertaining to development of housing and land use information systems.

— Approved plat of Tranquility Base First Add. replat east of N. 44th and north of Cornhusker Hwy.

— Approved plat of Village Manor Estates south of South St. and west of S.W. 12th.

— Ordered construction of paving district No. 2365 in Colonial Hills 9th Add., paving district No. 2367 in Trendwood 7th Add., ornamental lighting district No. 202 in Colonial Hills 9th Add., ornamental lighting district No. 205 in Trendwood 7th Add.

— Delayed action one week in ordering sidewalks installed: west side of 27th from Center Blvd. south to existing sidewalk south of the CR and Pacific and Pacific Railroad right-of-way; south side of Pioneer Blvd. from 54th to 58th; west side of 33rd from Doane St. north to St. Paul Ave. and along east side of 33rd from existing sidewalk north of Holdrege St. north to St. Paul; north side of O St. from existing sidewalk west of 66th St., east to existing sidewalk, along south side of O St. from 66th to 70th and west side of 70th from Eastborough Lane to O St.; south side of A St. from Talbot Trail east to Stonyhill Rd.

— Approved application of Larkin, Inc., for retail Class C liquor license at 5250 Cornhusker Hwy.

— Approved manager application for Larkin, Inc. of Salvatore DiGiovanni at 5250 Cornhusker Hwy.

— Approved application of Larkin, Inc. for retail Class C liquor license at 1101 Bond St.

— Approved manager application of Wayne E. Lloyd for Larkin, Inc. at 1101 Bond.

— Approved application of Charles M. Wendelin for package liquor license at 1002 South St.

— Approved application of Elsie's Tap at 311 S. 11th to enlarge premises.

— Approved application of Hess Baluch, doing business as Morocco Lounge, 1010 P., to enlarge premises.

— Denied application of Henry Lohmeier, doing business as Drumstick Restaurant, for retail class C liquor license at 547 N. 48th.

— Approving final plat of Edenton North Add. at 70th and LaSalle.

— Creating a paving district in West Dawes Ave. from east center line of N.W. 10th to west center line of N.W. 7th St.

— Creating paving district in West Dawes Ave. from east center line of N.W. 4th St. to west center line of N.W. 4th St.

— Creating paving district in Sunrise Hills Add.

City Council Held Street Plan Public Hearing, Nobody Came

They held a public hearing at City Hall Monday. Nobody came.

The hearing was on the one- and six-year street and highway improvement program for the city. The one-year program lists the projects slated to start next year. The six-year program is a "wish list" of future programs being considered.

Slated for next year are:

— Widening of 27th St. to four lanes from N to B St.

— Widening of Fremont to 38 feet or less from 48th to 70th.

— Resurfacing of the Harris Overpass on West O St.

— Improvement of the intersection of 20th and Cornhusker Hwy.

— Improvement of the intersection of 20th and Cornhusker Hwy.

— Beginning construction work on the Centrum, downtown parking garage.

— Repaving in downtown and annual resurfacing of arterial and residential streets.

— The only opinion logged on those projects was a comment from City Council member Sue Bailey that she thinks it is unwise to take park land for the additional widening of 27th St.

Projects listed in the six-year program are reconstruction of the Harris Overpass, reconstruction of West O from 3rd to N.W. 27th, improvements of intersections at 48th and Leighton, 48th and Pioneer Blvd. and Park Blvd. and South St. and annual street resurfacing.

O St. Work Said On Schedule

Cars will be moving on O St. by Sept. 1, City Engineer Dick Erickson stoutly maintained Monday. This aerial photograph shows the magnitude of the work that remains in the beautification of O St. Erickson said Monday the only potential obstacle to the Sept. 1 opening date is bad weather. All utilities have been installed and only one block lacks the main street pavement, Erickson said. Most of the four-block project lacks curbing and paving in curb setbacks, however. Also remaining to be done decorative brickwork at intersections. Later this fall trees and shrubs will be planted. (Staff Photo By Harold Dreimanis)

RTSD Delays Hiring Consultant

The Lincoln Railroad Transportation Safety District board delayed a decision on hiring a consulting firm to study track relocation possibilities in the South Salt Creek neighborhood for several weeks.

Residents in the area, bounded by O and Van Dorn Sts. and 9th St. and Salt Creek, have opposed efforts to relocate tracks in the neighborhood.

To the obvious dismay of the South Salt Creek group, who thought the board members would select and hire a firm Monday morning, the board unanimously agreed to follow normal procedures.

That means they will draw up specifics on the consulting work to be done and get price figures from the four competing consulting firms before making any final decision.

At the insistence of the South Salt Creek group, the board also unanimously agreed to include any future consultant's report in the environmental impact statement the RTSD district will send to the federal agencies involved in authorizing and funding the local railroad relocation projects.

Retardation Rule Changes Blasted

By J. L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

Proposed changes in the regulations governing the State Office of Mental Retardation came under fire by directors of its various regional offices during a public hearing Monday morning.

Proposals, published in a 40-page pamphlet and mailed to the regions which dot the state, are made yearly and are subject to public hearing before adoption, according to Dr. Arnold Carmel, director of the department.

An initial criticism of this year's changes was that they were received too late in some areas to allow adequate scrutiny by staffs, according to Ron Thompson, head of Region I in Scottsbluff. Carmel noted that a massive revision of the regulations is still underway and offered to hold the hearing record open long enough for input from all areas concerned.

Thompson took issue with several of the changes, but keyed on one which calls for the creation of a form to be completed by the parents of clients (people served by the region) which would provide written input into their child's program.

"I don't think we can control the lives of the parents of our clients," he added, in asking for clarification of the intent of the change.

Roger Harper, director of Region III in Hastings, said he felt the regional directors should have been contacted before the changes were made, to provide a "smoother transition."

Vince Scott, director of Region IV in Wayne, echoed Harper's comments and questioned the semantics of several of the proposals. Among those was a section outlining the responsibilities of social workers.

"Social workers appear to be nothing more than glorified secretaries," Scott said, and "this proves it."

Fred Bieck, supervisor of mental retardation programs for the State Department of Education, questioned the dollars and cents capability of the Department of Mental Retardation to implement some of the programs suggested.

He asked for a better breakdown of services and emphasized that the State Department of Education provides some evaluation facilities that could be used.

Carmel noted another hearing is still a possibility but added any recommended changes will be outlined in memo form for all regions before final adoption.

Nebraska Pension Problems No Different

Omaha (AP) — Nebraska, like other states, has problems among some public pension plans.

The City of Omaha had a $35.6 million unfunded liability in its police and firemen's pension system, according to the latest audit last October.

Taxpayers may have to pay $1 million to $2 million annually if the city loses a pending court case brought by a retired fireman and an active fireman who want the city to set up a payoff schedule.

Another $5.3 million is unfunded in the civilian pension system, but that will be erased by a payoff schedule already set up by the city.

The State of Nebraska has $37.6 million of unfunded liability in three of its five pension systems, although the obligation will be erased eventually because of funding approved by the Legislature.

The largest is the $27 million unfunded liability in the Nebraska School Employees Retirement System, which will be paid off by 1994.

Another 10 million in the state patrolmen's retirement fund will be erased by the year 2005. Another $600,000 obligation exists in the state judge's retirement system.

Ken Steinmiller, director of the Nebraska Public Employees Retirement System, said figures are as of June 30, 1975.

A retirement system used by 28 counties and a state employees pension system are fully funded, he said.

Douglas County does not participate in the state system, but has its own fully-funded pension plan, a spokesman said.

A Few Floors To Go
There are only a few more floors to go for the 70-story cylindrical Detroit Plaza Hotel, centerpiece of the $32-acre, $338 million Renaissance Center project on the Detroit River.

NRD Shot $2 Million For Year's Projects

The Lower Platte South Natural Resources District needs $2.6 million to operate in the current fiscal year, and it took final steps Monday to budget for that amount.

The district board of directors approved the budget after a public hearing; no one spoke either for or against the proposed budget.

So with 15 of 23 members present, the board unanimously approved the ledger which will require a one-half mill property tax levy from counties in the district.

The district encompasses most of Lancaster and Cass counties, and parts of Seward, Saunders, Butler and Otoe Counties. The district expects to raise $693,396 from the mill levy. The remaining funds will be provided by federal and state funds, investments and property income.

The district expects to get nearly $613,000 from Lancaster County, but plans to spend $649,000 on water projects in the area.

In other business, the board approved $97,200 to purchase 164 acres to be used in dam 6-C of the North Oak Watershed Project. The project, about three miles southeast of Brainard, will be used mainly for flood control.

Lincoln Man Pleads Innocent To Charge Of Sexual Assault

Kenneth S. Crawford pleaded innocent in Lancaster County District Court Monday to a charge of first degree sexual assault.

Crawford, 23, of 1329 F St., is charged with raping a 17-year-old girl. The girl told sheriff's deputies Crawford drove her to an area near 98th St. south of Van Dorn on June 29 where he allegedly assaulted her.

District Judge Dale Fahrbruch accepted the plea and set the case for trial during the Sept. 13 jury term. Bond was set at $10,000.
